Convict Shot in Attempt To Escape Walla Walla Prison

Walla Walla, Wash.—(AP)—A state prison convict, knocked off a makeshift ladder with rifle fire during an escape attempt with two companions, remained in critical condition today following amputation of his left arm.

Lawrence Delmore Jr., warden of the Washington State Penitentiary, said the amputation was "necessary" in efforts to save the life of Vertis Barlett, 28, one of three inmates who tried unsuccessfully to go over the walls last night.

Prison officials said the three inmates, all armed with knives, captured two guards and left them bound and gagged in a locked cell. One prisoner disrobed a guard and used his uniform in the escape attempt.

A heavy rain squall masked their movements as they crept through the prison yard where they propped a makeshift ladder made out of five bedsprings against the east wall.

Guards spotted them and fired a warning shot. When that was ignored, they opened fire with 30 caliber rifles, knocking two of the inmates off the ladder.

Barrett, serving a seven year term for burglary, was rushed to surgery immediately and his left arm amputated just below the shoulder. Roby Erb, 23, serving 15 years for armed robbery, was also to be operated on but his condition was described as "good."

James W. Singletary, 21, third man in the escape attempt, was not injured.

Portland Seaman's Body Thought Found

Crockett, Calif.—(AP)—A San Pablo Bay fisherman found a body yesterday believed to be that of Elmer George Cox, 41-year-old Portland, Ore., seaman missing since Nov. 26.

Fisherman Dan Regello found the body one mile north of Herman Slough, Contra Costa county deputy coroner Wallace Moss physical description of Cox, who disappeared while his ship was tied up at the Crockett C&H Sugar Refinery wharf.

The Matson vessel, the Hawaiian Forester, sailed without Cox, and later his wife asked local authorities to search for him.

Moss said the description of Cox included the fact that he walked with a limp. The body found in the bay had a leather brace on the right ankle.

4-H Club News

Upper Rogue Sewing Clubs
The Upper Rogue 4-H Sewing groups II and III met at the home of the leader, Mrs. Orage Houston, Thursday afternoon after school.

Each member in Sewing III brought material for a simple blouse. During the meeting we learned how to lay out our pattern and cut out a blouse.

Sewing group II met for the first time and decided to make garment protectors as their first project.

The next meeting will be Feb. 3, after school at the home of Mrs. Houston.

Grange

Upper Rogue Grange

Upper Rogue Grange met January 20, in regular session with Master Herb Carlton in the chair. Only routine business was conducted as time was given over to State Grange officers, Roscoe Roberts and Cyril Schoening who explained the transition from the Old Grange Wholesale to the newly organized Oregon Grange Supply. The new organization is sponsored and supervised by the State Grange but is open to membership by the general public. Merchandise handled will include most items used on the farm, and in the farm home except heavy machinery.

The Grange voted to join the Lumberjacks and Jills of Prospect in sponsoring a public square and round dance, proceeds to be given to the March of Dimes. The dance will be held in the Grange hall Saturday night, January 29. Ladies of both organizations are asked to bring sandwiches.

Home Economics Club had a display table of fancy home made candy which they were persuaded to sell during the evening, netting the club a tidy sum.

The Ranald Axtells and Glen Andertons were hosts for the refreshments during the social hour and served chill for which they were justly renowned.

Griffin Creek Grange

Griffin Creek Grange met Jan. 13 with the new officers in attendance. Master Isabelle Le Vander announced her committee for the year as follows: Agriculture, Lewis Clark, Clyde Sturgill and Myrtle Wilson; ways and means, George Mero, Lloyd Hamlin, Jim Edge and Orval Kelley; hostess, Iva Harper; legislative, Floyd McKee, Ruth Clark and Art Glockler; education, Minnie Mathern and Neal Edge; reception, Lillian Dillon, Mollie Casey and Ora Weels; relief, Iva Harper, Jessie Darby and Will Darby; hall, Mark Slyter, Earl Croft, Wes Christieb and Ralph Dillon; membership, Jessie Minear, Claire Christlieb and Ralph Dillon; good of the order, Harold Tolle and Roy Le Vander; insurance, Virgil Wilkes; music, Lulu Sturgill and Marge Mero.

Lecture hour consisted of readings, games and a candle-light service. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ralph Dillon and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Slyter.

H.E.C. met Jan. 20 for a covered dish lunch at the Hamlin home. Officers were installed by Mrs. Olin Poe, district H.E.C. chairman; Hannah Slyter, chairman; Claire Christlieb, vice-chairman; Lulu Sturgill, secretary, and Jessie Darby, treasurer.

Grange will meet again Thursday, Jan. 27, at 8 p.m. The floral march is to be for the March of Dimes to bring dimes and dollars.

Mrs. Lucy Dickson and Mr. and Mrs. Will Darby are on the refreshment committee for Thursday evening.
