

SOC Cast Works on Production

Ashland — "The Man Who Came to Dinner," the three-act farce by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart which will be presented by an all-college cast May 5, 6, 7, has presented some interesting acting problems to the Southern Oregon college producers.

The leading character, the frascible Sheridan Whiteside, (Stafford Thomas), spends most of the play in a wheelchair. Professor Adolph Metz, (Francis Chasman) is busily trying to perfect a German accent for the role of an "expert on insect life," while Beverly Carlton, a British playwright, (Paul Sherier), is working on an English accent, and on a song which will probably never be on the "hit parade."

Jan Cozzalio, the actress who calls everybody "dahling," finds the role she is playing far different from the one she has in real life, that of a student, wife and mother.

The unfortunate Miss Preen, played by Audrey Russell, has to suffer Whiteside's complaints at each night's rehearsal as well as undergo strange treatment at the hands of one of Whiteside's unpredictable friends, Banjo, a Hollywood character, Jim Thomas. It's small wonder that she says, "If Florence Nightingale had ever nursed you, Mr. Whiteside, she would have married 'Jack the Ripper' instead of founding the Red Cross."

Most of the members of the cast have the problem of adding years to their ages, but those who have to add the most gray hairs are Mr. Stanley, the business tycoon, played by Ron Lamb; his social-climbing wife, Arlene Redmond; and his mysterious sister, Marilee Titus. Mrs. Dexter, (Ina Feero), and Mrs. McCutcheon, (Virginia Beach) friends of Mrs. Stanley, appear to grow older at each rehearsal.

Other interesting characterizations being developed are: Dr. Bradley, whom Whiteside describes as "the best horse doctor in town," played by Randy Brookshire; Maggie Cutler, Whiteside's secretary who has fallen in love with a "breezy" smalltown newspaper man, Bert Jenks; June Stanley, (Patsy Roberts) who wants to marry an organizer in her father's factory, Dick Puckett; and her brother, Richard, a "shutterbug" played by Jay Davison.

The cast is looking forward to the night when JoAnn Norton in the role of Sarah, one of the "three best cooks in the world" starts using "real props." Cliff Cain joins the cast as the harried butler, and Gilbert Ellis is Westcott the radio production man who copes with celebrities.

Small roles are being taken by Gary Fleming, Hal Titus, Paul Clute, Keith Lockhard, Jim Womack and by some of the members of the production staff.

Star Clown, German Acrobat Of Ringling Circus Married

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

New York — (U.P.) — Ladecies and gentlemen . . . step right this way to see the only wedding party of its kind . . . a clown charivari performed today only . . . to celebrate the marriage of famed clown Emmett Kelly and acrobat Elveria Gebhardt.

The star clown and the tiny blonde acrobat from Leipzig, Germany, have decided to have a morning wedding so they wouldn't be late for the matinee of Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus in Madison Square Garden.

Only a few circus friends were invited to witness the simple civil ceremony, performed by Mayor Francis J. Murphy of Cliffside Park, N. J., in the Edgewater, N. J. home of Joseph A. Skelly, county registrar of vital statistics.

Circus Sentiment

But circus sentiment got the best of the clowns. They stayed late in the deserted circus headquarters Wednesday night to rehearse their clown charivari. It was hastily substituted for the three-minute clown baseball game usually staged during the matinee performance.

There was a beachball painted black and a chain made of rope to attach to Kelly's tattered trouser leg. And a bouquet of flowers with a rubber band to fasten around the clown's neck so the flowers would snap back in his face as he handed them to the 22-year-old bride.

"If I'd had more notice, I could have fixed up more things," Paul Jung, the clown in charge of the charivari said apologetically on the eve of the wedding.

Kelly, 56, whose ragged, pathetic figure has made millions laugh since he joined his first circus 35 years ago, began going out with the youthful acrobat a year ago. Last week they announced they would be married.

Kelly, a quiet, serious man who paints and reads in his spare time, asked his circus friends not to make "too much of a to-do" about his wedding. He was married twice previously to circus aerialists and has two sons, Emmett Jr., 29, a railroad switch-tender and Thomas Patrick, 19, a Marine. Both marriages ended in divorce.

"This will work out," Elveria said confidently. "Emmett is so good and kind and we get along so well together."

"She's a wonderful cook," the sad-faced clown said. "I think her stuffed cabbage rolls are the best."

The bride's kitchen for the next seven months will be a corner of Kelly's seven-by-seven foot stateroom on the circus train. She already has it equipped with an electric hot plate and an electric broiler.

Physical Fitness Of Children Is Speakers' Topic

Research has shown that children in this country are less efficient physically than are European children according to Miss Mary Bowman, who spoke at a meeting of Jackson County Classroom Teachers' organization April 18 in Eagle Point High school. Miss Bowman is physical education supervisor for the Oregon State Department of Education.

In speaking of the physical fitness of children, Miss Bowman stated that it is a matter of grave importance since the welfare of every nation depends upon the physical fitness of its youth.

Miss Bowman stressed the point that the final results of physical education were the things which every instructor should bear in mind in planning the program of activity needed by every child. Children of today have much less opportunity for activity than did those of a few years ago, she said adding that every child needs to develop strength, agility, and stamina.

The speaker brought out the fact that there is a direct relation between physical and mental health. "It must be remembered that 80 per cent of a child's recreation is of a physical nature," Miss Bowman said, and also pointed out that good citizenship may be a direct result of properly taught physical education. She said competition is not bad when properly handled, and that good intra-mural programs will go far toward providing the desired results of the physical education program.

Following dinner served by Eagle Point Parent-Teacher association, the group was entertained with an instrumental solo by Claudia Griffin, a student in the high school music department. The upper grade chorus under the direction of Mrs. F. Blaar presented three selections. Miss Lila Hartzog presented a group of freshmen girls in a series of tumbling acts.

The evening concluded with a business meeting over which Mrs. Orva presided. Boyd Gibson served as program chairman for the evening.

Oil rags and those used in painting are fire hazards when thrown into uncovered piles. Spontaneous ignition can result. For safety, place such rags in a galvanized steel pail.

Talent Seniors Are Trained for Lumber Industry

Talent — Talent High school commerce seniors plan to seek employment in the lumber offices of Medford and vicinity upon graduation in late May.

These girls have received extensive training in lumber invoicing during the past several weeks, the high school states. Their training has included taking the information from the loading tally, figuring the board footage on an electric calculator, computing freight, and typing invoices.

Five girls have had two years of shorthand dictation and transcription training and all have studied typing, filing, payroll, dictaphone, and duplicating. The commercial course also trains the girls in proper office etiquette and office attire.

Mrs. Irma Parr, commercial department head, has been complimented many times by receiving requests for Talent trained secretaries from employers located quite some distance from the Medford area, it is reported.

Talk on Panama Is Planned for Legion Auxiliary

Miss Laura York will have charge of the program at the pan-American meeting of the American Legion auxiliary which will be held at the Legion home, Tuesday evening, April 26. Panama is the country chosen for study in auxiliary units for this year, and the program will be planned around the music and people of that republic.

Mrs. W. H. Sutter, who resided in the Panama Canal zone for six years, will speak at the meeting. During the business session, plans will be continued for the annual memorial poppy drive. The Legion memorial poppy is made by veterans in hospitals from materials provided by the auxiliary. The donations from those wearing the poppies provide funds for the rehabilitation of veterans and their families. The poppies will be offered to the public on May 28, so that people may wear the memorial flower on Memorial day.

Mrs. Edward Leach will report on the progress of the selection of local girls to attend Girls' state.

Mrs. Earl Bigelow, local chairman for child welfare, will report on the activities of her committee and will introduce a speaker from the Jackson County Public Welfare office.
