Thirteen Little Girls Enter Pear Blossom Festival Queen Contest; Public Votes Invited

Thirteen little girls, ranging in age from 2 to 6, have been entered as contestants for election as queen of the Rogue Valley Pear Blossom Festival April 23.

Their pictures, their names and their contest sponsors appear elsewhere on this page, as does an official ballot which can be used by residents of the valley in voting in the contest.

Ballots must be in the hands of the judging committee not later than 5 p. m. Thursday, April 14. They can be mailed or taken to the office of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce, 5 South Riverside ave.

The youngster with the largest number of votes will be declared queen of the festival, and the next four will become her princesses.

Application blanks for entries in the Blossom Festival parade have been distributed to Medford school youngsters, and when they are completed they may be returned either through the schools or to the chamber office. Deadline for parade float entries is April 21, two days before the parade.

Parade participants are limited to those 12 years old or under. Floats are being kept small this year. There will be no self-propelled vehicles, and pets must all be suitably caged, leashed or otherwise controlled.

The annual festival is sponsored by Medford merchants through the Rogue Valley Pear Blossom Festival association, which filed articles of incorporation as a non-profit corporation Friday with the corporation commissioner in Salem. Diamond L. Flynn, former Medford mayor, is chairman, and other incorporators are Granvil Brittsan, Mayor Earl M. Miller, Eugene Ferrell and Elliott D. Becken.

Two Men Hospitalized For Logging Injuries

Two men injured in logging accidents were brought to Community hospital by Medford Ambulance service Friday and Saturday.

George H. Robbins, Skeeters Camp, Prospect, was brought to the hospital Friday morning for treatment of a broken leg suffered when a log struck him while at work.

Henry Paulson, 53, Route 1, Box 528, Gold Hill, suffered a mangled leg and other injuries at about noon Saturday while at work near Sardine creek. He reportedly was pinned between a rolling log and a snag. He was in surgery Saturday afternoon.

Child Guidance Clinic Drive for Membership Association Open

The annual membership drive of the Southern Oregon Child Guidance Clinic association opens tomorrow, according to officers of the group.

Mrs. Earl Lawson and Mrs. E. L. Lenox are co-chairmen of the campaign, and said letters are being mailed to more than 600 persons, present and prospective members.

The organization is one of the chief supports of the child guidance clinic which has been in operation in Medford since September, 1953. The $2 membership fee, in addition to helping the clinic, entitles the member to attend the annual meeting in May, and to vote for directors who formulate the policies of the clinic.

Tremendous Growth

There has been tremendous growth in the services asked of the clinic in the past year, it was reported, and requests have come from all parts of the county.

Three types of service are offered — interviews with children and their parents for diagnosis and treatment of emotional disturbances; consultation with professional people such as doctors and teachers, and a general education program in the field of mental health.

Dr. John Waterman, Portland, psychiatrist and director of the mental health section of the state board of health, directs the clinical services, and visits here on an average of once a month. Miss Mary Vandenberg, a psychiatric social worker, is the full-time member of the clinic's staff.

The office is in Room 307 of the Leverette building, and membership applications may be mailed there.

Will Show Film

In connection with the membership drive, the film "Angry Boy" will be given a public showing at 8 p. m. tomorrow in Room B at the Medford YMCA. Following it a discussion of problems presented by the film will be led by Roy Tibbets, child welfare supervisor for the Jackson county public welfare department.

The film shows a boy who has gotten into trouble at school and with his family during the course of a visit with his parents to a child guidance clinic to receive help, and how assistance is given.

The film will be shown again Tuesday, April 12, at a meeting of the Junior Service League at 12:20 p. m. at the Rogue Valley Country Club. Mrs. John Waterman, wife of the psychiatrist and herself a psychiatric social work consultant for the state board of health, will lead the discussion.

Dr. Waterman will speak to the Medford Rotary club at noon that day. The meeting will be at the Jackson hotel.

Post Office Clerks Said Opposing Bill Now in Congress

Medford's post office clerks are "greatly concerned" that a postal pay and job bill now pending in the House of Representatives will "endanger their positions and salaries," according to Hamilton Ecker, secretary of Local 342.

"H.R. 4644, now awaiting House action, poses many serious problems to all post office employees, but its reclassification provisions will especially harm the clerks," Ecker said. He said the projected shakeup of postal positions is "especially inequitable and unfair" to the postal clerks.

The reclassification scheme is primarily aimed at splitting the present clerk category and would place "tremendous powers" in the hands of post office department officials about salary grades for employees, according to the clerk's union official.

The promotion features of the bill are also "distressing," he declared, "affording a bonanza of opportunities for use of postal and partisan politics. The bill is being advertised as providing 'equal pay for equal work' and 'rewarding merit' but our study of the measure reveals only inequities, discriminations and large loopholes for favoritism and politics," he added.

"The local post office clerks," he said, "consider the measure a very bad bill and apparently most members of the House of Representatives agree with us, for they defeated by 302 to 120 vote an attempt to ram it through the House."

Post office clerks here continue to support S-1, a postal pay measure which was recently overwhelmingly approved by the Senate, according to Ecker. This measure provides for a 10 per cent wage increase and leaves out "destructive reclassification features."

"If Congress believes that reclassification is necessary, we suggest that it follow the procedure outlined in the bill vetoed by the President last year. That is, establish a commission made up of Senators, Congressmen, post office officials and employee representatives to study the problem," he said.

Officers of the association will be at noon tomorrow at the YMCA.

New Toastmaster Club Officers To Be Seated

Douglas Roach will be installed as president of Medford Toastmasters club Monday evening at the Medford hotel. He succeeds Warren G. Beard.

Other officers to be seated are Dick Knights, first vice-president; Foster Hibbard, second vice-president; Adam Richter, secretary-treasurer, and Dr. Tom Anderson, sergeant-at-arms. Installing officer will be Al Bradford, past governor of Area 3 Toastmasters International.

Hibbard won the inter-area speech contest between area 3, Southern Oregon, and area 8, Southwestern Oregon at a contest held last week at Grants Pass and will enter the State Contest of Toastmasters International to be held in Salem April 23.

Missing Man 'Found' Through M-T Article

City police said that a man listed as missing in Halifax county, Virginia, has been located and is living in Talent.

Officers here received a query from the Halifax county sheriff recently concerning the whereabouts of Lewis Edward King. An article stating that Long was being sought was published in the Mail Tribune.

A friend of Long's saw the item and told him about it. He came into the police station Friday night. Long, who left Virginia in November to look for work, is now residing at 303 South Second st., in Talent.

Burglary Suspect Waives Hearing; Two Plead Guilty

Edgar Delbert Bentley, 25, Stockton, Calif., arraigned in district court yesterday on a charge of burglary not in a dwelling, waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury.

He is held on $3,500 bond in connection with the Feb. 23 safe burglary at Elk City market.

Bentley was returned here from Stockton on Friday by Deputy Sheriff Guy Hughes and State Police Sergeant Russell Brendle.

Pleads Guilty
Wayne Edward Ralph, 211 East 12 st., entered a plea of guilty on two counts of forgery in circuit court Friday and his case was continued for sentencing pending receipt of FBI records.

The plea was entered on district attorney's information. According to city police, Ralph admitted in a signed statement forgoing the name of Hamilton Hinkle Fox, Box 592, Ashland, to several checks ranging from $25 to $92.50.

The district attorney's office reported that a 17-year-old Butte Falls boy also entered a guilty plea to a charge of larceny from a store building. His case was continued for sentencing. The larceny involved thefts from the general store at Butte Falls. He was one of two juveniles arrested in the case.

COW PALACE SCENE — Charles and Truman Elmore, brothers who belong to the Applegate 4-H club, were also at the exposition. Both showed angus cattle, but are pictured above with a hereford steer which the photographer picked as more photogenic than their own cattle. Charles Elmore was on a team of three 4-Hers which placed third in the livestock judging competition. Top individual honors were taken by another Jackson county boy, Bob Fisher.
