

Pre-Easter Topics Told for Eastwood; Events Announced

Two new series of pre-Easter sermons will be presented at the Eastwood Baptist church, according to the minister, the Rev. Willis J. Loar.

The morning series will commence Sunday at 11 a.m., under the theme, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." The 7:30 p.m. series will bear the title, "The Cross From the Human Side." Music will be a feature of each service, with a new choir in the process of formation.

School Program

In addition to the preaching services, an enlarged Sunday school program will be held at 9:45 a.m. A new Baptist Youth fellowship will be organized Sunday at 6:30 a.m.

A church officers clinic, for all officers of the church, will be held a week from tonight, Feb. 25, to train the officers of the church in their duties. The Rev. Earl Berg, of the Oregon Baptist convention, will be the leader.

The church is also participating in the World Day of Prayer, and the city-wide religious census, the latter to be held March 3 to 10 under the auspices of the Medford Ministerial association.

A great Missionary cavalcade from the American Baptist convention will be held here in the Medford area March 27 to 30, with five outstanding Foreign and Home missionaries appearing in the local church.

The series of messages on "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" are, "I See the Tragedy of Sin; I See a Throne of Judgment; I See the Meaning of Communion; I See the Mercy and Forgiveness of God; I See the Meaning of Sacrifice; I See the Price Paid for My Redemption." This series will be climaxed by an Easter message, April 10, "The Coronation of Christ."

The evening series on "The Cross From the Human Side," are "The Cross and Human Forgiveness; The Cross and Human Longing; The Cross and Human Relationships; The Cross and Human Fear; The Cross and Human Suffering; The Cross and Human Accomplishment; and The Cross of Human Trust."

As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PH.D.

New Neighbors Cold

She Misses Friendship
It is certainly unpleasant to live among neighbors who seem to turn a cold shoulder to newcomers. A woman writes:

(Q) "Last August we moved into this neighborhood because the school here is considered excellent and we have two children of school age. Not one of my neighbors has come to call or paid any attention to us since we came. They speak when I meet them, but I wonder if they would if I didn't speak first. Their children are friendly enough with ours, but I don't understand their parents' attitude toward us. Several months ago another family moved here, and the wife tells me no one has paid any attention to her either. The neighborhood where we lived before was very friendly, and I miss the companionship. Have you any solution to the problem?"

(A) According to standards of the past, it was socially correct for people in a neighborhood to call on a family shortly after they moved in. But times have changed. People are much more casual about social conventions than they used to be. In fact, they often ignore them entirely.

Before concluding that your neighbors are trying to snub you, it would be wise to test out their feelings. Give a neighborhood "at-home" some Saturday or Sunday afternoon. Invite all of your neighbors and their children, and serve simple refreshments.

If there are too many neighbors to get into your house two successive days or two successive week-ends. But be sure to send out all the invitations at the same time so that, if the neighbors compare notes, they won't find that some did not receive invitations.

This, of course, is not strictly correct. But, as the school in this new neighborhood is so good, it is worth it to do what you can to be on friendly terms with your neighbors so you can live happily where your children can get a good schooling. (Copyright 1955, Gen. Features Corp.)

MEXICO CITY CROWDED
Mexico City—(U.P.)—Mexico's Tourist Bureau is asking visitors to stay away from Mexico City. The bureau says a current travel boom has crowded all first-class hotels and people who have to live in second-class quarters might get a bad impression of the country.

Teacher Gives Rules For Easing Housework

Carbondale, Ill.—(U.P.)—Housewives can save time and energy on any household task if they only will analyze and improve their way of performing it.

And they don't need to be time-and-motion study experts to do it, says Mrs. Agnes Ridley of Southern Illinois university's home economics department.

Here are seven simple rules Mrs. Ridley drew up:

Use two hands whenever possible.

Arrange utensils, materials and containers close to the point of use.

Have work well-lighted.

Sit down to work as much as possible.

Use feet and other parts of the body as well as the hands in doing chores.

Choose utensils and household tools designed to fit the hand.

Develop a rhythm for every task and learn to make curved instead of straight-lined motions that involve sharp or sudden changes of direction.

Day of Prayer Observance Set

The World Day of Prayer will be observed in Medford, as elsewhere throughout Christian nations, on Friday, Feb. 25.

A special service will be conducted in the First Methodist church here at 2 p.m., under the sponsorship of the Medford Council of Church Women and the Medford Ministerial association.

Mrs. Duane Bowman, of the Medford Salvation Army unit, will be in charge of the program.

The Day of Prayer is on the first Friday in Lent, traditional Christian time for prayer and contemplation. The theme will be based on John 15:4, "Abide in Me."

Psalms 50:1 is quoted in the call to prayer issued to call attention to the annual observance. The text is "The Mighty One, God the Lord, speaks and summons the earth from the rising of the sun to its setting."
