'Survival Town' Granted Reprieve By Adverse Winds

Atomic Test Site, Nev.—(U.P.) The Atomic Energy Commission called off today's scheduled atomic blast 45 minutes before shot time because of adverse winds.

The AEC postponed the test for another 24 hours, until Thursday morning.

This created a king-size transportation and hotel reservation headache, since some 4,000 observers, civil defense workers and newsmen already were on the site awaiting the blast.

Long Caravans
They would have to be returned to Las Vegas in the long caravans of buses and automobiles, a two-hour trip. And once there they would for the second time begin the work of setting forward their hotel and transportation reservations prior to their return to their homes all over the country.

The Las Vegas area and the test site here, 75 miles northwest of Las Vegas, have been the target of a severe windstorm for the past 24 hours. But winds had tapered off from 80-mile gust velocity to 25 miles per hour and meteorologists forecast a possible drop to 12 miles per hour by shot time, scheduled for 4:15 a.m. (PST). With that forecast, the AEC went ahead with its preparations.

Fate Delayed
Thus the fate of "Survival town, U.S.A." was held in abeyance another 24 hours at least. Survival Town is the scattered,

Atomic Plant Work Limited by Strikers

Albuquerque, N. M.—(U.P.) Work at the Sandia Corporation secret atomic device plant was limited to office routine today as 2500 AFL workers continued a "long haul" strike for higher wages and other benefits.

Executive Secretary John Deitz of the Atomic Energy labor management relations panel flew here yesterday a few hours after the strike began. The Atomic Energy Commission requested that he try for a "peaceful settlement of the issues" between the AFL employees and the Sandia Corporation a subsidiary of Western Electric.

Deitz was expected to meet separately today with union and company representatives. But he cannot guide the dispute into arbitration until the workers go back to their jobs.

EASY ENOUGH

Charleston, W. Va.—(U.P.) Charles W. Fox decided to enlist in the West Virginia National Guard, but first he had to get his parents' permission. His father gave his approval—naturally. He is Brig. Gen. Charles R. Fox, state adjutant general and state commander of the National Guard.

Marauding Eagle Attacks Youth; Terrifies Woman

Spokane —(U.P.) A terrified woman told game department officials today a marauding eagle had attacked her 14-year-old son and "has us so scared we don't dare go outdoors."

Mrs. P. A. McKernan said the huge bird had raided her farm at Colbert twice a day for about a year and that her son, Pat, had fought with it three times.

His latest battle was Friday morning when the eagle "came out of nowhere" and dug his long, razor sharp talons into the family's pet collie dog. The dog howled in pain and the boy ran to help it.

"Pat grabbed the eagle with his hands but it got away, circled and dropped down on him like a shot," she told Game Supervisor Bob Henstreet.

"Its wings hit the boy on the back of his head and knocked him down, dazed," she said. "Then, when he was down, the bird swooped down and dug its talons into his back. Pat hit the bird with his fist and grabbed it by the neck, but it got away for a bit, then came charging back again.

"Pat kicked the eagle in the chest and it flew off. I didn't know anything about it until the boy came into the house," she said.
