

Flu at Camp White Said 'Old Fashion' Type of Sickness

Camp White — The epidemic of mild influenza which necessitated a quarantine at the camp was similar to the "old fashion" flu, according to Dr. C. K. Todd, chief medical officer.

The exact type of the malady, described as an "upper respiratory infection" will not be known until reports have been received on tests of samples of blood sent to the laboratory for analysis.

The extent to which precautions avoided the incidence of pneumonia or other complications may be attributed to the use of antibiotics, Dr. Todd emphasized.

No Flu Deaths

No deaths were found to be due to the flu, he said. The morale of the men during the quarantine was another factor contributing to the success of the treatment. Members accepted the situation as a matter of routine.

From a high of 150 men stricken the first week, the number has diminished to two or three cases a day, which the authorities accept as a normal number admitted to the infirmary.

Credit was extended to the medical staff and nursing corps which functioned smoothly and efficiently to care for the overflow of patients.

Influenza Leads List of Diseases

Influenza, with 117 cases reported last week, continued to lead the list of communicable diseases in the county, according to the public health department. There was a total of 169 disease cases.

Eighty of the flu cases were at Camp White, compared to 150 the week before, when the epidemic necessitated a quarantine of the domiciliary. The quarantine was lifted last week. The other flu cases included 16 in Medford, 12 in Ashland and smaller numbers in Talent, Gold Hill and Rogue River.

There were single cases of infectious mononucleosis, infectious hepatitis and tuberculosis. Other cases listed included 27 of measles, 9 of chickenpox, 6 of mumps, 4 of scarlet fever, 2 of pneumonia and 1 of scap ringworm.

Jaycees Embarrassed Father Aids Son In Greeting President To Learn Army Ropes

The effort of Junior Chamber of Commerce leaders to give Buckner the red carpet treatment, turned into a comedy of embarrassing errors.

Thomas O'Brien and William Wolfe were to meet Buckner's plane at 11:30 p.m. At 10:15 they telephoned the airport to see if it was on time. The plane had already arrived. They were still apologizing to Buckner on the drive back to town when a tire went flat.

When Buckner finally reached his hotel, he indicated he was going straight to bed. Then they discovered the reservation had been made for the wrong night and the hotel was filled. A room for Buckner was found in another hotel.

The next day, when Buckner started to read his speech at a Jaycee board meeting, he was interrupted by loud crash. A huge sign in back of him, reading "Welcome Buck," had fallen off the wall.

Fort Riley, Kan.—(U.P.)—America is strange to 17-year-old James Papoulias. But he won't have to learn the ropes alone. His father will help.

When Sgt. 1/c Arthur J. Papoulias finally succeeded in bringing James to America, he tried to refrain from talking the boy into joining the Army. He leaned over backward to permit the boy to make up his own mind.

James did just that. He enlisted. He said he wanted to follow in his father's footsteps, learn English, get an education, and serve his new country.

Papa Papoulias was delighted. James became a private right after Christmas and was sent to Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., for initial processing. Later he was scheduled to report back to Fort Riley to soldier with his father.

The sergeant said his youngest son, George, is in Athens, Greece. He is 16 and wants to enroll in an American school, learn English, and then have a talk with the recruiting sergeant of the 10th Infantry Division.

The sergeant said the Army could use another Papoulias.

Boy Dodges Vaccination; Drowns While Swimming

Shreveport, La.—(U.P.)—Tommy Lee Tipton did not want to go to school Monday because Salk polio vaccination shots were scheduled, his mother said, and he went swimming instead. In the early afternoon the boy, eldest of six children, was found drowned in Cross lake. His body was recovered about 10 feet from shore.

Northwest Indians At Celilo Festival

The Dalles — (U.P.) — Indians from all over the Pacific Northwest have gathered here for the last of the Celilo Salmon Festivals. The event will end tomorrow night with a tribal dancing contest.

Flood waters of The Dalles dam will cover the Indian village and the festivals, which have been held yearly since before the coming of the white man, will be no more. Chief Tommy Thompson, 100 years old this past year, started the festival Sunday with a blessing of the salmon in the Indian long house.

About 92 per cent of America's farms have electrical service.

MEDFORD
ASSEMBLY OF GOD
1108 WEST MAIN ST.

For nearly thirty years the Medford Assembly of God has been an integral part of this community, ministering to an ever-increasing number of spiritually-minded families. This is, however, the first time that the church has been host to the statewide District Council of the Oregon Assemblies of God. We count it a privilege that Medford can be host to this convention, and we trust that our many friends in the valley will enjoy the fellowship with the ministers and members of our Assemblies of God.

Convention Speaker

REV. RALPH M. RIGGS
General Supt.

REV. RALPH M. RIGGS is serving his second year as General Superintendent of the General Council of the Assemblies of God. Prior to becoming the General Superintendent, Rev. Riggs served the denomination as the Assistant General Superintendent for many years. He also served the Southern Missouri District as its Superintendent, and for a number of years was pastor of the Central Assembly, the headquarters church, in Springfield, Missouri. He has been closely associated to the Bible schools and colleges of the denomination, having served as Secretary of the Education Department since its origin. Rev. Riggs is an author of note and his books have made a great contribution to the phenomenal growth of the Assemblies of God.

Host Pastor
Rev. F. Wildon Colbaugh

Rev. F. Wildon Colbaugh has been a member of the Medford Assembly of God since its beginning. Upon graduating from Medford High School in 1933 he attended Oregon State College, and graduated from Central Bible Institute in 1939. Following a six-year period of ministry in North Carolina he went to Springfield, Missouri to become associated with the Foreign Missions Department of the denomination. He served as editor of the Missionary Challenge, missionary publication of the Assemblies of God, for six years. He came to the local pastorate in October, 1953.
