

'International Box Score' Suggested To Measure Steps Toward Disarmament

Monroney Hopes Stassen Will Try Measuring Device

Washington — (U.P.) — Sen. A. S. (Mike) Monroney suggested today an "international box score" to measure publicly the actual steps taken by any nation toward disarmament.

The Oklahoma Democrat said he hoped Harold E. Stassen, President Eisenhower's newly-appointed special assistant on disarmament proposals, would try to work toward setting up such an international measuring rod for disarmament progress.

Monroney said the "box score" would serve as a "thermometer" to measure the "belligerency temperature" of nations.

He said it could show the proportion of a country's productive efforts toward peace-time consumer goods compared to the percentage of production going into military goods.

Show Up Hot Air

Monroney said such a chart would show clearly which nations were actually doing something about disarmament and which ones were just talking.

Stassen was believed sure to give consideration to Monroney's suggestion since he made an appeal for suggestions.

He asked all Americans for "ideas, suggestions and comments" that might help him in his new post and admitted that his chief task at least at the start will be "a search for ideas" in trying to develop a "basic policy" on disarmament.

Stassen denied that creation of the new cabinet-level post was a "move away from the United Nations" and its disarmament attempts.

But he said it was clear that no decisions were being reached at the current London Conference of the UN Disarmament Commission. The United States is taking part in the conferences together with Russia, France, Britain and Canada.

A Balance Against War

Making Stassen's job of cabinet level also should satisfy, at least partially, various groups that for years have urged creation of a Secretary of Peace to balance the old Secretary of War position, whose duties now are consolidated in that of Secretary of Defense.

The United States has been seeking workable disarmament since the end of World War II. It offered at that time to give up its atomic monopoly to a world agency with international inspection. This later became the United Nations plan, but the Soviet Union rejected it.

Armed 'Freeze' Proposed

Last month the Soviet Union proposed a "freeze" on armed forces at Jan. 1, 1955, levels and an end to nuclear weapons. The United States and Britain objected to this plan which would have prevented the rearming of Western Germany, deprived the United States of its atomic strength, and left Russia with its overwhelming land power.

Amphibious Troops Establish Beach Head

San Simeon, Calif. — (U.P.) — The first assault waves of "Exercise Surf Board" hit San Simeon beach today at 7 a. m. in the major phase of a joint Army-Navy amphibious maneuver.

A "communique" from the front lines reported the first units of the 5000-man landing force established strong beachheads despite token resistance from "aggressor" forces dug in at the base of the Santa Lucia mountains.

Some 50 naval vessels, ranging from aircraft carriers to amphibious landing craft and submarines anchored close inshore just before dawn to disgorge the troops.

The training exercise primarily was to test the mobility of the 38th RCT of the Second division, stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., and cooperation of military forces.

Iron Curtain Hotel Rooms Said Below American Standard

Vienna — (U.P.) — If you're lucky enough to find a hotel room behind the Iron Curtain, chances are you'll have to share it with four other people, sleep between dirty sheets and cope with rain and wind because of broken windows. That seems to be the consensus of satellite newspaper reports.

A Polish salesman, writing in the weekly Swiat, said the beds in a Wroclaw hotel room "were unmade, the dirty floor was lit with cigarette butts, the wash basin was blocked with debris and the window panes were broken."

Most hotels in Bromberg, Poland, have been turned into offices, so travelers often must spend nights in the railway station. But rail officials usually chase them away before daybreak, one Communist paper said.

In Hungary, hotels and restaurants won't take responsibility for guests' baggage. A Hungarian traveler reported he had to drag his suitcase all over town because there was no place he could safely leave it.

One Tumbles Down

Towels are practically unknown in Hungarian provincial hotels, and guests usually dry themselves with bed sheets, it was reported.

Conditions in so-called first-class hotels apparently are no better. The Polish newspaper, Trybuna Ludu, reported that windows in Lemberg's Hotel Europa couldn't be shut, that stoves belched smoke but little heat and that doors could be shut but not opened.

Of the hotel's eight bathrooms, only two were working. Water taps were placed so far above wash basins that a miniature Niagara occurred when the water was turned on, Trybuna Ludu added.

In Prague, Czechoslovakia, 11 large hotels are still being used as offices. Pilsen, a city of 120,000, has only a single hotel in operation, while Iglau has only two of its original six hotels available.

But the Communists say they have big plans for the hotel industry. The Hotel Duzba in Prague is to become "the biggest building of the republic . . . 466 beds . . . winter garden on the 13th floor, splendid view from terrace on the 14th," according to the weekly newspaper, Aufbau und Frieden.

At least one new satellite hotel already has gone up—and come down. A Prague newspaper reported that the walls of newly built Green Tree cracked during a cold spell and the whole building collapsed a few hours later.

Students To Follow Lewis and Clark Trail

Portland — (U.P.) — Four Reed College students in Portland today were planning a hazardous 565-mile river trip from Orofino, Idaho, to Astoria, Ore., along a route followed by the Lewis and Clark expedition 150 years ago.

The modern explorers are Edward Larrabee, Spokane, Wash.; Kenneth Love, Lyndon, Wash.; Grey Smith, Idaho Falls, Idaho; and Dale Middleton, Edmonds, Wash.

The boys say they will start their river trek in Idaho June 14 and plan to arrive at Astoria "about two weeks later." They will travel in two kleeper boats, a German vessel which is a cross between a canoe and a kayak.

Abducted Texas Infant Found Safe; Charge Faced

Beaumont, Tex. — (U.P.) — A practical nurse and mother of three boys who abducted a girl from her hospital crib minutes after her birth will be charged with kidnaping today if her hysteria subsides.

The baby, Carolyn Sue Wharton, was found well and unharmed yesterday by police who cautiously traced the kidnaper, Mrs. Pauline Marie Schulze, 29, to Houston.

Doctor Denies Claim

The accused woman has insisted wildly since she was found with the infant early yesterday at Houston that she gave birth to the baby, even though a doctor who examined her said that wasn't possible.

Carolyn Sue, a healthy, blue-eyed little girl, was placed yesterday in the arms of her pretty, 28-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary Helen Wharton, for the first time.

Mother Not Told

Until her husband handed her a newspaper after the baby was safe again, Mrs. Wharton had been kept blissfully unaware of the dramatic events surrounding the birth of her third child. "It all seems like a dream," she said today. Meanwhile, hospital attendants said Carolyn Sue was "doing fine."

The infant was not taken from Mrs. Schulze until the baby's footprints, taken at birth in East Texas Baptist hospital, where she once had been employed while living in Beaumont for about nine years, and was identified by Mrs. Helen Mays, a nurse, as the woman who kidnaped the Wharton infant.

Mrs. Schulze was brought to Anderson by ambulance.

Identified By Nurse

She was carried into East Texas Baptist hospital, where she once had been employed while living in Beaumont for about nine years, and was identified by Mrs. Helen Mays, a nurse, as the woman who kidnaped the Wharton infant.

Mrs. Mays was on duty in the nursery Saturday, 30 minutes after Carolyn Sue was born, when a woman wearing a nurse's uniform and carrying a surgical mask, approached and said she would relieve her for a few minutes because Mrs. Mays was wanted in the hospital office.

Mrs. Mays, when she realized she had been tricked, rushed back to the nursery. The kidnaper, apparently snatching the first baby she saw, had grabbed the Wharton infant from the crib nearest the door and fled.

Capehart To Urge Galbraith Recall In Market Probe

Washington — (U.P.) — Sen. Homer E. Capehart said he will urge "with all his might" today that a witness who criticized the stock market boom before a Senate committee be called to testify again — this time on his political philosophy.

The Indiana Republican charged that the witness, John K. Galbraith, professor of economics at Harvard university, had written favorably of Communism. He also said "I believe Galbraith has certain philosophies toward the free enterprise system which disqualify him to be a witness on the stock market."

Galbraith, who had testified as a witness in the Senate Banking committee's "friendly" investigation of the stock market, accused Capehart of quoting him out of context when he read from a 1949 pamphlet of the National Planning association.

The pamphlet, Galbraith added, had the "general" support of Dr. Milton Eisenhower, brother of the President, and of Allen W. Dulles, brother of the secretary of state and head of the Central Intelligence agency.

Capehart said either the committee and its chairman Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), were ignorant of Galbraith's philosophies or they knowingly scheduled his testimony to "discredit . . . the American economy."

Up To Committee

Fulbright told reporters in advance of today's committee session that it would be up to the committee to decide whether to recall Galbraith. Asked for comment, he said:

"I don't know how to comment. I don't wish to bicker with Mr. Capehart in public. It's very embarrassing to be conducting a hearing with that type of man on the committee. I don't wish to engage in arguments over who's ignorant. It's not dignified."
