

Meeting Between Eisenhower and Zhukov Seems Long Way Off -- If It Comes

Busy Schedules Would Hamper Both for Travel

Washington — (U.P.) — Any reunion between two old comrades in arms — President Eisenhower and Marshal Georgi Zhukov — seemed a long way off today.

When Zhukov was promoted on Wednesday to Soviet defense minister, observers wondered whether he and Mr. Eisenhower might not get together and somehow work to relieve East-West tensions.

Invitation Recalled

The President recalled at his news conference that he once invited Zhukov to visit this country when the two were army occupation commanders in Germany after World War II. Mr. Eisenhower also said, in reply to a question, that he would ask his advisers about renewing the invitation.

Without predicting the President's action, some officials doubted that an Eisenhower-Zhukov meeting could be arranged because of the busy schedules of both men in capitals thousands of miles apart.

Zhukov, it was pointed out, may have power exceeding his new position as defense minister, but he is not the chief of the Soviet state — the job Marshal Nikolai Bulganin got in the latest Kremlin shuffle.

Moreover, Zhukov appears to be still in the middle of the uneasy Moscow power maneuvering. He might be reluctant to take the chance of letting his chair get cold. The best bet here is that Zhukov has been a very busy man since Josef Stalin's death and will become busier as his power grows.

There has been considerable diplomatic interest in Zhukov since his return to the Moscow limelight after Stalin's death in 1953. After Zhukov returned from the obscurity to which Stalin had assigned him, world interest in him was whetted by the possibility that he and Mr. Eisenhower might get together.

This interest zoomed when he was made minister of defense. Zhukov, just before the appointment was announced, had told some American newsmen in Moscow that he dreamed of visiting the United States some day.

The President at his news conference spoke in glowing terms of his friendship with Zhukov in Berlin. He mentioned Zhukov's abilities and recalled a bearskin rug Zhukov gave him. Once in 1945, the President said, his airplane and son, John, were put at Zhukov's disposal for a trip to this country. However, the trip didn't come off.

Hunt for Missing Cowboy Uncovers Stolen Postal Safe

Pasco, Wash. — (U.P.) — Two Kennewick men, acting on a tip received in an anonymous scrawled note, went looking for a missing friend yesterday, but instead dug up a safe which may contain as much as $140,000 in negotiable postal money orders.

Postal authorities identified the safe as one stolen from the Boardman, Ore., postoffice Feb. 27, 1954, and said it then contained 1,400 money orders which could be filled out for amounts up to $100. The number remaining in the safe had not been counted today.

Louis McHenry and Arthur DeWitt found the safe buried in about one and a half feet of sand in a gravel pit two and a half miles northeast of here.

They were searching for Milton Simmons, an amateur rodeo performer known as "Cowboy" Timmons, who they said had been missing "under mysterious circumstances" since Dec. 15. Henry said a note had been slipped under his door about a month ago telling him, "if you're looking for Cowboy, look in the gravel pit near Kahlotus." He said he had ignored the note until an amateur geologist found a red bandana belonging to Simmons in the pit last week.

McHenry said he believes Simmons is dead "as a result of foul play."

The Franklin county sheriff's office, FBI and postal authorities were investigating with the case to be taken over by postal inspectors from Pendleton, Ore., today.

North Korea Slip-up Admits Violation of Armistice Agreement

Washington — (U.P.) — The Communists have admitted through an apparent slip-up that North Korea violated the Korean armistice, American officials said today.

The slip came when the Reds admitted that two MIG15s blasted into the sea by American Sabre jets last Saturday belonged to North Korea. Under the armistice, North Korea should not have jet planes because there were none in the Communist territory at the time the armistice was signed.

Could Send Protest

The United States could send a protest to the North Koreans complaining about the incident, but officials think the matter probably will be handled through the Military Armistice commission in Korea.

The incident occurred when

12 American Sabre jets and a reconnaissance plane were attacked by eight MIGs off the coast of North Korea. Two of the MIGs, which were not carrying identifying markings, were shot down. The American planes were undamaged.

U.S. Saved Trouble

The United States was saved the trouble of identifying the planes when the North Koreans admitted yesterday that the craft belonged to them.

The armistice bars both sides from bringing new equipment into Korea but permits replacements with equipment of the same type. Through U. S. reconnaissance showed the Reds had not jets in North Korea at the time the armistice was signed.

Meeting To Study Sewerage Problem; Said Health Menace

The most serious local public health and sanitation problem — that of improper sewerage in the fringe areas — will be discussed at a meeting of the Jackson County Public Health association next Thursday, Feb. 17, at 1 p.m., according to Mrs. A. C. Uridel, chairman of the association's sanitation study committee.

A panel consisting of Robert Hart, Jackson county's new sanitarian, Dr. A. E. Merkel, health officer, Vern Thorpe, Medford public works director, and Mrs. Uridel will present phases of the problem, with suggestion for solutions.

The meeting is to be held at the St. Mark's Guild hall on North Oakdale ave. in Medford.

"This affects everyone in the county and particularly the areas surrounding the cities of Medford and Ashland," Dr. Merkel stated, "and rapid growth of this section makes solution of the problem imperative. "Since the knowledge and assistance of many individuals and groups will be necessary to solve this, we urge everyone interested to attend the meeting next week," Mrs. Uridel stated.
