In Junior High school Barbara Ann Ogden, ninth grade, daughter of Earl L. Ogden, 301 Columbus avenue took first place and Sharon Picard, another ninth grader, daughter of Roy Picard, 3400 Jacksonville highway, was second.

Elementary school winners were Mary Lou Moore, sixth grade student in Jackson school and a daughter of S. T. Moore, 1416 West Tenth street, first; Bruce Hanson, sixth grade student in Washington school and a son of Cliff Hanson, 538 West Tenth street, second; Yvonne White, sixth grader from Roosevelt school, daughter of Karl White, 4024 Crater Lake avenue, honorable mention, and Janice Cox, sixth grade student in Lincoln school and a daughter of T. W. Cox, 527 Beatty street, honorable mention.

Judges were Otto Wilda of Southern Oregon college; Herb Grey, Medford Mail Tribune advertising manager and Clifford Platz, Medford artist.

The posters are on display at the central office of Medford public schools until Saturday noon for those who wish to view the winners.

The poster contest is held annually before the Memorial day sale of paper poppies held by the Legion auxiliary to raise funds for its welfare projects. The poppies have become the symbol of sacrifice made by men during World War I and subsequent conflicts, since they were the one flower which survived war's destruction and bloomed in the cemeteries of France and Belgium where the soldier dead were buried.

The paper replicas of the poppy are made during the year by veterans in hospitals throughout the nation, and sold by the Legion auxiliary. In Oregon they are made at hospitals in Portland, Roseburg and Camp White, Medford. Auxiliary members point out that the memorial poppies not only honor the dead but aid the living.

Veterans who make the poppies also derive double benefit from the work. It gives them employment—the only chance for many of them to earn any money—and the funds from the sales then go for welfare projects for veterans and their families. The auxiliary provides the materials and the veterans are paid two cents for each poppy made.
