

DAR Resolution Critical Of Eisenhower's Policies

Washington — A series of resolutions sharply critical of President Eisenhower's policies on atomic energy, foreign aid, reciprocal trade and federal help for schools were passed this week by Daughters of the American Revolution meeting here.

Reports from the convention were to the effect that the president's atomic energy pool-for-peace plan was singled out for special disapproval by the DAR. The group also approved a resolution asking Congress to drop "Citizens day" in favor of the original "Constitution day" on September 17, the measure declaring that "Citizenship day" has emphasized a citizenship idea which tends to fall into "world citizens' type of propaganda."

Washington (U.P.)—President Eisenhower angered the Daughters of the American Revolution today because he failed to make a personal appearance at their 64th annual congress which is meeting only two blocks from the White House.

Some of the daughters were reported "absolutely furious" that Mr. Eisenhower sent only a brief message to greet them on the last day of their meeting. The Congress program had announced that both President and Mrs. Eisenhower "have accepted the invitation to the 64th Congress" and delegates had been anxiously awaiting a promised personal visit all week.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who to the daughters' delight became a member and personally greeted the DAR in 1953, bowed out earlier in the week, choosing to remain at the presidential farm at Gettysburg, Pa.

But there still were no hard feelings until the President still failed to show after returning to Washington. Nothing, at least, like the 20-years of "no speaking" between presidents and the DAR during the Roosevelt-Truman days. That started when former President Roosevelt addressed the Daughters as "fellow immigrants." Mr. Truman did nothing to heal the breach.

The Daughter's president—less last session today was devoted to the last of committee reports, installation of new officers and other unfinished business.

Camp Fire Girls Plan Candy Sale

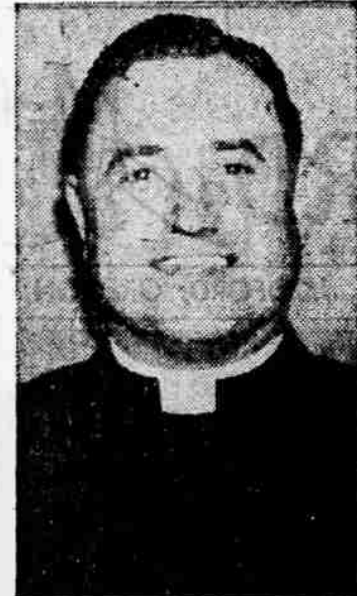

Medford and Eagle Point Camp Fire Girls will hold the annual spring candy sale April 23 to May 7. Through the sale the girls have an opportunity to earn campships to Camp Ester Applegate at Lake o' the Woods and to add funds to their group treasuries for supplies. The girls will sell Miss Saylor's chocolate mints made and packaged in Alameda, Calif., especially for Camp Fire Girls. Because of a domestic peanut shortage and inferior imports there will not be any peanut brittle sold this year, those in charge state.

"Your purchase of Camp Fire candy helps bring to all girls the services of this great character building organization," a leader stated. "Camp Fire teaches love of country, brings glamour to simple everyday tasks and explores with its members the exciting frontiers of science, citizenship, business and the creative arts. All this and more is offered by Camp Fire to your daughter and your neighbors' daughters and you help when you patronize the Camp Fire sales girls during their candy sale."

What was probably the first formal plan initiated by an employer in the United States for pensioning employees after the age of 60, was launched in 1875.
