

Framework of Shabby Old British Barn May Be Relic of American History

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press Correspondent
Jordans, England — (U.P.) — There is a shabby, old barn in this little settlement of the Society of Friends, the Quakers, that is either one of the most important relics of American history—or just a shabby, old barn.

Practically everybody agrees that the framework of the barn was made from the timbers of a ship named "Mayflower" sold for salvage to farmer William Russell in 1623.

But it was THE Mayflower, the one that took the Pilgrims to Massachusetts in 1620? I wish I knew. All I can say after checking around is that some people think it is, but more think it isn't.

The story begins when Farmer Russell bought the ship hulk for what was then the equivalent of about $500. He upended it on his property in this backwater of London and it made a very serviceable barn indeed.

Property Sold
Some 30 years later he sold all his property to the Friends. It was in his original farmhouse that William Penn and other Quakers were arrested in 1670 and sent to prison even though they argued with conscience dictated.

As time went by the barn became a community center for the Friends, some of whom began to wonder whether the similarity of name might be more than coincidental. One of these was Dr. James Rendel Harris, curator of manuscripts of the John Rylands Library in Manchester and a well known scholar and author. He wrote a book in the 1920s which argued that a crack in one of the beams arched across the barn centered with a similar crack in one of the Mayflower beams as reported in the journal of William Bradford, governor of the Plymouth colony.

Tongue in Cheek
Mr. Harris convinced a lot of people, but some of his old associates in the Quakers wonder whether he was writing with tongue in cheek.

"He was a great leg-puller," said Stephen Thorne, recording clerk of the Quakers.

Speaking for the Quakers, Thorne said they made no claim that the old barn was the original Mayflower.

And the ancient buildings preservation trust, under whose jurisdiction the barn would come if it were the Mayflower, reports that although the main timbers appear to be ship's timbers, there is no evidence they came from the colonists' boat.

A Replica Planned
Project Mayflower, which plans to sail a replica of the Mayflower to the United States next year, is a gesture of Anglo-American unity, is building its craft from plans by naval architect William A. Baker of Hingham, Mass. The model of the Mayflower from the Boston State House has been sent here so the builders can duplicate its exterior decoration.

Why not measure the old barn if an exact replica is wanted? "We don't regard the barn as the original Mayflower," said Michael Mordaunt-Smith, one of the officials of the project.

So the weight of expert evidence is against the barn. But here's something to think about:

Johanna Jones, widow of Christopher Jones, master of the Pilgrims' Mayflower, received permission to sell the ship as salvage in 1642. Four years later a "Mayflower" became a barn in Buckinghamshire.

Were they the same?

Microscopic Test Of Sputum Detects Most Lung Cancer

San Francisco — (U.P.) — The American Cancer society announced today a study of more than 1000 lung cancer patients has indicated that more than 90 per cent of this kind of cancer can be detected by microscopic examination of the patient's sputum.

The study was conducted by Drs. Seymour Farber and David A. Wood of the University of California School of Medicine, with support of the ACS.

Relatively Accurate
The significance of this technique of sputum study lies in the fact that it is a relatively accurate and an easy approach to diagnosis. It is sufficiently inexpensive that it can be used routinely on all patients in whom lung cancer is even a remote possibility.

It is generally recognized that a great many cases of this disease can be cured by operation if the disease is recognized early enough.

Symptoms Generally Mild
But in its early stages lung cancer is difficult to detect because symptoms are generally mild and they are much like the symptoms of mild diseases.

Now with the new methods of detecting the disease, more patients can be brought to the operating table in time to catch the cancer in its early stage.

No Live Virus Shown In Cutter Vaccine

Boise, Ida. — (U.P.) — Tests on a portion of the Cutter-manufactured Salk vaccine used in Idaho show no live virus to be present in the serum, Health Department Director L. J. Peterson said today.

Seventeen polio cases—three of them fatal—have been reported among children who were inoculated with the vaccine and 13 cases have been recorded among victims who were closely associated with someone who was vaccinated.

Peterson said about 200 cubic centimeters of Cutter vaccine have been tested at the U. S. Public Health service's Rocky Mountain laboratory in Hamilton, Mont.

About 1,000 CC's remain to be tested, Peterson said.

Morse Holds Ike Also To Blame for Vaccine

Chicago — (U.P.) — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) says President Eisenhower must share the blame with Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby for the "gross incompetence" in handling of the Salk polio vaccine, who asked earlier this week that Mrs. Hobby resign as secretary of health, education and welfare, said President Eisenhower "is implicated in her incompetence and subject to the same criticism."

"The President let down the mothers and fathers by letting the vaccine go out without proper testing," Morse said at a Bonds for Israel rally yesterday.

Pilot Rock Man Named Umatilla Police Chief

Umatilla, Ore. — (U.P.) — James Roberts, Pilot Rock, Ore., has been named police chief of this eastern Oregon town, which was without a peace officer for two days.

Roberts, named by city commissioners yesterday, replaces Hugh Little, who resigned Tuesday, according to city officials. Little has maintained he was ousted.
