

Visiting Newsmen See Warsaw; Tell of New Construction; Unrest

(Editor's Note: Ohio newspaper man Robert Dix and Texas radio station owner Marshall Formby are among a group of American editors visiting Czechoslovakia, Poland and Russia. The following dispatch sizes up their reactions after a visit to Communist Warsaw.)

Warsaw, Poland (Delayed) — (U.P.)—This is a city of construction projects, music and political question marks.

In this city of nearly a million souls, which was 80 per cent destroyed during World War II, the reconstruction miracle goes on speeding to a conclusion that will make it a show place.

There have been 250,000 flats built here since the war. And still the effort goes on, with officials hoping for housing enough in 1970 for 2,000,000 persons.

Russians Build "Symbol"

In the center of Warsaw is a symbol which reminds the Poles on whose side they are. It is the huge Peace Palace of Science and Culture designed by Soviet architects and built with Soviet material by Russian labor as a gift for the Polish people. It will be completed in July.

Politically, a person can't tell much from a surface look. Except for the fact that the Americans are definitely on the other side in this competitive effort, the official press is not as vicious as it once was, those who live here say.

In the last two years there has been a definite "easing" of the situation. There is no question about where those who have a vested interest in this project stand.

But those who ought to know say the natural leaning of most of the Poles is still to the West. That's hard to believe with the intensive "russification" program that has been and is going on.

At a reception given us by the Warsaw press, we editors discussed the French ratification of the Paris treaties dispassionately. The hope of Warsaw newsmen is that Russia and the United States will find a modus vivendi—a peaceful solution to their many problems.

Churches Crowded
In this land where about 90 to 95 per cent of the people are Catholics, the churches are overflowing with people. Interest in religion is on the increase.

Prices are extremely high. It is difficult to figure them out exactly for the exchange rate is so artificially high that we can't buy anything.

In their effort, it takes a laborer from 20 to 40 days to buy an ordinary pair of shoes. But food is somewhat cheaper and seemingly plentiful.

Eighty per cent of the farms are still in private hands, but

Thief Lifts Payroll
During Stop on Street

Pusan — (U.P.) — A thief lifted a $7,426 U.S. Army payroll from a jeep when it stopped at an intersection.

Jeep Driver, Pfc. Gary C. Bast, Arnold, Neb., and Capt. William A. Needham, Providence, R.I., said they thought the bag had been taken through the rear window by using a stick with a hook at its end.

the government continues its effort to create more state farms. Here, as we have found in other Communist countries, private farms produce the most food, with the cooperatives less efficient and state farms running a poor third.

What happens to this country of 26,000,000 in the next few years is the big question mark. No one yet knows the answer.
