Italy Hopes To Become Big Brother To Arab Neighbors

Rome—(U.P.)—Italy hopes to become the industrial big brother of under-developed Arab neighbors around the southern Mediterranean and the Middle East.

Giuseppe Vedovato, top government economist, has completed a mission through the Arab countries and has promised to send at least 100 Italian technicians to advise on a number of projects the Arabs hope to launch.

Vedovato visited such Arabian capitals as Damascus, Amman, Baghdad, Beirut, Kuwait, Gedda, Kartoum, Cairo and Tripoli as well as industrial or commercial centers like Alexandria and Aqaba.

He reported friendliness toward expanded Italian commerce and said the Arabs want Italians technical aid.

No agreements were actually signed, but members of his mission who represented Italian banking or industrial groups made direct contacts with interested persons in the various countries.

Vedovato pointed out that Arab countries are primarily interested in Italian aid for construction of hydro-electric plants, naval installations, mechanical and industrial facilities, railroads, highways and public buildings.

Thus, Italy's big annual crop of university-trained specialists may be funneled into work on projects around the Mediterranean.

Vedovato gave numerous examples of ways in which Italian technicians can help Arabian projects. In Jordan, he foresees the raising of phosphate production from 40,000 to 500,000 tons a year.

The Italian economist's plan is to improve the transportation from mines to the port city of Aqaba by means of a railroad or a trucking highway, a construction project which would employ Arab common labor as well as Italian specialists.

He also pointed out that Italians could work on a proposed giant dam on Jordan's river Jarmuk, and on the irrigation program for the fertile but arid Jordan Valley. He also mentioned the possibility of Italian mining engineers going to Jordan to develop the rich potassium and manganese deposits located there.

Such development of Arab natural resources would benefit Italian industry, which in turn would sell back to the Arabs many manufactured products, Vedovato explained.

In Egypt, Vedovato found the government in need of technical assistance in the construction of a fertilizer plant, and in the Sudan he found need of Italian help in the building of a rail and highway network.

Libya, formerly an Italian colony and now a United Nations-sponsored free kingdom, has asked Italian help in irrigation projects and in development of artesian wells.

Italy herself is investing bil-ions of lire in self-improvement with her eye on the eventual Mediterranean and Middle Eastern market. The regional government of Sicily has invited British and American oil companies to explore her oil resources, from which Sicily will derive approximately one half of all profits under the licensing agreement.
