

Pythian Groups Makes Plans for Dinner Dance

Pythian club will meet at Girls' Community club Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. with Mrs. C. G. Whitney and Mrs. Walter Cummings as hostesses.

Pythian Sisters met last Tuesday evening with Mrs. George Thomas presiding.

Committees were appointed for a penny dinner planned for April 23. The Sunshine Girls will also help and it was voted to give them $10 for their assistance.

The Medford group will present the men's initiation work at the district convention to be held in May.

It was announced that the Sunshine Girls will hold a formal dance April 30 at the Pythian building and Pythian Sisters are invited to attend.

The refreshment committee for the evening was Mrs. W. L. Walden. Mrs. Jimmy O'Duane and Mrs. Elsie Casebeer. The committee for the next meeting will be Mrs. Chester Baker, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones and Mrs. Bostwick.

Two additional card parties were held recently for the Past Chiefs' club.

Hostesses for one party were Mrs. Harry Barneburg, Mrs. Don Anderson and Mrs. H. Howard. Thirty-one were present with prizes received by Mrs. Joe Cook, Mrs. W. L. Michael, Mrs. John Fugill, Mrs. Alice Lawrence and Mrs. Ludwig. Additional prizes were also given at each table.

The second party was given by Mrs. Joe Cook and Mrs. Ida Ireland with 26 in attendance. Prizes were won by Mrs. Carl Fichtner, Mrs. Jess Wagner, Mrs. George Thomas, Mrs. Ed Wall and Mrs. George Bryant.

Past Chiefs' club met last Wednesday at the home Mrs. Mabel Nicholson, with 11 members present.

From School

Here for Easter vacation are Jimmy Kelly and Joe Anthony, students at Santa Clara university, Santa Clara, Calif. Young Kelly is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Kelly, 906 West Fourth street, and young Anthony's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Anthony, East Main street. They will return to school today.

Disarming!

A disarming study in black and white jersey and white chiffon by Oleg Cassini. The portrait neckline is edged in white to set off the black of the bodice and tiny sleeves. The long waist is closely sheathed, the chiffon skirt is full blown and billowy.

Potpourri

The Eugene Thorndikes, who set out last December to visit the Canary islands, never did get there. After arriving in Europe many discouraged the travelers from going to the islands, so they spent their time visiting cities in Spain, Portugal and North Africa.

In spite of their limited knowledge of Spanish, the Thorndikes traveled a great deal by public buses on which they would be the only foreigners. They found the Spaniards and Portuguese friendly and helpful, and thoroughly enjoyed their trips and visiting numerous small towns and villages.

There was much complaining about the hard winter in Europe, they report, with travelers going further and further south in an effort to escape the cold. Mrs. Thorndike still believes that for a winter climate, Florida with its warm sun and beaches with dazzling white sand, cannot be surpassed.

Mrs. Ethel Chadwick, home from Arizona, reports that Phoenix experienced its coldest winter in 50 years. "But it really wasn't cold," said Mrs. Chadwick. "Whenever the temperature falls below 50 degrees in Phoenix, everyone starts to scream."

Eula Wintermute, extension agent, was lecturing to Upper Applegate unit last week on "how to live within 24 hours" when three little girls supplied her with a perfect example of how every homemaker's schedule should allow time for emergencies.

The little girls locked themselves in the bathroom, and the entire meeting was suspended until the crisis passed. While the three girls, Marcia Sample and her sister of Sterling and Janeen Williams of 189 Vashti way, Medford, shed tears in the bathroom, their mothers tried unsuccessfully to get them to unlock the door.

A delegation moved outside to inspect a very small high window, and at length when the situation became desperate, Mrs. Lance Offenbacher climbed a ladder and dived through the window.

Mrs. William Ziegler, unit correspondent, reports that the meeting was in the home of Mrs. John Byrne, grandmother of Janeen Williams.

Sometimes we have editorial courage, and again we don't. But Ann Connell of the Eugene Register-Guard has had the courage to say something which we've been wanting to say in print, for a long time, and so we're going to quote Mrs. Connell, and add our word of approval.

Mrs. Connell says she doesn't approve of strapless evening gowns on high school youngsters, particularly when their escorts are wearing everyday suits of grey or brown. The Eugene society editor also wrote of the problem of publishing engagement pictures which show only bare shoulders and bosom, which reminded Potpourri that once we did summon enough nerve to refuse to publish such a picture, forcing the girl to bring in a second one which showed a portion of the gown.

Mrs. Connell wrote: "But then, we frequently smile wryly as we use the white wax pencil to dummy in a 'lace' yoke on some engaged girl's bosomy photo, realizing we probably shall go down in newspaper tradition for just this thing! Well, let it be said we 'died trying!' There is the old tradition of bridal modesty, which bids the bride shall wear her bosom and shoulders covered. An engagement picture surely is bound by the same tradition, so we try to uphold it. (And even if some thoughtless brides go to the altar in strapless gowns, albeit covered by bolero, we do not so declare it.)"

"We also grow irked at women's organizations which frequently demand to know why they cannot be known by their 'own' names, instead of their husbands'—as May, Sylvia and Hazel, not Mrs. Thomas, Richard and Henry. We wearily reiterate that this is the social department, and so it is traditional that their names be used as they would appear on visiting cards. They never are used without the title of Miss or Mrs. going before, if they have reached the teens. (To brides, we insist that each name be the 'baptismal name,' not a nickname, since few of these girls have had experience with visiting cards. Some, it appears, have not heard of baptismal names, either.)"

"Small things, these? So are straws in the wind! In this world of revolution against tradition and form, we think women could well be on guard to preserve the courtesies which long have been considered their due. If they have a professional name, well and good—let them establish it in their profession, as brightly as they can; but let them be gracious enough to wear their married name as proudly. (Doesn't it prove them more a woman, successful in two fields?) And instead of bickering after false equality, it seems to us they would do better to be active in use of the true equality of voting citizenship which is theirs. Women of the Soviets, we understand, are Comrade Sonja and Comrade Vera, but they work in the streets. American women, we think, should preserve the niceties—should go on teaching their sons to stand when a woman enters."

In the future when Potpourri is feeling old, tired and discouraged, we're going to think about C. C. Chapman. We met Mr. Chapman at the State House in Salem and soon discovered that he is one of the most colorful individuals there.

Now 79 years old, Mr. Chapman has been attending sessions of legislatures for almost 60 years and two weeks ago was busy observing the 1955 Oregon law-makers. "Chappie," as he is affectionately called by the news men, may be almost 80 years old but he's as keen as the youngsters and when he says something, they listen. This interesting man founded the Oregon Voter in 1915 and during the years he has published the magazine, has acquired a vast storehouse of information and knowledge about Oregon, its political figures and life.

Old enough to have sense about dressing, Mr. Chapman wears well cut business suits, a tiny flower in the lapel of his coat, and well polished, comfortable leather house shoes which he takes off the minute he sits down.

Mr. Chapman, venerated and respected by his colleagues, is a fine example of how to grow old.

In a report just released for the year 1955 from the United Nations it is shown that each United States citizen's share of UN costs annually is 56 cents. The United States military budget, in contrast, is nearly $400 per year per person. The 56 cents includes the UN budget and this nation's contributions to such projects as the Technical Assistance program, Korean Reconstruction agency, UNICEF and the Relief and Works Agency for Palestine.

Mrs. H. P. Bosworth, in the Tribune office with the story of the wedding of her son, Harlan, peered out the window at the old car which E. M. Tucker had just driven up to the curb. "Why that looks like a White steamer!" she exclaimed and five minutes later learned she was right.

"My stars, wait until son David hears about this," said Mrs. B. "He thinks it's terrible because I can't tell the difference between a Chevrolet and a Cadillac. He'll never believe that I recognized a car more than 40 years old," O.S.

Gather your family around the table and then bring this Cheese Souffle with Corn Flakes Topping directly from the oven to the table. The crisp corn flakes add an unusual texture to the cheese souffle. Serve the souffle with individual tossed vegetable salads, bran muffins, grape jelly, milk to drink and fresh fruit for dessert.

Cereal Festivals were celebrated in mid-April about 500 B.C. by the Romans to solicit protection for growing grains. The modern version of this celebration is the Spring Cereal and Milk Festival sponsored by the breakfast cereal and dairy industries to promote the food value of cereal and milk. Cereal and milk complement each other in both food value and appetite appeal. Besides providing calcium, cereal and milk also contribute other important minerals (phosphorus and iron), B vitamins (thiamine, niacin and riboflavin), top-quality protein and food energy.

The ingredient use of cereals and milk in main dishes provides an attractive way to encourage adults, and children too, to get their daily requirements of this nutritious team.

Cheese Souffle With Corn Flake Topping
2 1/2 cups corn flakes or whole wheat flakes
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 cups milk
2 cups grated American cheese
4 eggs, separated

Crush 2 cups of corn flakes or whole wheat flakes slightly. Melt butter or margarine, add flour and seasonings and stir until smooth. Add milk gradually; cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from heat; add cheese and stir until melted. Fold crushed corn flakes or whole wheat flakes into mixture. Beat egg yolks until lemon colored; blend into saute. Beat egg whites until stiff; fold into cheese-egg mixture. Turn into greased 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle remaining 1/2 cup corn flakes or whole wheat flakes around edge of casserole. Place casserole in shallow pan of water. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) until done, about 50 minutes. Yield: 8 servings.
