4-H Club News

The Antelope 4-H Forestry Club went on a four county hike near Azalea, Ore. The four counties participating were, Jackson, Coos, Josephine and Douglas. The hike lasted two days, Friday and Saturday, May 13 and 14. While there, the members were taken on a fire spotting contest, a pacing contest and a treasure-hunt. Antelope took the grand prize for winning the treasure hunt. A green and white beany was awarded to James Jackson, the president of the club, for winning the hunt.

Five Boy Scouts To Receive Eagle Awards Monday Night

Five valley Boy Scouts, all members of Troop 9, will receive Eagle badges Monday during ceremonies at which Dr. Elmo Stevenson, president of the Southern Oregon College, will be the main speaker. The meeting will be held at the First Christian church on South Oakdale ave., at 7:30 p.m.

The Scouts who will receive the honor are James and Dick Corum, twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Corum; Sam Jennings Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jennings; Mike Roberts, son of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Roberts; and Dick Guches, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Guches. Dr. Roberts is the scoutmaster.

Joined Together

The first four named entered Troop 9 at the same time and all with the idea in mind of becoming Eagle Scouts. Dick Guches also was active in the same troop until the past year and received all the merit badges which go toward his new honor while active in the troop.

This group will make a total of 16 Scouts who have received the Eagle rank in Troop 9. This also will make three Eagle Scouts in the same family. They are Dr. Roberts, another son, Bill Roberts, now stationed with the paratroopers in the airborne service at Ft. Campbell.

A Nichol's Worth of . . . Comment On This and That

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

Washington — (U.P.)—The lady in the silk sari said if I would stand on my head for a few minutes and breathe real deep, she could cure me of smoking.

Indra Devi, 107 pounds and something like five feet, aged 56, is a teacher of Yoga.

"Yogi," I said. "He is a famous catcher." "Yes," I know, said Miss Devi, who is part Swedish and part Russian. "Yogi, you spell with an 'I' at the end is the catcher. I am talking about the performance I learned in India, Yoga. About how to live longer by living right . . . knowing how to breathe properly, to exercise and eat the right food. Come over here and put your head on the floor."

Down on my head I went. A photographer was ready to shoot me upside down. Miss Devi flipped my legs up against the wall. Apparently her flip was not hard enough. I crumbled.

Miss Devi, who preaches in books and lectures that you can be healthy and wise if you exercise and breathe right and eat right and think right, was a little miffed. I was fouling up her act.

It's the Breathing

"It's easy," said Miss Devi, who was talking upside down. "It's the breathing. Put your mind to something like quitting smoking and you think better upside down. Trouble with you, Mr. N., is that you don't cooperate. You don't think hard enough."

I told the lady that I was thinking as hard as I could. But tumbled there on the floor with a hole showing in my socks, how could a man think?

Getting back to the business of quitting smoking, I asked the lady what standing on your head had to do with it. "That is just a side bar," she said. "It is mostly controlling your breathing, by taking gulps of air and having a will of your own."

As a matter of fact, Miss Devi said, quitting anything is easy if you are a mind to. Even foods like you want or one for the road or, well, smoking.

Even Finances

Miss Devi said she wanted to tell me something. She told me that by relaxation you can get over insomnia or a spell of nerves if you are worried about finances (and that would be something to copyright) or almost anything, including a penchant for playing the horses.

Take insomnia, she said. Miss Devi wrote a book called "Forever Young and Forever Happy." In that she said she had helped people like Gloria Swanson, Greta Garbo, Jennifer Jones, Ruth St. Denis and others to relax and forget their problems. If you have trouble getting to

Salem Man Killed When Pinned by Cab of Truck

Salem —(U.P.)— Merle Harley Rains, 29, Salem, was killed Wednesday when he was pinned between the cab and spare tire of a gravel truck just off Skyline road about seven miles south of Salem.

His body was discovered by a seven-year-old boy on his way home from school. Sheriff's deputies who investigated said apparently the mechanism used to raise the gravel box was not working and Rains was trying to raise it manually when it fell, pinning him against the cab.

sleep, she said, the thing to do is to catalog a bunch of don'ts. Don't eat a big meal and then hit the pad. Don't go to bed before your supper has settled. Walk four steps, then take in four big lungs-ful of ozone. Walk four more steps and do the same. Go back home and sleep on a mattress with a board under it.

I tried the walk deal, went home, raided the icebox, smoked me a cigarette, had a glass of suds, hit the sack and slept like a baby.
