YOUNG POLITICIAN

Milwaukee — (U.P.) — The clever campaigning of eight-year-old Karen Heimsch resulted in her unanimous election recently to her school's student council. In her platform Karen promised autographs to all her constituents from Eddie Matthews of the Milwaukee Braves. Karen's mother is an aunt of Mrs. Virjean Mathews, wife of the player.

St. Poul — (U.P.) — A person who apparently has strong feelings about his own worth put the foilowing ad in the St. Paul newspaper giveaway column: "Upright piano from upright owner."

Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Correspondent

Hollywood — (U.P.) — Van Heflin next fall will quit movies for a possible three years and toss away at least $125,000 in "the biggest gamble of my career" — to act in front of a live audience.

Aline Mosby

Heflin is following the crowd of film stars who have taken over Broadway marquees with no noticeable scars. But while many movie personalities prefer to sail in and out of a play to get back to big movie money, Heflin has promised to stick with his venture — if it's a hit — for three years.

The actor is investing in the play, making the venture a two-way risk.

In fact, the way he figures it, including moving the family house to New York, he may come out in the red from this stage try. "From a career standpoint it's the logical course in development," he explained today. "I'd rather be better on the stage than mediocre in pictures.

Miller Play

"Fortunately now I'm in a financial position where I can afford to go back to Broadway. And, of course, I can profit a great deal prestige- wise by going back to the theater in a hit."

The play Heflin has signed to do is "A View from the Bridge" by Arthur Miller of "Death of a Salesman" fame. Actually it consists of two one-act plays. In the first the actor will take a relatively small role.

"Most actors want to make a personal appearance and prove you're an actor," he said. "Unfortunately, this is a lousy time to do it, when things are going good for me here. If the play is a hit, I'll be off the screen for possibly three and a half years. "I signed for the national tour of the play. I prefer touring. It's exciting to meet people in these various towns. You learn what they like about motion pictures — and you never learn by sitting on your fat behind in Hollywood or New York."

Devoted Folk

Heflin has burned down Broadway roles for years, including "The Shrike," because "of the many sacrifices involved." In fact, listening to him tote up the losses involved I can see why stage actors must be devoted folk who don't mind doing without swimming pools, sunshine, fat paychecks and easy film emoting to face those opening night critics on Broadway.

Heflin and his wife, Francis, will pack up and move to New York for what they hope will be a long run of the play. The only problem is the horse he bought for their daughter, Kathy 8.

"It costs a fortune to keep a horse in hay in New York," he sighed. "But we can't leave the horse here. Kathy would be so disappointed."
