Shady Cove Grange

A potluck supper was enjoyed by several of the Grangers preceding the regular Grange meeting of May 25th. Master Reed McKay presided over the short business meeting.

This being telephone week, Lecturer Vanderlip's program was built around the telephone and its history. Various members told telephone stories and Mrs. Reed McKay told of her experience as an operator.

The skit "The Lawyer's First Client," by Reed McKay, Cecil Kee and Betty Dusenberry was appropriate.

Mrs. Travis Littlefield displayed ties and gloves and gave their history. Lecturer Vanderlip displayed and gave the history of an old Chinese perfume bottle that has been in the family for a number of years.

The next regular meeting will be June 8. Ladies are asked to bring something worn at their wedding and their wedding pictures.

At this season of the year, there are many festive affairs taking place. From the simple party given in the home room at school or graduation party, to entertainment for the bride-to-be. Most young people are likely to take part in several of these summer-time parties.

Refreshments are always important when young people get together and a punch made with milk and ice cream is a most appropriate beverage to serve. Party Punch can be highly recommended for its wholesome nutritious ingredients. There is no resistance either on the part of young ladies and gentlemen when it comes to partaking of such delicious refreshment.

Party Punch is made with milk, strawberries and two flavors of ice cream. It is most attractive, easy to make, and delicious to drink. Serve Party Punch with a variety of small butter cookies, some gaily decorated if you wish, and you will find your refreshment table will be most popular.

PARTY PUNCH

6 cups strawberries, washed and hulled
3 cups sugar
Dash of salt
4 quarts cold milk
2 quarts strawberry ice cream
2 quarts mint ice cream
Strawberries for garnish
Mash strawberries; add sugar and salt and blend. Put in punch bowl. Add cold milk, stirring until thoroughly mixed. Top with strawberry and mint ice cream. Garnish with whole or sliced strawberries. Makes 24 servings.

Graduation Means Many Adjustments

This June thousands of boys and girls will be graduating from high schools, colleges, and professional training schools. They will all have to find their place in a new and larger world than they have ever before had to adjust to.

Dr. Hurlock

Because the last few weeks and months before graduation are crowded to the limit, few graduates-to-be have time to think about what is in store for them when the big day finally comes and goes. Then they realize that their old lives are over and new ones are ready to begin.

Those who go on with their education, in college or in some special training school, may feel that there will be no real adjustment for them to make, that they are merely going on from where they left off. This, however, is not the case. Each step higher in the educational ladder means new adjustments and new attitudes toward the work ahead.

For those whose education is coming to an end, the adjustments necessary will be even greater. Everything they do will be new and the whole atmosphere of the place in which they find themselves will be different. Even those who remain at home will find that adjustments must be made, that they are no longer "school boys" or "schoolgirls."

Suggestions for Adjustments

Several suggestions may help make these adjustments easier:

1. Accept the fact that you are not the important person that you have been during the past year in your role as "senior." You are now the most inexperienced person in your new world and you must start to build up from the bottom of the ladder.

2. Recognize that the path ahead is going to be hard and that you cannot expect people to help you as you did when you were a child. You will have to solve your problems alone and learn to take the blame when you deserve it.

3. Recognize the fact that you are now expected to dress and behave like an older person. If you want to succeed in whatever lies ahead of you, your chances will be greatly improved if you grow up and act your age instead of clinging to the patterns you have used in the past.

LETTERS FROM READERS

Summer Let-Down: "My children have all had a hard winter of illness and hard work at school. Now that the summer vacation is coming, I am afraid they will have a terrific let-down as we are not going to be able to go away as we usually do. Any suggestions?"

(A) No matter where you are, there will be plenty to keep your children occupied if you plan things ahead. However, be careful not to plan so much that they will feel as rushed as they do during the school year. Summer is a good time to learn new skills, such as sports, cooking, sewing, and typing. It offers time to see people and to do things that one rarely can squeeze in during the winter. Most important of all, it offers an opportunity to read the books and magazines one never gets around to reading during the busy winter.

Helping Bride: "My daughter is to be married this month. When she returns from her wedding trip, should I offer to help her get her new apartment in order?"

(A) If your home responsibilities make it possible, I am sure she will welcome your help. Volunteer to help her during the day when she will be alone. In the evenings and over the week ends, when her husband is at home, it would be better to leave the young people alone to work out their plans for their new home.

Exercise for Elderly: "My father is in his 60s and likes to play golf. Is this wise at his age?"

(A) Your father's doctor can tell him if it is wise or unwise. If he is in good physical condition, the exercise should be helpful, provided he doesn't overdo it or exercise too much in the heat of the day. It certainly would be better for his morale to get out and exercise than to be forced to sit around and feel sorry for himself.

FRUIT CUP

New York—(U.P.)—Fresh fruits now coming to most markets provide variety in spring menus. For instance, fresh pineapple and cantaloupe may be combined in fruit cup, either for an opening course or dessert. Cut the pineapple in wedges and the cantaloupe into balls with a melon-ball cutter. Mix with sugar and fresh lime juice, using half as much lime juice as sugar. Chill before serving and garnish with mint.

Automatic Furniture Manufacture Means New Material, Lower Costs

BY WILLIAM H. MEYERS
United Press Correspondent
Chicago—(U.P.)—The day may come when housewives will get their new furniture from machines which consume raw logs at one end and turn out almost-finished chairs and tables at the other.

G. Maurice Hill, vice-president of Drexel Furniture Co., Drexel, N.C., told at the recent home furnishings show here of research being conducted by the industry to provide homes with better furniture at less cost.

The problem, Hill said, is to get the homemaker to accept the new patterns and materials.

"It might involve a change in the family's entire way of life," he said.

"But it'll be a much better, happier, far more comfortable and much more beautiful way of life."

The dream of furniture makers, he said, is to achieve a degree of automation comparable to that enjoyed by appliance manufacturers whose machines virtually gobble up steel ingots and discharge finished refrigerators, washers and ranges.

But to enjoy the benefits of cheaper, faster-made furniture the homemaker must be willing to take into her home products which are more standardized than at present or which are made up of standard units into various pieces, Hill said.

It will be up to the advertisers, promotion men and merchandisers to convince Mrs. America that she can have a prettier and more comfortable home by using the new materials.

Meanwhile, research workers are constantly studying new methods of manufacture.
