On The Side

SHALL I ask the brave soldier who fights by my side in the cause of mankind, if our creeds agree? Shall I give up the friend I have valued and tried? If he kneel not before the same altar with me?

Once while on the witness stand Bernard Baruch, when asked what his occupation was, said, "A speculator." Asked to explain what a "speculator" was, Mr. Baruch said, "A speculator is a man who observes the future and acts before it occurs."

Ex-Wives
About 3,000,000 women are collecting alimony in this country. They have to pay income tax on it. Their ex-husbands can deduct the amount from their taxes. Only three states provide for the discontinuance of alimony when a woman marries again. In some states no alimony is allowed in the case of a childless wife.

Horses & Women

Among the places in the world where women, claiming theirs is the superior sex, seem to have proved it is in the Aures Mountains of Africa. In a group there known as the Shayus, the females completely dominate the situation, handling the government, making the laws and so on. Shayu wives rule the household. A husband must turn his paychecks over to the Mrs. intact. The husbands do practically all the housework. Most of the Shayu wives are career women. Their favorite career is that of a dancing girl. It is very difficult for a Shayu husband to get a divorce but a wife can have one merely by asking for it. As a result of this, some Shayu females have been married as many as 40 times!

Asking

Q—How many times has Leo Durocher been married? A.—Three. First to Ruby Bartley, a Cincinnati girl; second to Mrs. Grace Dozier, a wealthy owner of a St. Louis dress manufacturing concern, and third to Laraine Day. Q—Where in the Bible can be found the saying: "Murder will out?" A.—It is not in the Bible. It is from Chaucer. Q—Who introduced the song titled "Two Little Love Bees," and in what show? A.—Christie MacDonald sang that delightful number in the musical hit titled "The Spring Maid."

Over There

In the British House of Commons it is against the rules for a member, while addressing the House, to refer to another man as a "liar." That is, the word "liar" is barred. However, it is all right to convey the thought another member has not spoken the truth by the use of some other word or expression. Such as "a trifle with the truth," or "careless with the facts." There are said to be 125 different ways of calling a man a liar without using the word. How many can you think of?

Asides

The use of snappy descriptive names for provocative perfumes is by no means a new idea. Over a hundred years ago in London there was a popular scent called "Kiss-Me-Quick." . . . Why Franz Schubert didn't finish his "Unfinished Symphony" has never been definitely decided. Anyway it is certain it wasn't because he was lazy. In one year Schubert composed five operas, two symphonies, two Masses and 14 songs.

Sidelights

When a girl insists upon talking excessively when dancing it proves she "ain't got rhythm." . . . As to the greatest general in the history of the world, how about the Duke of Wellington? He defeated Napoleon three times. . . Mr. and Mrs. George Goben of Lucas, Ia., were married 81 years. If that isn't the world record for lengthy marriages, what is?

WOMAN MAYOR

San Salvador, El Salvador—(U.P.)—A woman served as mayor of San Salvador today for the first time in the city's 416-year history. Senora Blanca De Mendez became acting chief executive when titular Mayor Pedro Escalante left for Havana to attend a meeting.

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—THREE

Back Stairs: Big Crew at White House

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

Washington — (U.P.) — Backstairs at the White House: It takes eight operating engineers, six carpenters, five electricians, and 11 gardeners to keep the White House going.

The engineers have an around-the-clock job tending to the elaborate lighting and air conditioning system which runs 24 hours a day these hot and humid days. When the White House was rebuilt between 1948 and 1952, a sizeable electrical control room was built far beneath the surface of the earth and protected by heavy, reinforced concrete walls.

If power facilities all over the city were knocked out, the White House could put independent emergency generating equipment into action.

This time of year when it is fairly rainy, the gardeners have a busy time keeping the 18 acres of lawn around the White House well trimmed. The frequent showers and warm sun produce a luxuriant growth in a hurry.

In a matter of weeks when hotter, drier weather sets in, the same gardeners will be busy hauling hoses and sprinklers to combat drought and the now plentiful grass beneath some of the spreading trees will begin to thin out regardless of the tender care.

George E. Allen, one of the President's closest friends, lists himself now as counsel to the law firm of Alvord and Alvord of Washington.

Seems sort of unusual, a law firm having a counsel for counsel.

A White functionary was asked the other day what would happen if all nine buttons installed under Mr. Eisenhower's desk were pushed at once.

"Four Secret Service men and goodness knows how many White House police, a half dozen secretaries, Mrs. Eisenhower, the doctor and two butlers would rush into his office at once," he said. "Probably be quite a traffic jam."

Few, if any people outside the inner sanctum really know which button signals what.

Wonder what Mr. Eisenhower would think today of a West Point cadet who periodically sneaked out of his academy dormitory at night and traveled by rented boat 15 miles to the town of Newburgh on the Hudson river to get coffee and sandwiches, then returned to the academy in the small hours of the morning after a second river voyage of 15 miles?

His classmates who described this young fellow's escapades for Collier's magazine called him one of "the chief hell raisers" of F Company. "A group of rough-necks." Who was this fireball? Dwight D. Eisenhower.
