

Annual Fellowship Luncheon Planned by University Women

The annual fellowship luncheon of Medford branch, American Association of University Women, will be Saturday, February 19, at 12:30 p.m. at the Medford hotel.

Speaker for the event will be Mrs. Masu Takeda, a graduate student in the school of home economics at Oregon State college who holds Oregon Business and Professional Women's state scholarship for the current year. Last year she was the recipient of the American Home Economics association scholarship.

Since this luncheon will be the February meeting for AAUW, Mrs. William Knope, fellowship chairman and also chairman for the luncheon, asks all members who possibly can attend the luncheon.

A cordial invitation is also extended to eligible prospective members and members recently moving to Medford. For further information concerning AAUW membership, women are asked to call Mrs. Emerson Anderson, membership chairman, at 2-2134.

Mrs. Knope also announced that the Oregon state division of AAUW is now considering applications for a fellowship to be awarded at the state meeting of AAUW in Portland in April. This fellowship is for one year from July, 1955, the grant is for $1,500 and is at the graduate level. Deadline for accepting applications is February 15, 1955, and interested women are asked to call Mrs. Knope at 3-1267 for further information.

As Mrs. Knope pointed out, "AAUW is unique in its fellowship requirement in that holders must be women who have done enough advanced work to give promise of first rate achievement as creative scholars. It has been found that assistance in early stages of college work is available, but there is difficulty in securing aid for more advanced work. Accordingly, the association has undertaken graduate fellowship both as national and state projects. The association maintains that any addition to the sum of human knowledge is valuable."

The ten women receiving fellowship awards from the Oregon division from 1928 to 1952 and the fields in which they studied are as follows: 1928, Laura Garnjobst, Salem, biology; 1931-32, Kathryn Miller, Portland, law; 1934-35, Elaine Williams, Walla Walla, biology; 1937-38, Margaret Wiley, Portland, English literature; 1940-41, Betty Leone Brown, Hubbard, administrative law; 1946-47, Marion Morange, Salem, modern languages; and May Du Bois, Corvallis, home economics; 1948-49, Elaine Tanner, Portland, inter-American economics, and Mary Lewis, Portland, sculpture; and 1950-52, Myrtle H. Dawson, Portland, speech therapy.

In order to be eligible for consideration for the fellowship the women must be a graduate of a standard college approved by AAUW and a resident of Oregon. She must have at least one year of graduate work or its equivalent in practical work along her chosen line of study. In addition the applicant must have good health, excellent character, ability and initiative. It is also desired that the candidates show evidence of creative ability and submit definite plans for research.

Four Attend Convention; UN Supported

Four members of Medford Council of Church Women, Mrs. Claude Sparks, president, Mrs. Harlan P. Bosworth Jr., a past president, Mrs. Arthur Cummings and Mrs. Samuel D. Earhart attended the joint meeting of the Oregon Council of Churches and Oregon Council of Church Women at Eugene last week. In addition to the necessary business meetings of these two bodies of Christian workers, these present also had the opportunity of hearing world renowned speakers brought to Eugene through the cooperation of the two councils, the University of Oregon Christian college and Willamette university. This was due to the fact that it was Christian Education week.

Among resolutions passed was one urging Christian church people to give increased support to United Nations as a means of promoting world peace. Theme of the conventions was "Evangelism and World Problems." Among the speakers was Dr. Harry Rudin, head of the department of diplomacy and history, Yale university, specialist in European and African history and a member of United Nations committees since its beginning in San Francisco in 1950.

Speaking on "The Church and World Problems" Dr. Rudin strongly supported UN and said that whenever at all possible, international problems should be sent to the United Nations for solution. He further said that sometimes in the past the United States had failed to keep its promises to other nations and said U.S. citizens should see that "we keep our promises."

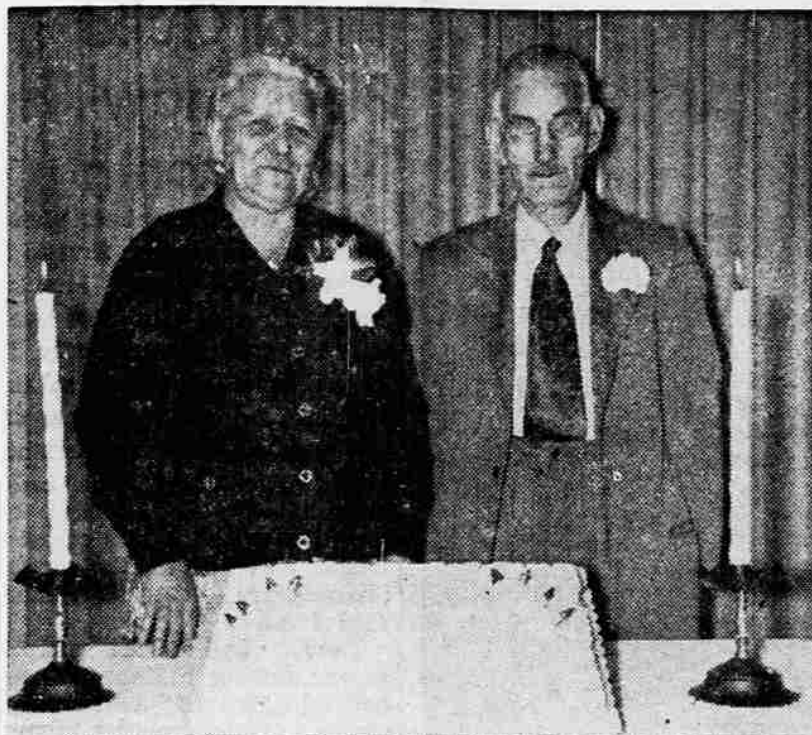

Another speaker was Dr. Charles T. Leber, executive secretary of the board of foreign missions for the Presbyterian church. He told of church work in other countries, particularly behind the "iron curtain" countries of Russia and her satellites and of the need for trained Christian workers of every nationality.

Dr. Leber stated that freedom can come only from Christian ammunition and not from the ammunition of atomic or hydrogen bombs and added "We in America, who call our nation a Christian nation, do so little compared to what those Christian people are doing."

Mrs. Maurice B. Hodge, president of American Baptist Women, spoke both at joint sessions and for women's sessions on the work of Baptist women. Another speaker, Mrs. James M. Evans, director of church world mission for United Church Women, told of the United Mission work of Christian women throughout the world and stressed that this is financed through interdenominational offerings on the World Day of Prayer.

Medford Council of Church Women will sponsor the annual world prayer day Friday, February 25 at 2 p.m. in First Methodist church. On this day all church women in Medford and vicinity are urged to unite in prayer for world peace and the United Mission work.
