

President's Hope for 'New Dawn' of Peace Heads News for Week

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst
The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

THE GOOD

1. President Eisenhower expressed hope that "a new dawn" of peace may be coming. The President spoke during a dramatic television radio appearance with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who was reporting to the nation on his visit to Europe. Reviewing the entrance of newly sovereign West Germany to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the signing of the Austrian independence treaty and the tentative arrangements made for a Big Four conference of heads of state, Dulles said that "what happened may really mark a turning point in the tide of history." Mr. Eisenhower, summing up after Dulles' speech, said: "We will stay strong and we'll stay vigilant, but we're not going to extinguish the hope that a new dawn may be coming, even if the sun rises very slowly."

2. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer won a significant victory in legislative elections in the state of Rhineland-Palatinate. The vote carried with it approval of Adenauer's policy of rearmament and alliance with the free world, as opposed to a policy of neutrality. The state legislature elects members to the West German Senate, and the victory assured Adenauer of the continued firm control he needs there to get approval of his rearmament legislation.

3. A Peiping Radio broadcast disclosed that Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-Lai, in a report to a congressional committee, had repeated his offer to "sit down and enter into negotiations" with the United States. The situation in the Formosa Strait, chief cause of tension between Red China and the United States at the moment, remained quiet. It was made known that American and Chinese Nationalist air strength on Formosa is growing rapidly.

THE BAD

1. Despite assurances from Belgrade, the State Department and Western foreign offices in general expressed anxiety over the impending visit of Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and Communist Party Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev to President Tito of Yugoslavia. Fear was expressed that the Russians might induce Tito to become a "neutralist" or even to join the new East European military alliance. Belgrade dispatches quoted Yugoslav sources as saying the fears were groundless.

2. French attempts to pacify North African nationalists by granting home rule failed to stop terrorism. It was necessary to call in the Foreign Legion to reinforce security forces combating the terrorists in Algeria. Terrorists were active in Morocco also.

3. Communist-instigated Chinese students, rioting in Singapore attacked Gene Symonds, United Press manager for Southeast Asia, and beat him to death. Symonds, a front-line type of reporter, was covering the riot at close range, as he had covered the Korean war. British authorities were asked to investigate disturbing reports that police close to the scene of the attack on Symonds failed to go to his rescue.

Washington—(U.P.)—Thirteen-year-old Sandra Sloss of Granite City, Ill., thought about nicer things today than "crustaceology, immiscibility, abbacy and mnemonic."

She has $500 in her pocket plus $100 for a week-end trip to New York, after spelling those words correctly and winning the longest National Spelling Bee in the 28-year history of the contest.

"Sandy" outlasted 61 other bright youngsters in a tongue-twisting contest Thursday that covered 541 words—"the longest list since they wrote the Bible," according to contest director Charles Schneider of Scripps-Howard newspapers.

The levy election will be necessary because of an inadequate base, additional teachers and increased operational costs of the school district.

Two Polls
Polling places will be Central Point Junior High gymnasium and Gold Hill school gymnasium, and polls will be open between 2 and 8 p.m.

The budget last year was $600,439. Increased receipts from the district are expected to reduce the levy, which this year is $44,698 less than last year. Part of the reduction is due to allotments of O and C funds to reduce bond indebtedness.

Vienna, Austria—(U.P.)—James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, called upon the free world's union leaders today to "reconcile" the divergent views on armament.

The American union leader said labor's attitude on arms is one of the most important topics facing the Fourth World Congress of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions opening here today.

"The American view tends to emphasize strength," Carey told the delegates from 77 nations. "It stresses that H-bombs will not be outlawed or their tests discontinued until we have a program of universal disarmament with proper international supervision."

Other Americans attending the eight-day session were AFL President George Meany and Thomas Kennedy, vice-president of the United Mine Workers.
