

Eisenhower's Settling Into Life of Gettysburg Region

Gettysburg, Pa.—(U.P.)—President Eisenhower has settled quickly into the role of a member of the Gettysburg community where eventually he will be a full-time resident.

Kefauver Urges Publication of Power Reports

Washington—(U.P.)—Sen. Estes Kefauver has renewed his request to former President Herbert Hoover that the Hoover Commission make public the report of its task force on public power and water policy.

The Tennessee Democrat made public an exchange of telegrams with Mr. Hoover in which the former president said the commission had not had a chance to pass on the report and that he as chairman has "no authority to comply with your request."

Kefauver first wired Mr. Hoover Tuesday urging publication of the report because the "public has vital interest in the recommendations."

The former chief executive replied Thursday, saying he would pass along the request to the commission, "but I doubt if they will change their invariable rule, for conclusions and recommendations are their sole responsibility."

Kefauver wired Mr. Hoover again Friday saying "some of the information about sweeping and far-reaching changes in water resources and power policy recommended in this task force report has already appeared as the result of leaks in the press."

Should Study Report
He said he could not understand what would prevent publication now "so that we in Congress and the public will have the same opportunity to study this report that members of the commission have."

Kefauver said in making public the exchange of telegrams that "it has been reported that the task force report is a blockbuster against TVA and similar projects." He said he has been told that it recommends selling all TVA facilities to private industry except those used by the Atomic Energy Commission.

FUNNY COLLECTION
Champaign, Ill.—(U.P.)—The University of Illinois has acquired an 8,500-volume collection from the library of Franklin J. Meine, Chicago publisher and a foremost Mark Twain specialist. Meine started his collection more than 30 years ago, seeking first editions of such humorists as Josh Billings, Artemus Ward, George Ade and Will Rogers.

Wisconsin once had more than 9,000 cheese factories.

try club. And Mrs. Eisenhower has joined local ladies clubs and shops occasionally in the stores of the business community.

The Gettysburg people, long accustomed to tourist dollars flowing in from visitors to the historic Civil War battlefield bordering the Eisenhower farm, are enthusiastic about having the first family in their midst. Gettysburg has not had a better drawing card since Pickett's charge.

Home Completed
The President and his wife, now that their spacious, comfortable farm house is completed and furnished, can be expected to spend many weekends here.

Mrs. Eisenhower drove here early Friday morning. The President followed by auto as soon as he was through with a cabinet meeting.

There was a bridge game at the farm Friday night. During the late afternoon, the President was joined by Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, the NATO Commander in Europe, and William E. Robinson, president of the Coca Cola Co., both favorite bridge companions.

Their "fourth" probably was George E. Allen, a close friend of Mr. Eisenhower and fellow Gettysburg landholder who drove up from Washington Friday with the Chief Executive.

Golf on Schedule
Weather and other interests permitting, the President was to play golf Saturday with Robinson and Allen on the nine hole layout of the local country club. Gruenther is not a golfer.

The President played the course last weekend and was so pleased by efforts to make him "at home" that he wrote a letter during the week to Richard A. Brown, local attorney and one of the moving spirits of the club.

"Art Nevins a retired general who once managed the President's farm has told me of the kindness of the members of the Gettysburg Country Club in making available to me a locker room for my use and that of my guests," the President wrote Brown.

"I am tremendously grateful. Won't you please express to the members my appreciation and thanks."

The Eisenhowers are expected to return to Washington late Sunday.

Negotiators Face Nearing Deadline

Detroit—(U.P.)—Negotiators for Ford Motor Co. and the CIO United Auto Workers, facing a contract deadline 10 days away Saturday began their first week end bargaining session in an attempt to reach agreement on a new pact.

The union contract with Ford, signed in 1950, expires June 1. The union currently is completing a strike vote of 135,000 Ford workers to back up its demands for a guaranteed annual wage, a pay raise and other contract improvements.

Bargaining teams, which have been taking long week end recesses in the past but held two sessions Friday, decided to return to the negotiating table again Saturday.

Union President Walter Reuther was non-committal when asked by newsmen how long the joint "no comment" policy adhered to by both company and union would continue.
