SHE'LL HOUSE ATOMIC BOMBERS—The Ark Royal, first British Navy aircraft carrier equipped to house atomic bombers, undergoes sea trials of Great Britain. The 36,800-ton vessel, 13 years in the making, is slated for more equipment tests later this month before taking on its first complement of planes.

Yugoslavia Military Factories Paying Off In Goods Production

Belgrade.—(U.P.)—Yugoslavia's painful investment in military factories has begun to pay off, not only in equipment for the Yugoslav armed forces but in foreign orders and civilian production.

The factories got several American "offshore procurement" orders for artillery shells and other ammunition and equipment last year, and now are looking for more.

Yugoslavia started the ambitious industrial program after the 1948 break with the Kremlin when supplies from Eastern Europe were cut off. As much as one-quarter of the national income was put into defense production. For several years a big chunk of the defense funds has gone into the new factories, which also claimed most of the country's top engineers and construction experts. Housing priority, too, went to factory workers.

Considered "Secret" Whole new towns were built around several of the plants. Their location usually is considered "secret" although generally known to the public.

Just how many factories there are is also a secret. The national defense secretary mentioned 37 two years ago and 59 last year when presenting his budget to parliament. But he neglected to give a figure this year, saying only that as of today nearly all the factories planned in 1948 are completed and in operation.

The military plants cover a wide range of production. They turn out some goods also valuable on the civilian market, such as cloth, canvas and clothing.

Assembling Motors The airplane motor factory at Krusevac, for example, has just taken on the job of assembling motors for the first home-produced passenger cars in Yugoslavia. Currently the motors consist of mostly imported parts, but it is planned to manufacture the entire motor here within a year or two.

Military experts say Yugoslavia now is capable of supplying itself almost completely with all the lighter types of weapons, and U.S. military aid has therefore been concentrated on heavy arms, jet planes and specialized equipment.

Nervous Condition Blamed on Hair Loss

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(U.P.)—You may lose your crowning glory, if you're the emotional type, according to Dr. Thomas Jansen of the University of Michigan's Medical school. He thinks the sudden loss of hair is directly connected with nervous conditions.

Little can be done for hereditary baldness, he said, and you might as well reconcile yourself to the inevitable.

You can't blame baldness on the barber either. Cutting or shaving the hair doesn't affect its growth, but beware of home waves or dyes that cause skin changes. Odd are you'll lose your hair, if you continue using them.

For dandruff sufferers the doctor advised a shampoo, of your hair brush as well as your hair. Gern carrier, you know.

He advised that hair be dried with a dryer and not a towel. Towels have a tendency to break the hair ends, he explained.
