AMA Opens 140th Convention With 25,000 Attending

Atlantic City, N. J. —(U.P.)—The American Medical Association opened its 14th annual meeting today with hundreds of scientific papers and colorful exhibits to help physicians "catch up" with the latest developments in medicine.

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, told the meeting "there is no evidence at this time" to warrant fears that A-bomb and H-bomb tests are poisoning the atmosphere with dangerous radiation.

He said all atomic tests to date by all countries have "added only fractionally to the natural background radiation which we all have been subjected since the beginning of time." He described the increase as "about equal to that of one medical chest X-ray."

The latest developments range from the use of drugs in curing juvenile delinquents and helping heart patients to hospitals that can be folded up and transported by airplane.

Some 25,000 doctors and guests attended the opening session of the five-day meeting in spacious Convention Hall, which has the largest indoor auditorium in the world.

Dr. Walter B. Martin, Norfolk, Va., outgoing president of the AMA, opened the business session with an address before the association's house of delegates in which he outlined the problems confronting the nation's doctors.

Dr. Elmer Hess, Erie, Pa., who will take over as president Tuesday night, stressed importance of mental health and suggested

Cigaret Smoking Gets Rough Going Over at AMA Annual Meeting

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
Atlantic City, N. J. —(U.P.)—Two American Cancer society statisticians gave cigarette smoking a new and even rougher going-over at the annual meeting of the American Medical association today.

At the same time and place, another group of statisticians indicted cigarette smoking as a possible cause of larynx cancer, especially when the smoking is combined with heavy whiskey-drinking.

According to the new lung cancer statistics, the death rate among heavy cigarette smokers (two packs or more a day) is more than 90 times that of non-smokers but the death rate among men who once smoked cigarettes but stopped is 14 times greater and is only half the rate of moderate (one pack a day) smokers.

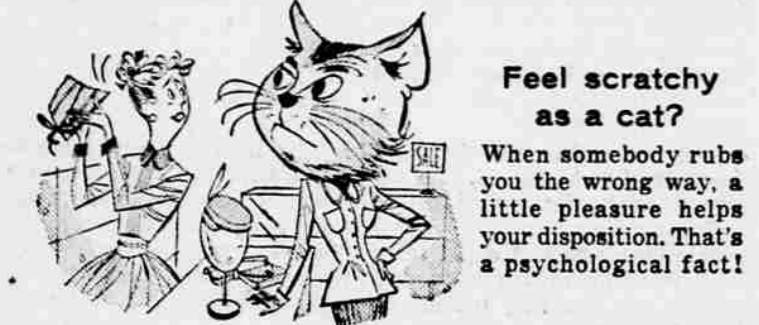

Records Smoking Habits
These percentages were based upon 285 proven or suspected lung cancer deaths among 188,000 men who were between 50 and 70 years old when their smoking habits were recorded by Cancer Society volunteers beginning in November, 1951.

Since then, 8,105 of these men have died. The society believes the 188,000 and what has and is happening to them are representative of all American males of the same age group. Critics of the study, especially the tobacco industry research committee, disagree.

In their new statistics, the society's statisticians found that pipe-smoking is "associated" with lung cancer, too, but to a far less degree than cigarette smoking. They added that cigar doctors take increasingly active parts in developing more psychiatric units in hospitals. He also urged doctors to give one day a week to work in state or county mental hospitals near their homes.

IT'S A PSYCHOLOGICAL FACT: PLEASURE HELPS YOUR DISPOSITION!

For more pure pleasure have a Camel

Another fact — if you're a smoker, you'll get more pure pleasure from Camels. Really mild... richer-tasting... no wonder more people smoke Camels than any other brand!

No other cigarette is so rich-tasting, yet so mild!

smoking "sowed no significant association." They gave no amount of cigarette smoking, no matter how light, a clean bill—in short, they said their figures indicated the heavier the smoking of cigarettes, the higher was the chance of lung cancer.

Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, director, and R. Daniel Horn, assistant director of statistical research for the Cancer Society, made the report. Hammond also is a professor of biometrics at Yale university. The larynx cancer statisticians, who were on the same program, were from the Sloan-Kettering Institute of New York.

To complete the report at the scientific session on "cancer and medicine," Dr. Charles S. Cameron, medical and scientific director of the society, said he had polled scientists who see the most cancers or are qualified cancer experts and found that a majority of them believe that "heavy smoking of cigarettes may lead to lung cancer." He said that 63 per cent of the chest surgeons, 50 per cent of the pathologists, and 54 per cent of the cancer research scientists whom he polled, answered "yes" to that statement.

New York—(U.P.)—Timothy B. Hartnett, chairman of the Tobacco Industry Research committee, urged smokers today not to be "misled by sweeping generalities" in a doctors' report on the relationship between smoking and lung cancer.

Hartnett, whose organization is conducting its own survey into lung cancer, charged that the report released today in Atlantic City, N.J., "ignores important environmental, geographical, occupational, physical and emotional factors affecting disease and longevity."

"The use of big percentage figures . . . obscures the fact that they are dealing with only 168 proven primary lung cancer cases among 285 reported cases, out of 8,105 deaths which occurred in a 32-month period among 187,000 men who were 50 to 70 years old at the start of the survey over three years ago," he said.

Hartnett also charged that the questionnaire used by Drs. E. Cuyler Hammond and R. Daniel Horn contained bias "so great as to make questionable the validity of any conclusions . . ."

Laboratory research during the past year has failed to provide any proof that smoking causes lung cancer, Hartnett said.

Youngster Drowns Near Springfield

Springfield, Ore. —(U.P.)—A 2-1/2-year-old child wandered off from her parents and drowned in a slough yesterday afternoon during a family picnic at Hendricks Bridge state park nine miles east of here.

Little Sandra Arlene Floyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady W. Floyd of Springfield, was missed by her parents about 10 minutes after she toddled off while playing with an older child.

The body was located in a slough of the McKenzie river, the county coroner said, but effort at resuscitation failed.

Portland Bakers Okay Wage Increase Offer

Portland —(U.P.)—AFL bakers here voted unanimously to accept an industry wage increase offer of 8 cents an hour Saturday afternoon, ending a month of negotiations.

The Bakers and Confectionary workers said the agreement also included a 6 cent hourly wage increase in November and some retroactive pay.

John Leffelman, business agent of the union, said some "hand" shops would take a reduction in hours in place of the wage increase.
