

Nationalists To Bear Responsibility In Defense of Matsu, Quemoy Isles

Eisenhower's Advisers Declared Backing Away From Earlier Stand

Washington—(U.P.)—The Chinese Nationalists will bear the primary responsibility of defending the Quemoy and Matsu islands under present administration policy, it was learned today.

Some of President Eisenhower's top advisers were reported backing away from their earlier stand that the United States has no course but to defend the offshore islands if they are attacked by the Chinese Reds.

Several Reasons

There are several reasons for a change of mind by the advisers, it was said, including the attitude of U.S. allies and the belief that Americans generally are not in favor of getting involved in an all out war over the islands.

Some top policy officials in the administration apparently believe that the Chinese Nationalists could defend the islands if they are given enough U.S. materials of war.

These officials also feel, it was said, that strengthening of Chiang Kai-shek's forces on the outpost islands might discourage the Communists from making a major attack against them.

Officials Tightlipped

These are considered two of the main reasons for President Eisenhower's refusal to indicate in advance what the United States will do about defending the islands.

Informed officials in the administration are more tightlipped about the situation than ever since Adm. Robert B. Carney's background talk with newsmen.

But officials close to the problem believe the President will withhold his decision on defending the islands until they are actually attacked in order to weigh the nature and seriousness of the challenge.

Stevenson Will Tell Position on Formosa Crisis in Major Talk

Chicago—(U.P.)—Adlai E. Stevenson, titular head of the Democratic party, will break a silence of four months tonight to tell the nation where he stands on the Formosa crisis.

It was expected that the 1952 presidential candidate would oppose any attempt to involve the United States in war over the Nationalist-held offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Stevenson's speech, billed as "non-political," was to be broadcast nationally over two radio networks—the Columbia Broadcasting system between 7 and 7:30 p.m. (PST) and the National Broadcasting system, in a recording, between 7:30 and 8 p.m. (PST).

The former Illinois governor has not made a major speech on national issues since last December. He decided to speak out in response to a "heavy volume" of mail asking his stand on foreign policy, a spokesman said.

Many Support President

Stevenson, now in private law practice here, wrote his speech during the week end. He offered no hints as to its contents, but friends said he is anxious to give the American people a clear picture of what he thinks is at stake in the Far East.

His speech will also spell out where he differs with the Eisenhower administration's policy of guaranteeing protection of the Chinese Nationalist bastion of Formosa and of hinting protection for Quemoy and Matsu, Stevenson's friends said.

On the other hand, friends said, Stevenson may support Mr. Eisenhower in his differences with Republicans who demand a more vigorous Far Eastern program.

Stevenson's speech was sure to be watched for indications of where a sizeable wing of the Democratic party stands. It was reported that he began his speech writing with a draft prepared by Democratic foreign policy experts, including former Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

However, Stevenson's law partner, William McCormick Blair, said the address will not be cleared with party leaders in Washington because it does not deal with party politics.

Whether or not it is "political," the speech may help determine the former candidate's position in his own party. Stevenson has been prominently mentioned as the Democrats' most likely 1956 candidate, if he wants the nomination. But Stevenson has given no indication of whether he will run again.

Policeman's Search Ends at Door Step

Jacksonville, Fla.—(U.P.)—Policeman M. J. Byrd Jr., searched all day for a stolen car driven by a man also wanted for passing bad checks.

He went off duty at midnight without finding a trace of the car or its driver. As he stepped from his auto at home a man stepped from the bushes brandishing a knife. Byrd drew his service revolver and disarmed the man.

He took a closer look. It was the man he had hunted all day and the car for which he had been searching was nearby.

"I was just driving around looking for a room for the night," the man protested.

"I think I can find you one," Byrd said as he snapped on the handcuffs.

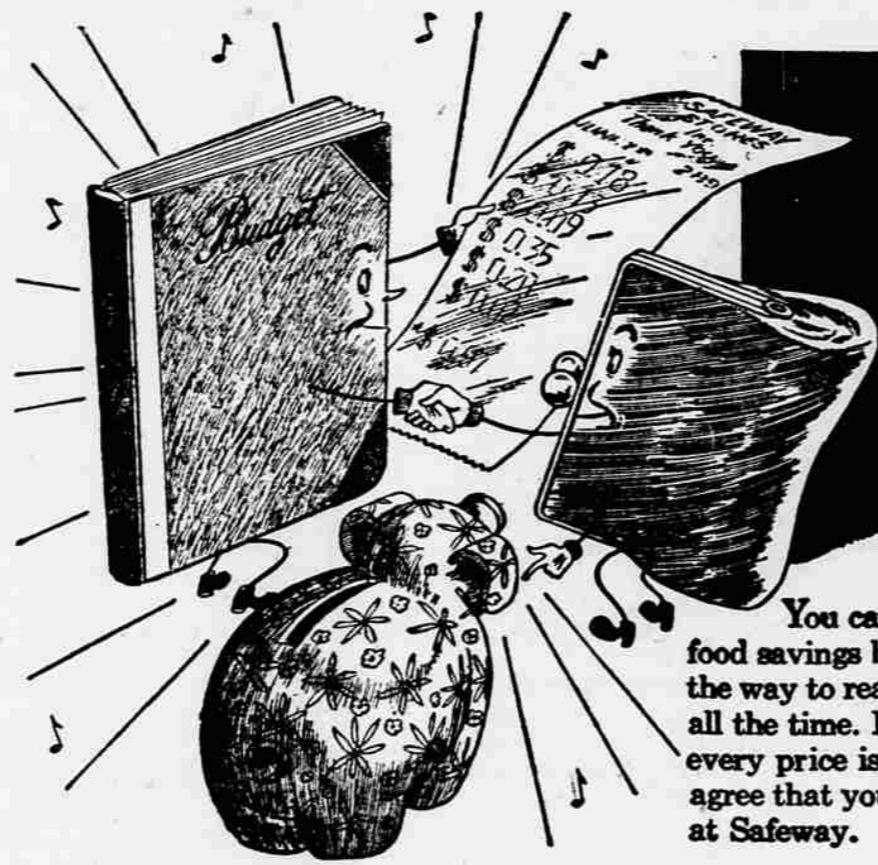

BE PROMPT

Hartford, Conn.—(U.P.)—Motor Vehicles Inspector Charles F. Kelley said wives should see to it that their husbands are punctual. "It's the wife who waits in line when her husband forgets to renew a license or registration," he said.

POLITICAL BIAS

Hastings, Neb.—(U.P.)—The woman didn't have to tell anyone how she felt politically when she resisted her organization's plan for a white elephant sale. She wanted it changed to a white donkey sale.

Less than 2.5 per cent of Americans over 14 years cannot read or write any language. Most of the illiterates are found to be in the older age groups.
