Underwater Nuclear Explosion Scheduled in Pacific Ocean Soon

Washington — (U.P.)—The government has announced that a "small yield nuclear device" will be set off underwater in a few days "in the eastern Pacific Ocean several hundred miles from the closest land area" off the U. S. West Coast.

A joint announcement by the Defense Department and Atomic Energy Commission said the purpose of the underwater explosion is to gain data "essential for developing tactics for defense against submarine attack."

Clear of Fishing Grounds
The announcement said that the test area, which was not pinpointed, is "completely clear of fishing grounds and shipping lanes."

No hazard is involved to either mainland or island inhabitants, the fishing industry or fish consumers, it was said.

The announcement said that the Scripps Institute of Oceanography made studies of the area for the government and will participate in the test. Based on the Scripps findings, it was concluded "that the area is free of food fish."

Second Underwater Test

It will be only the second U.S. atomic device to be set off underwater. The first underwater shot was part of the 1946 "operation crossroads" at Bikini atoll in the Pacific. In this test, the bomb was set off in comparatively shallow water of Bikini lagoon. Plans for a deep underwater explosion at Bikini in 1946 were cancelled.

It will also be the first post-war atomic test which this country has ever conducted outside of its established proving grounds—the Bikini - Eniwetok area of the mid-Pacific, and the Frenchman Flat area in the Nevada desert.

No Indication of Size

The experiment will be carried out by a part of Rear Adm. C. B. Momsen's joint task force seven which handles nuclear weapons tests in the western Pacific proving grounds.

The announcement gave no indication of the size of the nuclear device other than to call it small. Such devices have been tested at the Nevada proving grounds with yields of as little as 1,000 tons TNT equivalent. The announcement said "this test, like all others of nuclear devices and weapons, is designed to build defense strength for the free world."

Phone Employees Get Medals, Cash

Salem — (U.P.) — Two Portland Telephone employees were presented Bell System Vail medals and cash awards in Salem yesterday by Gov. Paul Patterson. The men saved the lives of two boys in separate acts of heroism last June.

Harry E. Fisher, a construction foreman, rescued 10-year-old Lewis Baker from plunging off a 70-foot cliff west of Portland. The boy was clinging to a poison oak bush.

Glenn W. Fuller, a switchman, saved 9-year-old Tommy Randolph from electrocution on an accidentally charged irrigation pipe near Baker on the Powder river.

Fisher received a medal and $500 and Fuller got a medal and $100 from the governor.

COULDN'T SEE MOTTO

San Francisco — (U.P.) — James Bloat, 25, explained today why he was arrested on suspicion of burglary despite the motto "crime does not pay" tattooed across his chest. "I had my shirt on at the time," he said.

Sheppard Loses New Trial Plea For Wife Slaying

Cleveland, O. — (U.P.) — Common Pleas Judge Edward Blythin has thrown out Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard's plea for a new trial because the claim of new evidence was "still in the realm of theory."

The 31-year-old osteopath, in his second bid for a new trial since he was convicted of his wife's murder, had argued that evidence discovered since his conviction showed someone else committed the crime. The state, arguing against the appeal, said the defense case was "opinions, speculations and conjectures."

Judge Blythin's 16-page refusal to grant the new trial said defense attorneys had failed to show that evidence submitted for his study was not available at the time the trial started last fall. Further, Judge Blythin said, some of it had been entered during the trial proceedings, but had been rejected by the jury in reaching its decision.

NEW JAIL DIET

Des Moines, Ia. — (U.P.) — Sheriff Wilbur T. Hildreth, tired of having habitual drunks use the county jail as a rest home, today ordered a new diet for his "guests." Hildreth said maybe his jail won't be "too attractive" for drunks with a diet of black coffee, bread and "possibly beans."

Daughter of Salvation Army Founder Dies

Portland — (U.P.) — Mrs. Catherine Booth-Clibborn, lifelong worker for the Salvation Army founded by her father, died Sunday in England, according to word received here by her son, Dr. William Booth-Clibborn.

Mrs. Booth-Clibborn, 96, retired four years ago after 76 years in the ministry started by her father, Gen. William Booth. She extended the Salvation Army to France and Switzerland and was commander in those countries for 22 years. Dr. Booth-Clibborn, former pastor for 16 years of Immanuel Temple here, said his mother had been ill with pneumonia.
