Air Force in Germany Has Difficult Housing Problem

Wiesbaden, Germany — (U.P.) — The U. S. Air Force in Europe, with a total resident population of some 187,000 airmen and dependents, is fighting its toughest cold-war battle — housing.

In France, North Africa and England, the problem ranks with plane strength and tactics, and it appears to be almost insoluble.

Air Force officials in Wiesbaden, headquarters of the complex network of fighter and bomber wings in Europe and North Africa, claim that current conditions are "making first-class American citizens into second and third-class people."

They say that almost 11,000 housing units are urgently needed to get people out of drafty, slum-type village houses, "tin huts" and trailers in France, Britain and North Africa and into units that at least have plumbing, heating and in some cases water.

Germany Okay

The problem has been licked in Germany mainly because this has been an occupied country. Housing units were requisitioned and confiscated. Entire Luftwaffe air bases in some cases were taken over complete with substantial housing. New units mushroomed around new bases — with the German government paying the costs as part of its occupation debt.

The Air Force in Germany expects to be out of its last requisitioned house and into all-American quarters within the next two years.

But the prospects outside Germany are depressing. Housing experts claim that no considerable new housing units have been built in France since the turn of the century. War damage has complicated the situation. The same situation, to a lesser extent, prevails in England.

The remote country location of new American fighter fields in France has almost hopelessly scuttled any quick solution except with unsatisfactory and uncomfortable "trailer camps."

Morale Factor

Many fighter pilots and their families are now living as far as 30 and more miles from their bases in central and western France — living in small French towns with heating and sanitary facilities that can only be classified as primitive by American standards.

This situation, Air Force officials stress, also constitutes a distinct morale problem.

"In many cases, the husband must drive 30 or 40 miles to his base — and he has to have a car because there's no other way to reach some of the country fields," one officer explained.

"He leaves his wife alone in a dismal apartment in a strange

Britain's Moral Clean-Up Drive Taken Up by Politics

London — (U.P.) — Britain's 18-month-old moral clean-up campaign has moved into the political arena.

Parliamentarians, church and civic leaders and even members of the cabinet are weighing legislation to wipe out prostitution, homosexuality, pornography and obscene literature.

The Churchill government lately has been so plagued with demands to ban the sale of so-called horror comics that two cabinet ministers have hinted at the introduction of laws to keep them off Britain's bookshelves.

The government also is faced with what has been described as "intensified activity" by prostitutes and pervers, while variety theatres are being scored for presenting "nude" shows to the exclusion of what is called "traditional British variety."

The comics at issue are those whose central characters, are ghouls or vampires, the "crime often pays" type, and others that exploit excesses and amoral acts.

One Firm Stops

The storm against this type of children's "entertainment" has reached such proportions that already the largest firm producing "horror" comics here

Keep Oregon Green Slates 10th Annual Poster Competition

Oregon Green Guard members are being invited to take part in the 10th annual statewide fire prevention poster contest sponsored each year by the Keep Oregon Green association.

The Green Guards, youth auxiliary of the Keep Oregon Green association, may enter contest posters from April 1 to April 30, according to Albert Wisendanger, executive secretary of KOG.

The junior division will include all members from 8 to 12 years of age, and the senior division those from 13 to 16 years. There will be four $5 cash prizes in each division.

There will be a $10 prize for the first place winner in each division. The winners will be presented with their cash awards by their local county Keep Oregon Green chairmen.

Rules Told

The posters will be 11 by 14 inches. Only one poster may be submitted by each Green Guard and must be his own work. On the back of each poster the Green Guards must print their name, address, age and school they attend. All posters will become the property of the Keep Oregon Green association after judging.

There are now over 56,000 boys and girls enrolled in the Oregon Green Guard.

Green Guards must use a fire prevention theme, and the posters will be judged on originality, relation to educational phases of fire prevention and artistic qualities. They may be in cut-outs, water colors, poster paint, oils, pastels or wax crayons.

All entries must be sent to the Keep Oregon Green association, PO Box 471, Salem, Ore.

Farmers Agree To Deer-Killing Truce

Forest Grove — (U.P.) — A truce has been declared between a Washington county farmer and son and the State Game Commission after 32 deer were killed in two days in an attempt to keep them from feeding on farm land.

Lester Lee, 56, and his son, Everett, 31, called off the shootings Saturday just before a caravan of local residents arrived to protest the killing. Some 25 of Lee's friends had also gathered at his 1200-acre farm near here to support his actions.

A pickup load of 15 deer, mostly does and fawns, was hauled away Friday and 17 more were killed Saturday as game officials and state police watched.

Everett said he and his father agreed to a truce after the Game Commission agreed to supply six herders to haze the deer with bird shot to try to keep them from feeding on the farm.
