Hollywood Oscar Night Now Disciplined TV Show

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Writer

Hollywood—(U.P.)—Oscar night in Hollywood has become a disciplined TV show, but in the old days the more informal event was colorfully sprinkled with bloopers.

Tomorrow four excited stars will collect top film acting awards at an academy awards presentation that has been "dry-run" into perfection.

Because of the demands of television, the players aren't allowed to make thank-you speeches or long-winded introductions. In the '30s and '40s such speeches livened up the affair.

Wrong Frank

One year the late Will Rogers was announcing the best director award. He talked on and on about "My good friend, Frank." Director Frank Capra was half-way to the stage when Rogers suddenly boomed, "The winner is Frank Cooper." Capra slunk back to his seat.

In those days the awards were handed out at a banquet. By the time the guests partook of dinner and juice of the grape, the speeches got longer and the reporters sleepier. One year producer L. B. Mayer put his arm around winning producer William Goetz and said, "I hope someday you'll be as big a man as I am." One wartime year director C. B. DeMille introduced the ambassador from China as from Japan.

When Greer Garson won for "Mrs. Miniver," she thanked you for 45 minutes. The year

Olivia de Havilland collected for "To Each His Own" she insisted the award should be shared by her 27 coworkers, and named them all. Other winners followed this modest pattern except writer Donald Ogden Stewart. He declared, "I want it clearly understood I alone am responsible for the success of 'The Philadelphia Story.' I have no one to thank but myself."

Hoagy Hugo

The year of Miss De Havilland's first victory was punctuated with slip-ups. Producer Samuel Goldwyn called song-writer Hoagy Carmichael "Hugo". The projectionist got the winning movie on the screen upside down. And backstage after the show Olivia snubbed her sister, Joan Fontaine.

At first the Oscars were considered too unimportant the press did not cover the presentations. The winners were announced two months before the banquet in the Motion Picture Academy magazine.

Later the winners were released to the press shortly before the banquet, and academy members read about it as they ate the dinner. Clark Gable delivered his acceptance speech to the press a full hour before he was handed his Oscar for "It Happened One Night."

Now more than 500 correspondents from around the world cover the academy event. But, as many reporters annually wail, "nothing happens at them any more."

Returns Home

Mrs. O. O. Alenderfer, 45 Ross court, arrived home Saturday morning after being at Baltimore, Md., for about 4½ months. She visited there with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, former Medford residents. While there Mrs. Alenderfer with Mrs. Cunningham made trips to New York City and Washington, D. C. While in New York they visited the United Nations building.

GEM MINERAL CLUB FILES

Salem—(U.P.)—Articles of incorporation were filed here today for the Roxey Ann Gem and Mineral club of Medford, nonprofit. Objectives were listed as the improvement of members in the art of cutting and polishing gem materials, and the collection, study and exhibition of minerals. The articles were signed by Harry Marx, Jack Crump and Frieda Smith.

Travelers Back From Far East Tour, Trip to Rome

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Goldy, 35 Berkeley way, who left here on a trip to the Far East last November arrived home the end of the week.

The couple made the trip to and from the Orient on freighter ships of the Klaveness Norwegian lines. On each ship, the one over and the one on which they made their return, only 12 passengers were on board. The return trip took 20 days from Hong Kong.

Their first port of call on the way to the east was at Manila, P.I., and they also visited while in the Philippines at Ilo Ilo and Cebu.

From there they made the crossing of the China sea to Hong Kong and still on the same ship they went to Singapore, through the straits of Penang and stopped at Port Swettenham. Though not off ship at Sumatra they did make one port call there.

They returned to Singapore and then to Djarkarta, making a plane trip from there to Bali where they visited for a week. They also visited the mountain city of Bandung returning again to Djarkarta before leaving for Singapore where they spent two weeks, then on to Bangkok for four days.

The Goldys went by plane to Hong Kong where they visited with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Barnett and Mrs. Barnett's mother, Mrs. Lewis Humphrey, all formerly from Medford. Mr. Barnett is with the Pan-American lines. During their three-week stay there they also visited Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grey and son Todd, known here from their visits with Mr. Grey's uncle, Herb Grey, and Mrs. Grey, 42 South Barneburg road. Robert Grey represents Asia foundation at Hong Kong.

Press Women Elect New State Leader

Salem—(U.P.)—Rebecca Tarshis of Portland is the new president of the Oregon Press Women.

She was elected at the final session of the group's annual workshop here yesterday.

Other officers named were Corabelle Hills, Bend, vice-president; Claire Lyon, Portland, secretary, and Genevieve Morgan, Salem, treasurer.

Perfect Couple!

The first stop was at Shannon, Ireland, where the group on the plane had breakfast and then continued on for a brief stop at Paris, France, and at Geneva, Switzerland. Fog hindered a view of Paris but Mr. Robbins described the flight into Geneva a particularly beautiful one.

He arrived Sunday, March 13, at Rome and spent the majority of the time there, making side trips to Naples, Pompeii and Amalfi drive to the Bay of Naples.

He also made a trip to Florence and at Assisi attended services at the church of St. Francis of Assisi and visited there the Franciscan monastery. A friar showed him through the chapels and various parts of the monastery. There he viewed paintings which had been done by St. Francis.

Back in Rome he also attended a military concert held outdoors in one of the old ruins near the famed Coliseum.

Vestiges of the damage done during World War II at Naples was apparent, especially to former industries and railways, Mr. Robbins said.

He was particularly impressed with the fact that everyone, regardless of station, appeared well dressed both in style and manner. The shops also were filled with well-styled apparel for both men and women and of good materials, he explained.

The weather he found especially good and spring flowers and crops were in bloom.

Mr. Robbins made the trip alone and decided only a short time before his vacation to make the trip to Italy. Because of the briefness he went without hotel reservations but found accommodations without difficulty and the people friendly and eager to show him about their cities. He is employed in the collections department at First National bank, Medford branch.

Wives To Blame For Failure of Men in Kitchen

New York—(U.P.)—The woman's to blame if the only time Pop comes into the kitchen is to see what she's cooking.

More men would do more of the actual meal preparation if they were given a little wifely encouragement. And properly handled, the men wouldn't leave a trail of dirty dishes for the women to wash up.

This optimistic outlook on men as cooks comes from Andrew A. Wilson, a bachelor, and the only man entered in the recent national cooking contest of Pillsbury Mills.

Wilson, an elementary school official in West St. Paul, Minn., cooks as a hobby. He said feminine interference discourages a lot of men who otherwise would take up kitchen - putting the same way they take up golf or stamp collecting.

"Trouble is," said Wilson, in an interview, "the wife won't let the husband cook his own way. She has to be in there bossing the proceedings. . . usually giving a progress report on what he's doing wrong. So what happens? After a while, the man just gives up."

Wilson's advice to any woman who would like to see her husband cook a meal now and then: "When the man's in the kitchen, you get out. Let him learn by the few mistakes he will make."

Getting him to wash the dishes is another matter.

"Just point out it's easier to wash as you go along," said Wilson. "If this doesn't work you have the perfect argument for getting an automatic dishwasher."

Dorcas Federation Of Southern Oregon Meets in Medford

Two-Piece Suit Back For Wear at Beaches

New York—(U.P.)—The two-piece bathing suit is back in sketched form than during its earlier spell of popularity.

Not that the nation's beaches will bloom out exclusively in bikinis come summer. But the trend to the bared midriff is here. One suit already showing at southern resorts is the "Cleopatra," a two-piece sarong style designed by Milo Anderson for Catalina.

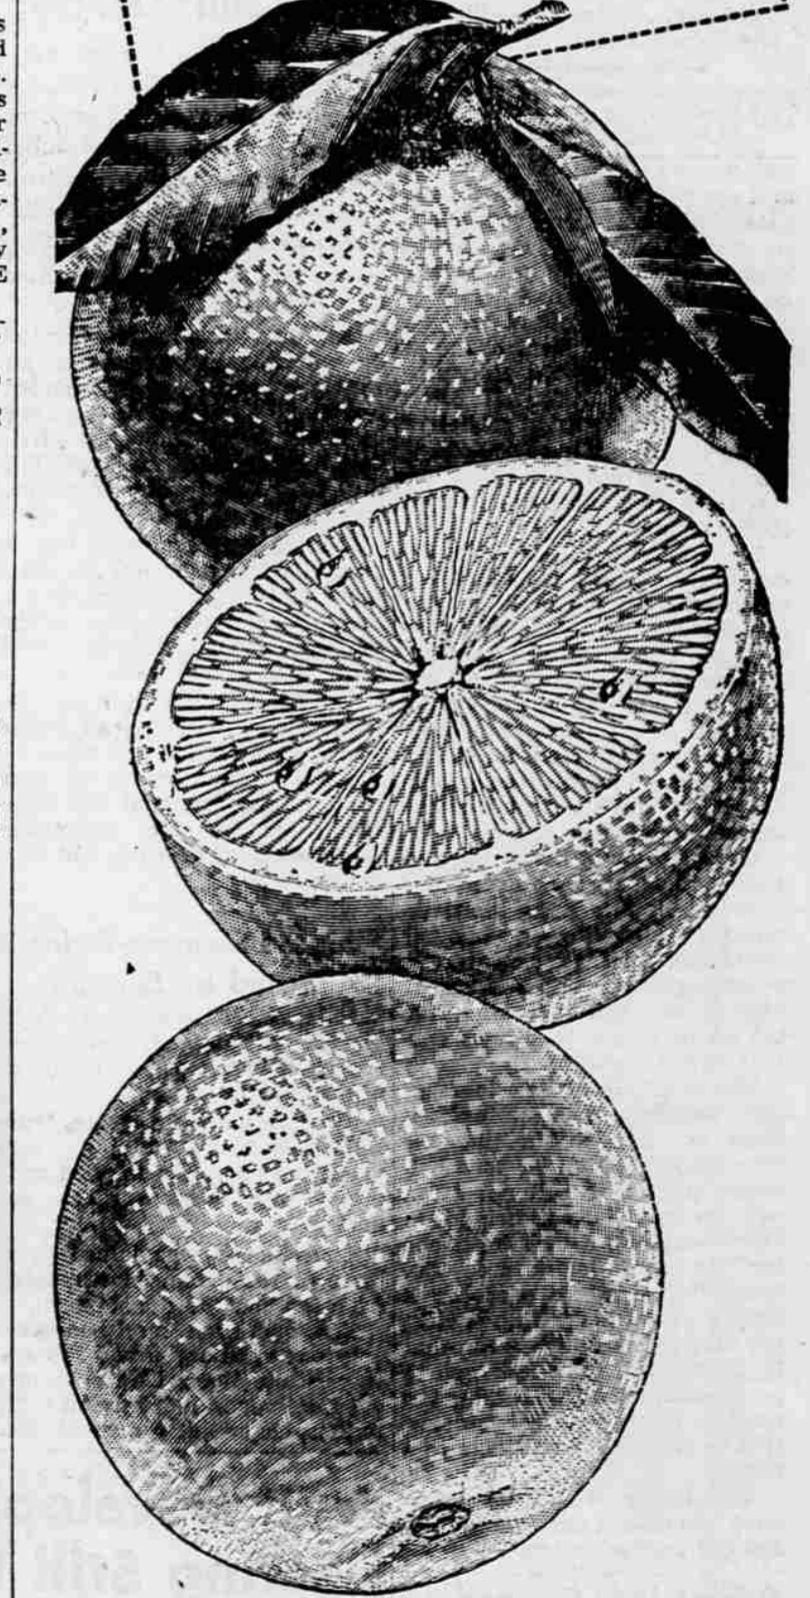

This, one inspired by the Egyptian influence in fashion in general, was described by one wit as the closest thing yet to what the Egyptian working girl of the Fourth Dynasty wore—which was nothing.
