Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY. United Press Correspondent

Editor's Note: This is the second of a two-part series on the Oscar winners.

Hollywood — (U.P.) — Before Grace Kelly was asked to work in "The Country Girl," Producer William Perlberg wrote a note and locked it in his office drawer: "The girl who wins this part wins the Oscar."

Perlberg's prediction came true. Today, Grace, a newcomer who snared the role only because Jennifer Jones got pregnant, reigns as the queen of filmdom.

"I was very anxious to play such a wonderful part, but I was very nervous at the beginning, especially after Mr. Perlberg told me about the note," the new Oscar winner said today.

"Paramount went out on a limb to borrow me from MGM and I kept worrying about maybe what if I disappointed them."

"While we were making the picture, Bill Holden won his Oscar. He kept telling me that the next year he'd be giving me one."

Like a Vogue Picture. Grace was sitting in the patio of the Bel-Air hotel, looking more like a picture from Vogue than a movie queen. She wore her usual horn-rimmed glasses, no make-up, Bermuda gray flannel shorts and a beige silk blouse casually unbuttoned. She carried a sheaf of congratulatory telegrams that still are pouring in.

She was her serene, reserved self today, but said that on award night, "I was a nervous wreck."

"When I presented the documentary awards I forgot my lines," she laughed. "I'm so nervous I couldn't see the teleprompter. All I could do was throw Bob Hope his cues."
