Legislature 'Dog Days' Described

By FRANCES LITRELL
Salem — These are the dog days of the legislature. It has taken time but the men and the boys are now separated. Each day we are a little more conscious of that fact.

The tax program is as yet undecided. On Tuesday Senator Lowry talked for 50 minutes against the proposed income tax and for a sales tax, and if those sitting in the balcony could have voted, the State of Oregon would be well on its way to the sales tax type of taxation.

In these closing days of the session one can't help making comparisons, and sitting here in these familiar surroundings doing the now routine daily tasks, I glance around the room at the many faces that have become dear to us—and remember back a few months ago, when we first sat here. Seemingly over night I had been reduced to a minority minus and filled with fear and confusion. I had the feeling of being lost in a sea of strange faces and words and asked myself why we had gotten ourselves into this. Looking back now and knowing how difficult it has been at times, we realize what a broadening experience it has been for both of us. We feel it has been worth those first trying weeks.

With his usual economy of words, Al summarized it nicely when he said, "Well Mama, we have learned how little we really knew and we are bigger for it."

On Tuesday of this week, a delegation of Australian farmers and their wives visited the legislature. Australian women are much more sturdy looking than the American women.

Wednesday noon Mrs. Lester Adams entertained a group of the legislative wives for luncheon at Lipman's lovely tea room, and in the evening the entire legislative group gave a surprise party for Senator and Mrs. Smith and Representative and Mrs. Geary. They were presented with "rag" gifts. Tom McCall, who acted as master of ceremonies, called it "the Republican party."

This morning Al was real pleased when a note was handed to him from the Governor's office saying the Governor had signed Senate Bills Nos. 405, 406 and 407, which he with Senator Lowry and Rep. DeArmond had introduced.

We fear that S.B. 333, the school equalization support fund, has been tabled by the House Education committee, and with so little time left Al says it's doubtful they can get it off the table and back to the floor this session.

The handsome Bert Lowrys have been here visiting with their family, the Phil Lowrys, and sitting in the balcony.

We now have hopes of getting out of here sometime next week. H.B. 99 (the meat inspection bill) has just been referred back to committee.

Officers Named For Zonta Club

New officers recently elected by the board of directors to serve Medford Zonta club for the coming year were announced at a noon luncheon meeting of the club yesterday. They are Mrs. Effie Kurtz, president; Mrs. Florene Bolton, first vice-president; Mrs. Violet Anders, second vice-president; Mrs. Eloise Winklebleck, secretary and Mrs. Dora Gares, treasurer.

Formal installation of officers will be held in May. Zonta is a classified service club for business and professional women.

Miss Mary Vandenburg, psychiatric social worker, was guest speaker and explained the manner in which the Southern Oregon Child Guidance clinic functions. This clinic was started in September, 1953, she said, for the purpose of promoting mental health of the child population and thus prevent mentally disturbed adults.

Miss Vandenburg described the manner in which the work of the clinic is performed by the three units, saying the social worker interviews the parents or others concerned with the child, the clinical psychologist gives tests which are an aid in the diagnosis and the psychiatrist diagnoses the case and determines the treatment.

The speaker cited two examples in which children were aided in adjustment solely by the interviews. In addition to individual case work, members were told that the clinic works with community groups and problems of mental health.

Club Has Program On TV Influence

Toastmistress club women conducted a forum discussion on the subject, "Comic Books and Television as a Bad Moral Influence on Children," at a meeting April 26 at radio station KBOY. Taking part were Mrs. C. A. Thatcher and Mrs. James Vander Steen who argued that comic books are worse than television, and Mrs. Eloise Winklebleck and Mrs. A. C. Cameron, who argued the other side of the question.

"Prospecting for Uranium," was the title of Mrs. Donald Bergman's speech.

Guests at the meeting were Mrs. S. D. Earhart and Mrs. Arnold Bohnert.

A report was given by Miss Anna Streed on a meeting held at Roseburg April 17.

American Cancer society statistics show that more than 600 Americans die of cancer each day.
