

Prairie City Man To Head Cattlemen; Commission Favored

Corvallis — (U.P.) — Garland Meador, Prairie City, yesterday was elected president of the Oregon Cattlemen's Association, succeeding Pat Cecil of Burns.

Election of officers was conducted at the closing session of the three-day annual association convention here.

Other officers included George Russell, Vale, first vice president; Ed Coles, Prineville, secretary; Sam Dement, Myrtle Point; Don Hotchkiss, Lakeview; Paul Muller, Wamic, and Irvin Mann, Stanfield, all second vice presidents.

Favors Commission

The association voted in favor of a resolution urging the creation of a state beef commission to conduct research and promote beef, which operations would be financed by a levy.

The commission would be similar to the state weed and potato commissions. It was expected that a petition will be circulated among the state's cattlemen asking for state department of agriculture hearings on the question.

Other resolutions urged construction of John Day Dam, either by federal funds or through the administration's "partnership" program, and asked for the formation of an association committee to study the feasibility of research studies in critical game range areas.

Expert Help Asked

Another resolution asked the help of government experts in investigating critical deer wintering areas, and determining a range improvement program.

The city of Portland was urged to include in its proposed sports center facilities for the Pacific International Livestock Exposition, including 50 acres of parking space and rail head facilities.

Young Explosion 'Expert' Killed

Detroit — (U.P.) — A 13-year-old boy who was warned by police several days ago to "quit monkeying around with explosives" was killed while demonstrating his skill to friends gathered in his basement, police said today.

Police said Ronald Grezlak suffered severe abdominal injuries and parts of his hands and arms were blown off when he pounded his explosive mixture with the blade of a screwdriver.

Ronald and two school companions had skipped classes to experiment with a new compound the boy had formulated.

His first batch of the mixture fizzled when he touched a match to it so Ronald added more sulfuric acid and struck it with the screwdriver.

The explosion ripped off his dungarees and blew out a nearby basement window. His two friends escaped injury.

Ronald said they had warned him to stop experimenting with explosives after he touched off a blast in an alley several days ago.

Oregon Cooperative Approved for Loan

Bend — (U.P.) — The Rural Electrification administration has approved a loan of $275,000 to the Central Electric cooperative, according to word received here yesterday from Rep. Sam Coon.

The loan is for extension of a line east from Paulina, in the upper Crooked river valley, to Suplee and Izee. The line will serve the west of Grant county.

The loan will also provide for improvements in the REA system in Deschutes, Crook, Jefferson and Parts of several adjacent counties.

MURROW LOSES SPONSOR

Pittsburgh — (U.P.) — The Aluminum Company of America has announced it will drop sponsorship of Edward R. Murrow's "See It Now" television program in July.

Indian Ambassador Arrives in Peiping

Tokyo — (U.P.) — V. K. Krishna Menon, India's roving ambassador, arrived in Peiping Wednesday, the Chinese Communist radio announced today.

Many diplomatic observers believe Krishna Menon's visit may lead to arrangements for talks between Red China and the United States on Formosa and release of American airmen held in Chinese Communist jails.

Legislators From Medford Praised By House Speaker

Salem — Speaker of the House Edward A. Geary, Klamath Falls, today complimented the accomplishments of Medford's two state representatives, E. H. Mann, and E. A. Littrell, in the 115-day session that wound up at Salem last week.

Littrell, a freshman, turned in what Geary considered a "first-rate job" as vice-chairman of the House Highways committee. The Jackson county auto-parts wholesaler also served on the Commerce and Utilities and Labor and Industries committees, and Geary noted that the two water resources bills which originated in Commerce and Utilities "will undoubtedly prove to be the most valuable long-range legislation undertaken at Salem this year."

Mann Praised

"As chairman of the House Elections and Reapportionment committee, Ed Mann was confronted with an unprecedented number of proposals to alter our election laws," Geary said. "He (Mann) was instrumental in the promotion of such legislation as that providing for easier election recounts, signing of pollbooks and an interim committee to study Oregon's corrupt practices act."

Mann, Geary added, also was a "very diligent worker" on the House floor and as a member of the Forestry and Mining and Medical Affairs committee.

Baldock Speaks On Road Program

Washington — (U.P.) — R. H. Baldock, Oregon's state highway engineer, said yesterday it would take 14 years to build a new inter-state highway system under the proposed Democratic substitute for President Eisenhower's 10-year-highway program.

Projected over a 10-year period, Baldock said the administration plan would provide $31,000,000,000 and the Democratic substitute $24,000,000,000 in federal funds for the interstate system and the regular federal-aid highways.

He told the House Public Works Committee "it would be impossible" under either plan to complete construction of the regular federal-aid highways in 10 years without unreasonable boosts in state road building revenues.

"But, if we can build the nation's most important system of highways, the interstate system, within 10 years," he said, "it would appear possible to do at least the main portion of the other job within 20 years."

Klamath Indians Seek Hunt Rights

Portland — (U.P.) — Representatives of the Klamath Indian tribe asked a Federal Court here yesterday to enjoin state authorities from imposing Oregon hunting and trapping regulations on the reservation.

Hunting and fishing rights were granted the Klamaths and Modocs by an 1864 treaty with the U. S. and the court has been asked to decree that a 1953 law of Congress will not take away those rights.

The Klamath complaint was similar to one filed in March by the Umatilla Indians who claimed their 1855 treaty rights superseded the 1953 law.

Nine individuals brought the complaint on behalf of 1,800 Klamaths. The complaint named the Oregon attorney general, state police superintendent and members of the game commission as defendants.

As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PH.D.
Exaggeration Isn't The Same As Lying

Exaggeration and lying are not exactly the same, though there is much the same intent back of both.

(Q) "I was brought up to be a respecter of the truth. As children, if we told a lie, we had our mouths washed out with strong kitchen soap. My parents both looked upon lying as one of the greatest sins. Strange as it may seem, I married a liar. To be fair to him, he does not actually lie because there is always some truth to what he says. But he exaggerates everything so outrageously that it really amounts to lying. When I tell him he knows that it is not true, he always looks sheepish and backs down. How can I break him of this habit?"

(A) Your husband is not actually lying, in the strictest sense of the word. He is merely "embroidering" or exaggerating the truth to gain more attention than he would get if he stuck to the facts.

Never accuse him of "lying" if you want to break him of the habit of exaggerating. You would offend him and lead him to believe that you have little confidence in him. You might also make him wonder if you loved and trusted him.

Instead, treat him as you would a child who exaggerates. In other words, call his bluff. When he says something that is obviously highly exaggerated, show surprise and ask him how it could be thus and so. This will make him aware of the fact that his exaggerations are beyond belief.

Be careful not to be critical in your attitude when you ask him for further information. It would be better to feign sincere curiosity and interest, and then let him try to explain to you why things are as he said they were.

He has doubtless become so used to exaggerating that he is

Paper Drive Slated By 40 and 8 Here Sunday Afternoon

Jackson county Voiture 165, 40 and 8, will conduct a paper drive the afternoon of Sunday, May 15, it was announced today.

Paper collected will be turned over to the Bliss Heine Junior drum corps for processing and sale, with proceeds being divided between the 40 and 8's child welfare fund, and a fund for purchase of uniforms and equipment for the Juniors, to finance trips for the group, and to aid members unable to pay for lessons.

Newspapers and flat magazines are the types of paper needed most.

To Pick up Bundles

A 40 and 8 spokesman today requested that residents have their surplus papers bundled and in front of their homes or on the curb by noon Sunday. The 40 and 8 locomotive and several trucks will cover the town, picking up the paper.

Those with large amounts of paper, and particularly those located outside the city limits, are asked to telephone Weeks and Orr Furniture store, 2-9351, for a special pickup trip. Anyone whose paper is missed may call the same number Monday morning and it will be picked up.

LET HER WIN

Canon City, Colo. — (U.P.) — Joseph C. Smith, 76, won a divorce Wednesday when he testified that every time he beat his wife at cards, she gave him a tongue-lashing and threw the deck in his face.

"It was very disconcerting and took away the desire to win," Smith said.

not actually aware that he is doing so. That is why you cannot expect an overnight cure. But, in time, he will begin to be more careful of what he says.

Price Regulation For Gas Opposed

Washington — (U.P.) — The Chamber of Commerce of the United States told Congress today that federal regulation of natural gas prices will "set a dangerous precedent."

A chamber spokesman, H. B. Fell, president of Simpson-Fell Oil Co., Ardmore, Okla., said "If the prices of fuels are to be regulated by the federal government, then the prices of other commodities entering into interstate commerce might likewise be regulated."

Fell, in testimony before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, said federal regulation will divert gas to intrastate uses, discourage exploration of new gas sources and interfere with state conservation measures.

The result, he said, would be higher prices to consumers.

He testified in favor of a bill exempting producers of natural gas from federal regulation.
