

Shady Cove-Trail News

Shady Cove-Trail—Mrs. Earl Sheppard of Shady Cove is staying with her mother, Mrs. Hazel Minter who is ill in Las Vegas, Nev.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hawkins of Lodi, Calif., spent three days visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kelley this past week. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Clemens of Grants Pass will spend the week end with them.

A total of $585.80 was raised through various activities and by individual contributions in the Shady Cove-Trail area for the March of Dimes according to the Chairman Eva Segessenman and co-chairman Lola Barstuss who expressed their thanks and appreciation to all who helped to make the drive a success.

Sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Minnie Eastin and to Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Eastin on the passing of Paul Eastin of Eastin's Rogue Haven, McLeod. Mr. Eastin passed away Thursday at a Medford hospital.

The March meeting of Our Lady of Fatima Club will be held Tuesday, March 1, starting at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Eva Segessenman of Shady Cove. This is an organization of Catholic women in the Shady Cove-Trail-Prospect area and all are cordially invited to attend.

A benefit card party was held Feb. 21 for the Shady Cove Extension Unit at the home of Mrs. Carroll Watson of Shady Cove starting at noon with a salad luncheon. Co-hostess was Mrs. William Croucher. Present were Mesdames O. Krotz, Ralph Lane, Travis Littlefield, Bob Chamberlain, James Landry, Harry Casebier, Oscar Hanson, Pearl Adair, Ernest Segessenman, Isabelle Wunderlich, Max Hawks, Kenneth Raulson, Tom King, Miles Williams, Arley Spain, O. L. Williams, Jacalyn Langston, Clara Thurman, Dolf Larson, Floyd Kelley, Frank Cook and the co-hostesses, William Croucher and Carroll Watson. High prize for bridge was won by Mrs. Arley Spain, for bingo by Mrs. O. C. Krotz and for pinocchle by Mrs. Pearl Adair. Consolation prizes were won by Mesdames O. L. Williams, Paulson and Littlefield.

Several people who have been away on trips recently have returned to their homes in Shady Cove among them Ray Chubb who spent sometime in Southern California on business; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fagalde and Mrs. O. L. Williams who were vacationing in Hayward and the Bay area; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hopkins and Mrs. Eleanor Sawyer who also were in the Bay area while Hopkins attended a reunion of the members of his World War II outfit and Mrs. Sawyer visiting her friend, Mrs. Pat Mitchell in Hayward, Mrs. Mitchell being an old Shady Cove resident; Mrs. Carroll Watson who spent a week in Portland attending the gift show.

Grant Hubbell has returned to his home in Trail and is convalescing there after his second stay in Sacred Heart hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. William Croucher made a trip to Eugene to visit friends over the week end.

Livestock Men Say Names Should Not Appear as Sponsors

Salem — (U.P.) — Two officials of the Western Oregon Livestock association say their names should not have appeared as co-sponsor of a House bill amending the brand inspection law.

Albert Julian of Linn county, chairman of a stockmen's committee which studied the law, said it decided to go along with it. Vice-president Hubert Wiloughby of Harrisburg said he learned of the bill only a few days ago.

Rep. Robert Steward (D-Keating), chairman of the House Livestock committee and himself a Baker county stockman, said he had been assured by the Oregon Cattlemen's association that it was joined by the other stockmen's groups in wanting the changes.

Would Reduce Fees
The bill would reduce the fee per head of cattle from 30 cents to 15 cents, would exempt calves under six months, and would add a special assessment of 10 cents a head for all cattle and horses over 6 months old and subject to taxation as personal property.

This plan would save money for the dairymen who have opposed that system, Ed Coles of Prineville, representing the Cattlemen's association said.

But several Willamette valley dairymen said they and their county assessor oppose the plan anyway, because of the high cost expected in collecting the assessment separately from the inspection fees now paid as cattle are sold.

A. R. Dickson, Klamath county assessor, said his office, which has just changed its book-keeping to conform with a reappraisal of property, would have to revise its system completely again to collect the assessment.

Among stockmen objecting to the proposed changes in the law were Karl Arnold of Linn county, Paul M. Rigord of the Benton County Farm Bureau federation, Rue Drager of Salem and Jack Cochran of Brownsville.

Bids On Central Point Building Due Monday

Central Point — Bids on the $20,000 bond issue for construction of a new fire hall-library building in Central Point will be considered at an adjourned council meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Final plans for the structure were recently adopted by the council. Architect for the building is Robert Keeney.

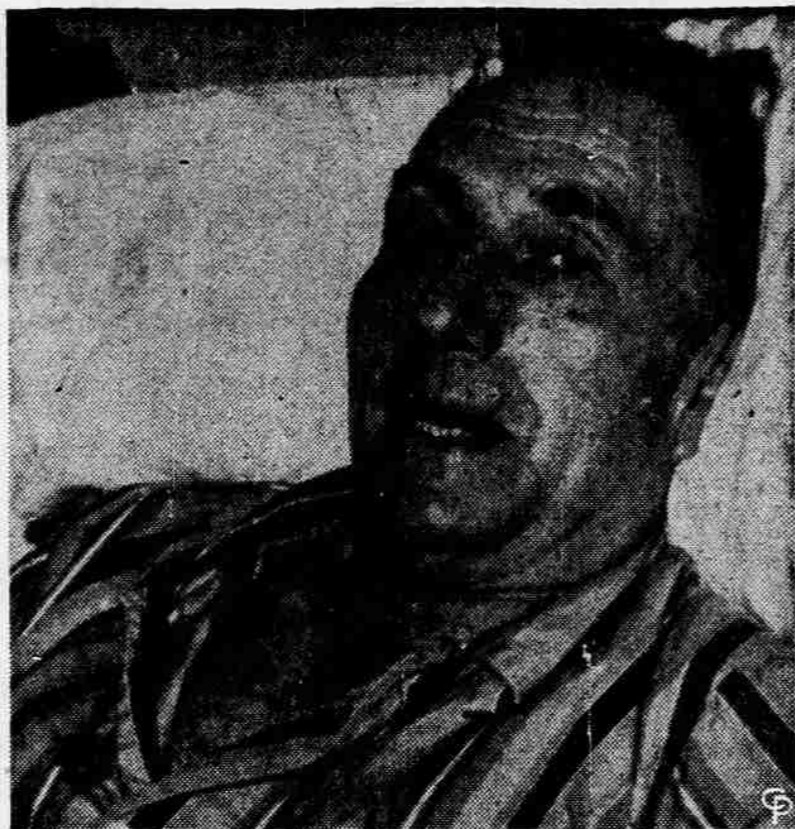

The matter of financing a proposed connection with the Elk City Water district will also be discussed. At a meeting Friday, City Attorney B. Kent Blackhurst discussed the legality of the city's participation in the construction cost with the district. Archie H. Rice, engineer with a Corvallis firm, was present and related the terms proposed by the district. The city has been asked to participate in construction at a cost of about $40,000.

Widow of Tug Master Brings $45,000 Suit

Portland — (U.P.)—The widow of the master of the tug Mule Duzer, who was killed with four of his crewmembers at the Bonneville Dam spillway last August, has filed a $45,000 damage action in Federal Court here.

Vernon S. Larsen, executor of Capt. Magner Larsen's estate, brought the suit against the Larson Construction Company on behalf of the widow and her son, Vernon S. Larsen.

The tug was swamped and overturned in the spillway waters while engaged in survey work for a coffer dam. The five men were drowned.

Dog Racing on Tracks Used For Horses Receives Okay

Salem — (U.P.) — A bill that would free the Multnomah Kennel club to hold dog races on horse race tracks, like those at Portland Meadows and the Multnomah county fairgrounds, has the unanimous endorsement of the House State and Federal Affairs committee.

The measure, approved by the committee Friday afternoon, will be ready for third reading and final action on the floor of the House early next week.

There has been talk of moving Portland's Coast league baseball from the Vaughn street ball park to Multnomah stadium, which would force dog racers to seek a new location. Present law prohibits dogs from being raced on the same track as other race animals. The bill would remove that prohibition.

A proposed memorial to Congress opposing a congressional resolution allowing the president to negotiate tariff reductions was first tabled by the committee and then removed from the table and "placed in the back of the book." The action was expected to remove the measure from further consideration.

The committee heard sharply opposed testimony on a reso-

Red Cross Slates Drive for Funds Outside of City

A drive for funds in areas of the county not served by the United Medford Crusade will be started Tuesday, March 1, by the Jackson county chapter of the American Red Cross, it was announced Saturday.

The campaign will run for three weeks. Manville Heisel, chairman of the drive, explained that the drive will not duplicate the UMC effort in Medford, for the Red Cross receives funds from the Crusade.

He has requested all committee members and volunteer workers to complete their assignments as soon as possible so the drive can be completed on schedule.

The total Red Cross budget in Jackson county this year is $27,555, of which $19,500 is supplied by the United Medford Crusade. The balance, $8,055, is being sought in the current drive outside Medford.

Heisel explained that the budget is "rock bottom," was planned carefully and was reduced to the lowest figure that will maintain services now being supplied to the community.

The drive chairman added that the areas in which the $8,055 are to be raised have a total population of some 50,000 people, so on a per capita basis, the amount totals 16 cents per person, a low cost for the services provided, he said.

Sidney Ainsworth, Ashland, is chairman of the drive in that area. Temporary offices in Ashland are being set up in the Lithia hotel.

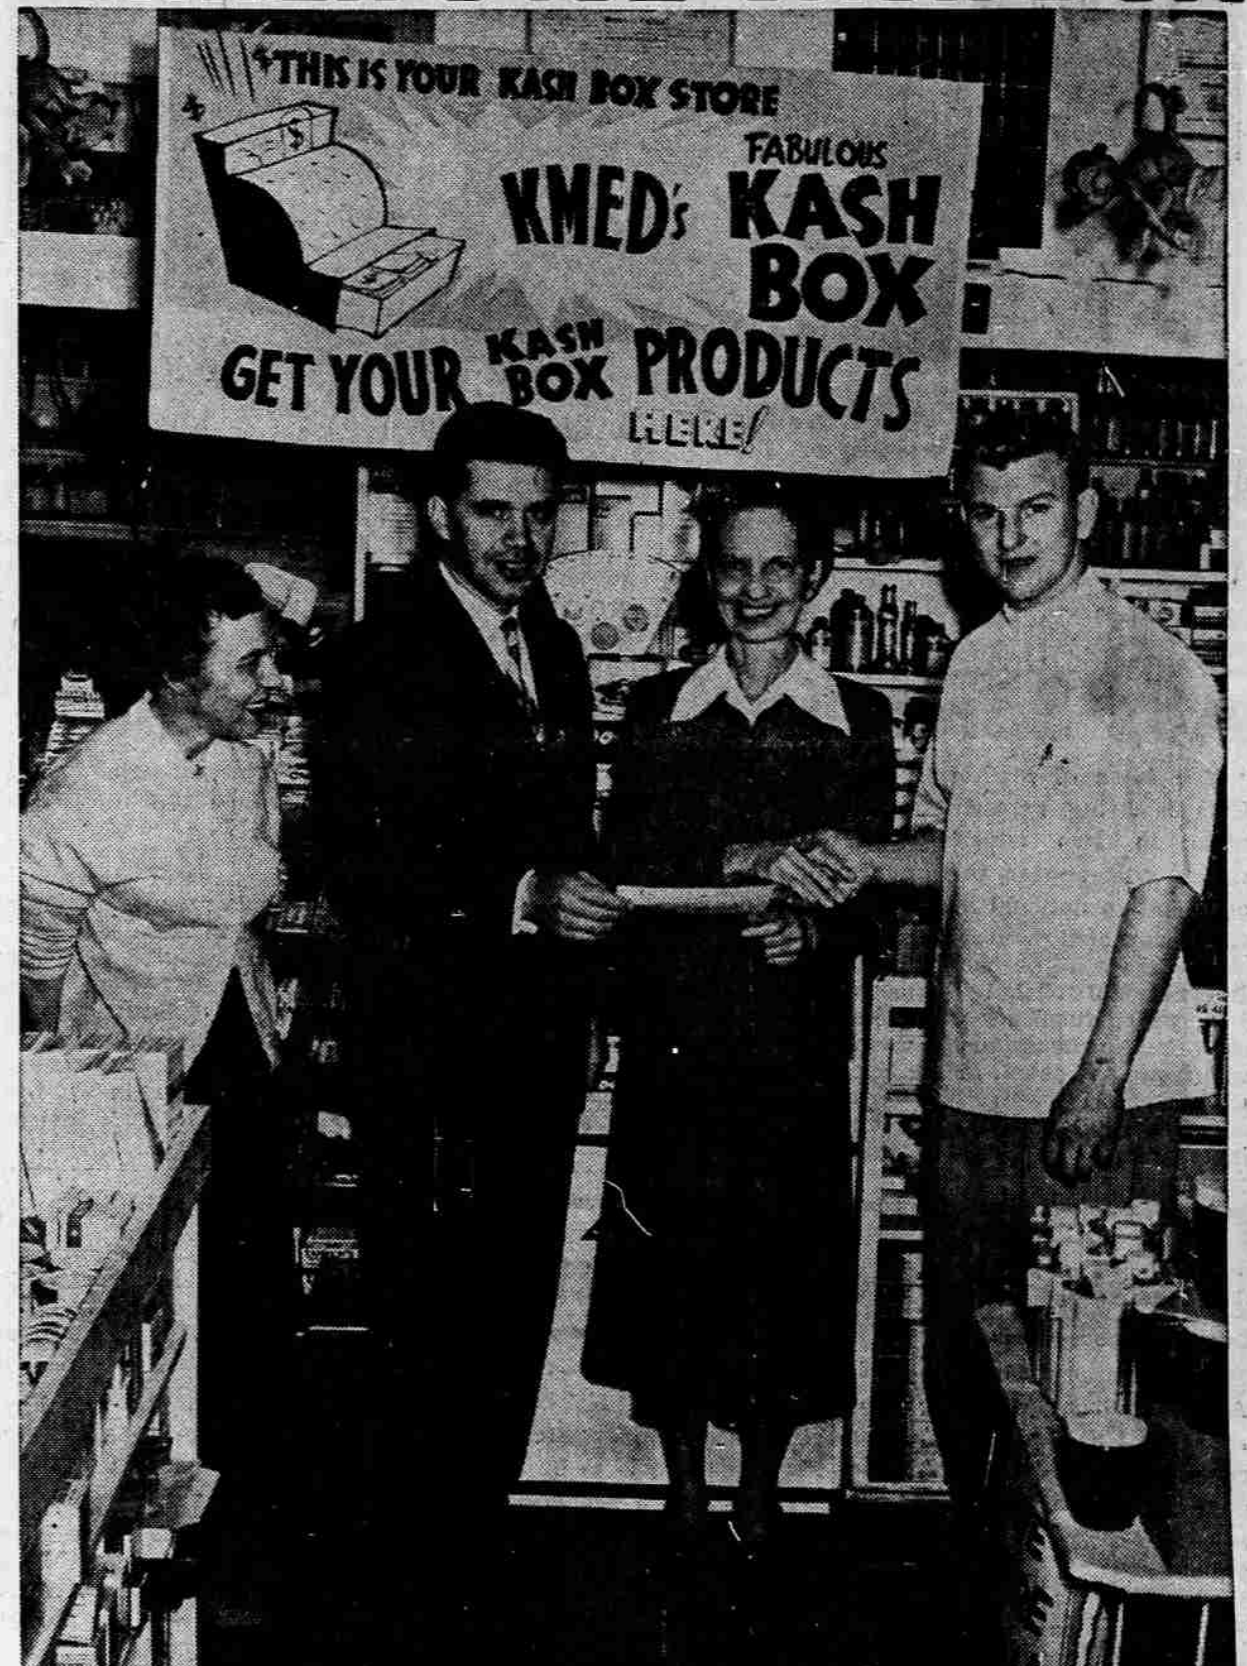

Many Services
The overall budget includes such things as administrative expense, blood program, disaster preparedness and relief, nursing services, safety services, including first aid and water safety; junior red cross, Grey Ladies, hospital and motor services, production and supplies, and others.

Jacksonville Fire Call Box Installed

Jacksonville—The volunteer fire department at Jacksonville has installed a fire call box on the north side of the fire station, according to firemen.

The box was installed for convenience in reporting a fire. Anyone using the box must remain at the station until members of the department arrive. The department also announced that numerous pieces of fire equipment have been added to the department during the past year, through the efforts of the people of Jacksonville.

Included were three salvage covers, one extension ladder, one filling cabinet, two all-purpose masks, four jackets, two helmets, two turnout coats, one backpack pump, one 2 1/2-inch hydrant gate, eight canisters for smoke masks, two soda-acid recharge kits and one step ladder.

Persons reporting a fire in Jacksonville were asked to state the name, address and type of fire when they make an emergency call.

Second Snow Course Measurement Slated

The second measuring of the winter on the two snow courses at the head of Evans creek will be made tomorrow by the Medford office of the Soil Conservation service and California-Oregon Power company.

Clem Ault, technician with the Rogue Soil Conservation district, reported that snow surveys of two courses on Goolaway mountain and Goolaway gap would be made to determine depth of snow and water content.

Each course is about 1,100 feet long, with a reading taken each 100 feet, he said. A total of three readings a year are made at the courses.

Copco, which is interested in the survey, is cooperating by providing for four-wheel drive trucks or Sno-Cats, if necessary. Ault said. SCS personnel will conduct the actual survey.
