Three Students To Graduate From Illinois College

Three Medford students are among those to be graduated from Northwestern university Monday, June 13, a release from the school states. They are Miss Julia Pool Bailey, daughter of Mrs. Ray K. Bailey, 135 North Holly street; Miss Eleanor C. Bragg, daughter of Lawrence D. Bragg, Route 1, and Richard J. Camden, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Camden, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Camden, formerly of Medford and now of Portland.

Miss Bailey will receive her doctor of medicine degree and will begin her internship July 1 at Chicago Research hospital. She will specialize in internal medicine. Miss Bailey's undergraduate studies were at Reed college, Portland; the University of California, Berkeley and the University of Edinburgh in Scotland. During World War II she served in the WAVES as an aerographer.

Miss Bragg will receive a bachelor of science in nursing and her diplomas as a graduate nurse. She attended Katherine Branson school, Ross, Calif., Medford High school and Pomona college in California before entering Northwestern university.

Richard Camden is receiving a degree in doctor of dental surgery. The Camdens have already arrived in Oregon from Chicago and after spending a week here as guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Holmes, Griffin Creek road, Mr. Camden went to Portland to take his Oregon examinations.

He attended Medford High school and the University of Oregon.

Vice-President Guest Today of New York Women

New York—(U.P.)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon met with 60 to 70 Republican women workers and campaign contributors today in an off the record luncheon.

He was scheduled to dine with their male counterparts in a similar closed meeting before returning to Washington tonight.

The luncheon was under the auspices of the United Republican Finance Committee of New York State.

Before it, the vice-president presented the George Washington Carver Memorial Institute's gold medal award to Joseph H. Lederer, stock broker and philanthropist.

After luncheon he made an appearance at an American Legion exhibition of historic flags and documents.

Blast Techniques To Introduce Smell Out; Nothing Like Free, Natural Sniff

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
New York—(U.P.)—A leading scientific student of smelling has thrown a bombshell into that corner of science by re-nouncing "blast stream techniques" for introducing smells to human nostrils.

Dr. Bernice M. Wenzel, of

MRS. GERTRUDE W. EISEMAN

PRESIDENT—Mrs. Gertrude W. Eiseman, Boston, Mass., above, today was named president of The Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., at the annual meeting of The Mother Church attended by church members from many parts of the world. Her appointment was announced by the Christian Science board of directors, for a one-year term.

Bulwark of Liberty Said Being Built in Christian Science

Boston, Mass.—Practical application of scientific Christianity is building a bulwark for individual, national, and universal liberty, the Christian Science board of directors declared today.

Addressing a gathering of some 7,500 Christian Scientists at the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, the directors declared that the "assurance of freedom from sickness as well as from sin, from want and woe as well as from forebodings of despair" is available to all through spiritual understanding of God.

Uncertainties Less Alarming
"The uncertainties which confuse and perplex the nations become less alarming and portentous in proportion as the certainty of God's guidance is better understood," the directors stated.

Church members from all over the world—Australia, Africa, Switzerland, Germany, Great Britain, Sweden, Japan and other distant points, as well as Canada and the United States—came to Boston for the meeting which has been held annually for more than half century. Smaller meetings on specialized subjects convene on days following the main session.

Barnard college, Columbia University, said she had once endorsed those techniques, but she knew better now. She knows now that there is nothing like the free and natural sniff.

Addressing her fellow specialists in a technical publication of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, she complained that these "blast-and-stream-injection techniques" had dominated this field of scientific research since 1936.

They have been refined, she continued, to the point where human beings whose smelling is under study is required to hold his breath long enough for a smell to be blown into his nostrils.

Raises Side Questions

Even after long training, most human beings can't perform reliably that way—"the extreme artificiality of the situation" raises all sorts of side questions which complicate scientific results.

The reason why blast-and-stream-injection techniques have come to dominate is that they permit the scientist to control the amount and intensity of the odor to which the subject is responding. But "no artificial mechanism is as efficient as sniffing in carrying air to the olfactory membrane," she said. "And there is no reason to believe that it is necessary to control sniff size if concentration of the gaseous mixture being sniffed is controlled so that the number of odorous molecules available, as well as the volume of inodoriferous air, can be specified."

To achieve this she has constructed a plexiglas box. Its bottom is covered with plastic film. In the film is a slit, through which the subject thrusts his head. Filtered, odor-free air is introduced into the box for him to breathe. Odors of any sort in any degree of intensity can be added to that air, and rigidly controlled.

Saturday is the most dangerous day of the week to drive.

Smelling Fascination

Where particular precision is required, she covers the subject's hair and face except for his nostrils with plastic sheeting. When his head is in the box, those are the only parts of himself which he could smell and possibly confuse with the odors in the air he is breathing.

Most non-scientific people don't realize the scientific fascination that there is in smelling. The number of unanswered questions about it can be guessed at when you remember that what one man smells, another doesn't smell at all, and what smells good to one man may be offensive enough to another to sicken him.

The late public excitement over chlorophyll is an example. Objectively disinterested scientific research showed that very small amounts of it, such as could be put into chewing gum, could deodorize nothing, yet many people were completely convinced that these small amounts worked. Indeed, smelling is so closely connected with mental processes that most scientific students of it are psychologists—as is Dr. Wenzel.

Medford Second Hottest City in State Sunday

Portland—(U.P.)—Oregon had summer-like weather yesterday with temperatures in the 80's reported at several places.

Brookings, on the southwest coast, had a reading of 90 degrees. Medford had 89, Pendleton 82 and Bend and Redmond 80. Portland had a reading of 70.
