Tomato Favorite American Vegetable

New York — (U.P.)—America's favorite vegetable is the tomato.

Tomato consumption in 1953 was enough to provide each man, woman and child in the United States with 53 pounds of the vegetable, according to an analysis of government statistics by the American Can Co. This average included about 40 pounds of canned tomatoes and a little more than 13 pounds straight off the vine.

Corn is second in national preference. The average American in 1953 consumed 13 pounds of canned corn and 10 pounds of the on-the-cob and frozen varieties.

Third among the vegetable favorites was cabbage, with slightly more than 15 pounds per capita. Nutrition specialists for the company which makes containers for more than 500 food items estimated that about 13½ pounds of cabbage was used in slaws and salads and the balance consumed as sauerkraut.

Peas ranked next, with a per capita consumption of more than 12 pounds a year. Company experts said this figure included about eight pounds of canned peas and four pounds of the fresh and frozen variety.

Next in order of American preference were cucumbers and snap beans, with the average American consuming about seven pounds each. Asparagus, lima beans and spinach averaged about three pounds per capita.

The readers of this newspaper find our advertising columns a dependable guide to the point of sale—a useful source for up-to-date news and information about these goods and services.

In order that advertising expenditures may be made with us on the basis of known values, as required for any sound business investment, this newspaper is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Every advertiser should know about A.B.C. The Bureau is a cooperative, non-profit association of 3,450 publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies. Working together, these buyers and sellers of advertising establish standards for paid circulation, rules and methods for auditing and reporting the circulations of newspapers and periodicals.

At regular intervals one of the Bureau's large staff of experienced circulation auditors visits us to make a thorough audit of our circulation records. The FACTS established by his audit are published by the Bureau in A.B.C. reports which are available to you, our advertisers. These reports tell you how much circulation we have, where it goes, how it is sold and other FACTS essential to the profitable use of newspaper advertising. Ask us for a copy of our A.B.C. report.
