

Red China Delegates Due on Plane Trip

Court Airs Integration

Washington — (U.P.) — Lawyers for Negro groups told the Supreme Court today that Southern states seek an "interminable continuation of racial segregation" in public schools.

They made the statement in briefs as the high tribunal opened hearings on how and when separate school systems for white and Negro children should be abolished. The court ordered the arguments last year when it ruled that segregated schools are unconstitutional.

Attorneys general for the border states of Kansas and Delaware led off today's oral arguments with optimistic reports on how integration has progressed in their states.

No Positive Plan To Carry Out Decision

Attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, representing Negro parents in four of the five original segregation cases, contended that none of the states has come up with any positive plan to carry out the court's decision.

The arguments, the NAACP said, "seem to be directed against ending racial segregation in our time, rather than toward desegregation within a reasonable time."

Representatives of Southern states will present their oral arguments tomorrow and Wednesday. They generally maintain that immediate integration might produce violence.

Attorneys for Negro groups, however, contend that an abrupt shift is the best way to solve the problem.

Court Must Decide

Method of Operation

The Supreme Court first scheduled the arguments, expected to last about three days, when it struck down last May the doctrine that "separate but equal" school facilities for whites and Negroes are constitutional. The court now must determine how its historic decision should be carried out.

Kansas, first of 10 states to be heard, said that as far as it is concerned there is no need for further Supreme Court action. Almost all schools in the state now admit children regardless of race, Atty. Gen. Harold R. Frazier told the court.

Delaware reported that integration has worked out smoothly in the northern section of the state. But it said that southern counties, where there is strong pro-segregation sentiment, should be allowed time for "a gradual transition program."

Other Recommendations Due

The positions of the state were set forth in briefs that are followed closely by attorneys arguing before the high tribunal.

The District of Columbia, Virginia and South Carolina, the other parties to the original segregation suits, will present their recommendations Tuesday.

They will be followed by the Justice Department, representing the administration, and Florida, North Carolina, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Maryland and Texas. Each side is allotted one hour.

The District of Columbia, where integration already is taking place, reported in its brief that no further court action is needed in its case.

South Wants Unlimited Time

But all of the southern states joined in asking for unlimited time to lower school color bars.

Immediate integration would not work, they assert, and might wreck the existing public school structure because of public opposition.

The administration asked the justices to allow lower federal courts to handle the integration problem and to order that it be accomplished as rapidly as possible. However, the Justice Department added that consideration should be given to the problems of southern states in setting any deadline for compliance.

Corsi Turns Down Substitute Post Offered by Dulles

Administration Faces Loss of Support

Washington — (U.P.) — Edward J. Corsi, ousted as State Department immigration adviser, today rejected a substitute post offered him by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

A spokesman for Corsi said he notified Dulles of his decision by letter today. The spokesman issued this brief statement:

"Mr. Corsi has notified the secretary by letter this morning that he regrets his inability to accept the secretary's offer. He has no further comment at this time."

To See GOP Chairman

Corsi planned to see Leonard W. Hall, chairman of the Republican National committee, during the day. The firing of the Italian-born New York Republican has provoked a storm of protests from Republican groups and some Democrats.

Corsi was appointed Jan. 10 as Dulles' special assistant on refugee and immigration problems. He was told last week that the post was a temporary 90-day job and that Dulles could not continue him in it because his security investigation had not been completed. However, he was told there was no question about his security status.

Survey Job Offered

However, Dulles offered Corsi a job surveying immigration possibilities in Latin America and other underdeveloped areas. Corsi's family said today that at present he has no future plans.

Corsi said last week he was amazed and shocked when told his job was a temporary 90-day one. He said he was fired for his previously expressed opposition to the McCarran-Walter immigration act.

The Corsi-Hall conference was disclosed on the heels of a warning from the Columbia Republican league of New York that the administration faces the loss of support of 1,400,000 Italian-Americans in New York state because of the Corsi ouster.

The Group's Executive Committee

telegraphed President Eisenhower urging him to overrule Dulles. The telegram said "the Corsi fiasco, after the highest praise by Dulles only three months ago, shakes to the very core the confidence of our people."

Salk Prepares Report Showing Anti-Polio Vaccine Successful

Francis Findings On Mass Testing Scheduled Tuesday

Reports Expected To Reveal Effectiveness

Ann Arbor, Mich. — (U.P.) — Dr. Jonas E. Salk has prepared a scientific report which shows that his anti-polio vaccine is a success in the vast majority of cases, it was learned today.

The New York scientist will read his report tomorrow at the same scientific meeting at which

A closed circuit telecast for the medical profession on the Francis evaluation of the Salk polio vaccine will be held at station KBES-TV tomorrow from 3 to 4 p.m. It was announced today. Members of the profession from the station's coverage area are invited, the announcement said.

Dr. Thomas Francis Jr. will deliver his long awaited report on last spring's mass testing of the vaccine in 1,800,000 children.

Based on Testing

Dr. Salk's report is based on the doctor's testing of his vaccine among more than 8,000 children and adults in the Pittsburgh area. It was prepared without knowledge of the contents of the Francis Report.

It is reported that the two reports will bear out generally held belief that the Salk vaccine is effective in most instances.

In the minds of the involved scientists there hasn't been any doubt of the worth of the vaccine for over a year, when Salk's long and detailed series of experiments, first in monkeys, then in human beings, demonstrated that it could and did protect against all of the three polio virus types.

To Prove Effectiveness

The big purpose of the mass testing with so many children was to prove the effectiveness of the vaccine on such a large scale and so dramatically that there couldn't be the slightest doubt about it and no one anywhere could fail to know that means of wiping out polio was eventually at hand and was both cheap and easy to use.

And so Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. the results of the mass testing will be disclosed by Dr. Francis.

Scientific 'Stars' Attend

The National Association for Infantile Paralysis, which has spent $10,000,000 for the vaccine and the mass testing, assembled an audience of some 500 scientists from all over the country to hear the triumphant culmination of its long fight to conquer the crippling disease. The program itself at which both Dr. Francis and Dr. Salk will read reports, was star-studded—scientifically speaking.

Meanwhile, Dr. Francis was putting the last touches to his report. It will go to an offset printer today for duplicating in large numbers, and it was understood private guards will be inside and outside the printers to see to it that no one gets a premature look.

Three Distress Messages Heard; Search Started

Declared Possible Ditching in Water

Hong Kong — (U.P.) — An Indian airliner carrying nine members of the Chinese Communist delegation to the African-Asian conference at Bandung, Indonesia, was overdue today and feared crashed on a flight from Hong Kong to Djakarta.

Airline officials said the plane left Hong Kong at 8:31 p.m. (PST) last night, and was due to arrive in the Indonesian capital at 3:50 p.m. (PST) today.

R. N. Kaul, manager in Singapore for Air India International, said that he was unable to confirm that the chartered aircraft from Hong Kong had ditched east of Singapore.

Confirmation Sought

He said the plane was overdue, but he was trying to obtain confirmation from Djakarta and other points on the whereabouts of the craft.

He said the last report he received came about 1:30 a.m. (PST), but he was unable to pinpoint the position of the plane at that time although he said it probably had passed Saigon, Indochina, by then.

Three distress messages from the plane were reported picked up at Kuching, the capital of Sarawak.

It was not immediately clear whether other passengers were aboard the plane with the Red delegates to the conference.

The number of crew members aboard was not known immediately.

Flying Boat Searches

A British Royal Air Force flying boat was reported to have taken off from the naval base at Singapore to search the South China Seas and the numerous islands in the area for signs of possible survivors.

The SOS report raised speculation that the plane may have been ditched in water rather than have crashed, and therefore survivors may be afloat in rubber life rafts.

In Los Angeles, a spokesman for Lockheed Aircraft said that Air India Airlines has advised them that a Constellation transport, manufactured by Lockheed, was "down in the South China Sea."

May Sessions Seen For State Legislature

Salem — (U.P.) — Some Oregon legislators who predicted a week ago the current session would adjourn April 28 have changed their minds. They felt the session might continue into May.

Biggest hurdle was the delay in adopting or rejecting the House tax program which may not be reported on for a week.

House Speaker Edward Geary said he hoped the Legislature could be through by April 28, but added that he would insist on completion of all important legislation.

Twenty-three bills were on the House calendar for today, seven of them originating in the Senate. The Senate had 16 bills slated, 13 of them originating in the House.

Most of the House bills concerned appropriations reported out by the joint ways and means committee.

Radio Highlights

A speech by Adlai Stevenson, in which he is expected to state his stand on the Formosa crisis, will be carried over radio stations KYJC (1230 kc) and KMD (1440 kc) at 10:30 p.m. today.
