Around Hollywood

Hollywood — (U.P.) The most famous right leg in Hollywood is bandaged from toe to knee today, and its owner, Betty Grable, sighed it cost her "a lot of money."

Betty's underpinning is well known from numerous technical and television.

But last week the famous blonde injured one leg so badly she had to cancel a reported $40,000 appearance on a CBS-TV "Shower of Stars" program.

"I had to forfeit a lot of money but I can't say how much," admitted Betty as she hobbled on crutches in her Beverly Hills home.

The doctor told me I can start trying to walk but I won't be able to dance for several weeks. The swelling has gone but my leg still is terribly black and blue."

Betty usually doesn't "give too much thought" to the legs that have earned her a fabulous living for a decade.

"But now I'm wondering if my left leg will look bigger from using it more," she said. "I hope it doesn't."

Betty still will be able to co-star with Sheree North in a 20th Century Fox film, "How To Be Very, Very Popular," because shooting won't start until Feb. 21. This movie marks the studio's try at doing without Marilyn Monroe (she was suspended after refusing the part and also the return of Betty to Fox after two years) she was temporarily deposited by Marilyn.

"When I drove through the studio gates for wardrobe tests, the gateman got down on his knees and bowed," Betty said. "Wasn't that sweet?"

A newcomer will get what may be the break of her career because of Betty's injury. Shirley MacLain, a dancer originally signed for a small role on "Shower of Stars," was handed Betty's routine yesterday.
