

BRITISH PUBLIC OPINION appears to favor marriage of Princess Margaret to Capt. Peter Townsend, divorced commoner, judging by letters to newspaper editors. Indications are rites may occur on Margaret's 25th birthday this year. (International)

Capt. Townsend Said Unaware if Margaret Has Plans To Marry

Brussels, Belgium — (U.P.) — Group Capt. Peter Townsend said today he has no reason to believe that Princess Margaret has decided to marry him.

He held before him as he talked with reporters a dispatch in a London paper saying he was willing to accept exile with a certain lady if the situation should demand it.

"This statement implies that Princess Margaret has decided to marry me," he said, pointing to the dispatch.

"The Princess has made no such decision known to me nor have I any reason to believe she has made such a decision."

Townsend, wearing riding breeches, met reporters in front of his apartment. He said he would not answer questions but that he had a statement to make.

"You all know I described this alleged statement Saturday as pure invention and said it should be completely disregarded," he said. "This is only one thing that in view of the statement swells the number of other fictitious things alleged to have been said by me."

"I shall now be forced to seek escape from meeting reporters."

Townsend returns to work today as air attache at the British embassy after a two-week leave.

After reading his statement he entered his car then turned as if to add something but said simply, "Goodbye, thank you," and drove off.

End To Romance Suggested

London's latest sensation appeared in the London Sunday newspaper, The People. Dr. Alfred Blunt, bishop of Bradford, the bishop who stripped official silence from the love affair of King Edward VIII, suggested that Townsend and the Princess call off any romance.

"The legitimate church attitude would be against such a marriage," he said. He pointed out that Townsend is a divorced man and that the Church of England does not sanction such marriages if both of the divorced persons are alive.

But one anti-R-and-B disc jockey, Peter Potter of CBS Radio's Jukebox Jury, snorted today it isn't the music the kids go for "but the filthy lyrics."

"Teach Me Tonight" is what Potter calls a "watered down R-and-B." When the De Castro Sisters' record of that song first appeared, several columnists blasted the lyrics that "proclaim among other things, 'Graduation's almost here my love. Teach me, tonight.'"

Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY

Hollywood — (U.P.) — The current craze among teenagers for rhythm-and-blues songs with racy lyrics has become a sizzling controversy around the country.

A rhythm-and-blues tune, or "R and B" as devotees call it, has a jazz two-beat that some musicians call "barbaric" or "dirty." Usually there's a honking saxophone behind the blues-wailing lyrics.

But those songs are mild, high school stuff compared to the R-and-B records put out by smaller companies.

"When I first heard 'So Boom' I thought it was one of the worst records I'd ever heard and I play more than 350 a week. But after I played it as a test, I got 100 requests. The kids told me it was danceable."

"I won't play hardly any R-and-B records. Some disc jockeys who are desperate for an audience play them but I won't."

The titles of many R-and-B tunes could not be printed in a newspaper. Yet, Potter pointed out, they are sold to teenagers in record stores, played on the radio and seen on juke boxes.

The disc jockey bemoaned the fact the major recording companies have joined the R-and-B fold, too.

Miller Gave In

"Mitch Miller, the executive at Columbia Records, once told me he would never record any R-and-B songs but he finally gave in," the deejay signed.

"The kids seem to get a biological kick out of listening to these wild records. One mother wrote me she found four in her daughter's room and broke them. When these songs were written, good taste went out the window. Even if the lyrics are clean, they sound risque the way they're sung."

Potter thinks radio and TV stations should set up a clearing house to pass on records that the disc jockeys spin.

"If I had the power I'd sentence the songwriters to jail," he added. "I think those tunes

Sailor Survives 12 Days in Ocean

Cartagena, Colombia — (U.P.) — A sailor ashed off a Colombian destroyer survived 12 days in the Caribbean sea clinging to a piece of timber without food or water.

Louis Alejandro Velasco, one of eight seamen lost from the destroyer Calda during a storm, was brought to a hospital here yesterday from Turbo where fishermen plucked him from the Gulf of Uraba near Panama. His body was a mass of blisters from the sun.

Velasco was found 300 miles from where he and the others were swept off the destroyer by a huge wave. He said he kept close to three of the crewmen during his first three days in the water but lost sight of them.

Billy Graham Leaves U.S. for Scotland

New York — (U.P.) — Evangelist Billy Graham left for a preaching tour of Scotland Saturday declaring that a religious revival within five years is the only hope of the world.

Graham sailed aboard the French liner Liberte to appear in 38 Scottish towns and cities, beginning with Glasgow.

He told reporters before he left that the West is on the decline.

"I am going this year with more of a sense of fear," he said. "A religious revival is the only hope of the world. We most absolutely have a religious revival in the world in the next five years if we are to survive."

are as bad for kids as dope. There's one sadistic ditty, 'Crack the Whip, Baby' that preaches you to beat up your wife if she doesn't love you."

Lookout Dedication Ceremony on June 25

Portland — (U.P.) — Army Engineers today said they were making plans for June 25 dedication ceremonies of the $89,000,000 Lookout Point dam project on the Willamette river.

More than 10,000 persons are expected to attend the ceremonies, according to Ivan E. Oakes, program chairman. Gov. Paul Patterson, Assistant Army Secretary Frank H. Roderick, and Assistant Interior Secretary Clarence Davis are scheduled to attend.

The south spilling basin would be used as a speakers' platform. Parking accommodations for 6,000 cars would be available.

The dam is located about 23 miles southwest of Eugene. Included in the dedication would be Dexter regulating dam and reservoir.

Einstein Observes 76th Anniversary

Princeton, N. J. — (U.P.) — Dr. Albert Einstein, intellectual father of the atom bomb, observed his 76th birthday today with no change in his lifetime daily habits to mark the occasion.

Princeton's most famous resident, who once said "birthdays are for children," planned to spend the day at home with his daughter, Margo, and his housekeeper and secretary, Miss Helene Dukas.

Demo Governors Get Bid to Aid Party

Washington — (U.P.) — Democratic state governors have been invited to take a hand in planning the party's 1956 national election campaign.

Asked if he remembered it was his birthday, the famed physicist and mathematician replied, "Yes, I knew it . . . other people told me."

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler asked them to meet here May 4 and 5 for huddles with party officials and congressional leaders.

Butler said he wants the governors to have a more important place in the party structure. He also feels they can contribute a lot to the campaign to recapture the White House next year.
