

Surplus Military Stockpiles Offer Variety of Goods

Washington — (U.P.) — If you have need for an airplane fuselage or two, several miles of railroad track or an assortment of bags, barrels, baskets, or egg crates, you should notify your Uncle Sam.

Chances are he can find them for you among his stocks of military surplus.

These stocks, which become surplus as a result of wear and tear and changing military needs are made available to the public by the armed services through property disposal offices located at various military installations in 25 states, the District of Columbia and overseas.

The Department of Defense continuously reviews its scattered assets to assure that only property needed now or in the foreseeable future is kept on hand. Surpluses are catalogued by the disposal offices and information as to their nature is forwarded to prospective civilian buyers. This property may be available through the various disposal offices.

Military surplus is classified as usable and salvage or scrap and waste. A buyer, however, may consider these stocks differently than the armed services. Many usable items are to be found in both classifications, and those in the first are graded according to a condition code.

A prospective buyer who is listed with the disposal offices is informed of the types and condition of surpluses to be made available in advance of sale in his area. He also is notified of the time and place of sale and invited to submit a bid for the materials he may want, if bidding is to be the procedure used for disposal. In any case, whether disposal is to be undertaken through bidding, auction or retail sale, he is mailed a descriptive catalogue giving him full information on the sale.

A person wishing to get on property disposal bidders' lists simply writes to a military disposal office in his geographical area, giving his name and address and listing the types of surplus he would like to buy. A list of the location of all disposal offices may be obtained from any armed services installation or by writing to the Department of Defense, Washington, D. C.

DARING RESCUE WORK by Rosemary Pacheco, 13, saves three younger sisters and younger brother from probable suffocation after fire broke out in first floor flat just below their's in Chicago. Rosemary led three children down smoke-filled stairway to street and then returned for 11-month-old Theresa (in arms). Smoke was too thick for another exit so she called from window for help and dropped baby to telephone worker. (International)

Career Officer Picked As Envoy To Viet Nam

Augusta, Ga. — (U.P.) — G. Frederick Reinhardt, a State Department career officer, was nominated today by President Eisenhower as the new ambassador to Viet-Nam.

Reinhardt will replace Donald R. Heath, who was recently transferred to Lebanon.

Father Pawned Suit; Son Tries Suicide

Indianapolis — (U.P.) — A 14-year-old boy said today that he tried to kill himself because his father took the boy's Easter suit, which he bought with money saved from delivering newspapers, and pawned it to buy liquor.

The boy became ill at school Tuesday. He was given emergency treatment at a hospital and told authorities he took two overdoses of sleeping pills. At first, the boy said, he had planned to drown himself in a creek but rejected the idea.

He said he bought the new suit with money saved from delivering newspapers. He wore it Easter Sunday. Then, he said, his father pawned it.

"I felt so bad, I wanted to die," the boy said.

Stevenson Accused of Appeasement Sermon

Taipei, Formosa — (U.P.) — Chinese Nationalist officials today privately accused Adlai E. Stevenson of preaching "appeasement" in his speech Monday night in Chicago.

All officials questioned on Stevenson's proposal in the Formosa situation said they were disappointed. But none of them would permit use of his name.

One official said "anything that tends to compromise with the Communists is appeasement and you cannot get far with the Communists by appeasing them."

Atomic Explosion Again Postponed

Las Vegas — (U.P.) — The Atomic Energy commission today postponed for the fourth time a 400-foot tower nuclear blast set for tomorrow on Frenchman's Flat.

The AEC said unfavorable weather conditions caused the postponement. The detonation originally was scheduled as the second part of a two-shot experiment last Saturday.

Another weather evaluation was planned for tomorrow to determine if a firing will be possible Friday.

More Bad Weather Slated in Oregon

By UNITED PRESS
A storm that raked Oregon's coast with winds of more than 60 miles an hour and dumped up to an inch and a half of rain quieted down today but the weather man said more bad weather was in the making.

The storm hampered shipping at the mouth of the Columbia river where gusts of wind up to 63 mph were reported. At Newport a 205-foot tower of radio station KNPT blew down and a supper club's window was smashed and part of the roof blown away.

Rainfall totaled 1.5 inches at Newport and Salem during the 24-hour period ending at 4:30 a.m. today. North Bend had 1.44, Brookings 1.36 and Portland .96.

Small craft warnings were up from Newport north today for winds up to 30 mph with stronger gusts expected tonight. A storm lurking off the coast might bring more bad weather this weekend, the weather man said.

Chains Said Needed To Government Camp

Salem — (U.P.) — Motorists traveling to Government Camp were advised by the State Highway Department today to carry chains.

Eight inches of new snow fell in the area overnight. No report was received from Timberline. Chains also were advised at Warm Springs Junction with an inch of new snow.

Motorists were cautioned to carry chains when traveling the Santiam pass and Willamette pass.
