

SAFE AFTER ORDEAL—A beaming mother, Mrs. Harris Fuller of Eureka, Cal., smiles at her exhausted 7-year-old son, Bobby, after boy was lost for 69 hours in rugged mountains near Yreka. Boy lost 10 pounds during wandering.

No Violence Reported At St. Helen's Mills

St. Helens — (U.P.) — State police said today there was no violence at the St. Helens plant of the Fir-Tex Insulating Board Co., and the Western Insulated Board, Inc., when the two strikebound plants tried to reopen.

Police were alerted as some 200 union "observers" gathered at the entrances of the plant yesterday. Pete Weinsz, chairman of the strike committee of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers union, promised there would be no violence. Only supervisory and office personnel passed through the picket lines yesterday.

Strikers said the company had attempted to recruit high school students to work regular shifts during the strike but none appeared.

Pelton Dam Ruling To Have Wide Effect

Seattle — (U.P.) — Oregon Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton today said the Pelton Dam ruling announced by the U. S. Supreme Court would "affect very radically every state in the union."

Thornton declined to comment in detail until he reviewed the Supreme Court decision. However, he said the ruling "apparently bears on the rights of the state of Oregon — and other states to control the use of water in non-navigable streams inside their borders."

Thornton is here for a meeting of the Western Association of Attorneys General.

The decision, upholding a Federal Power Commission license granted to Portland General Electric for the construction of a high dam on the Deschutes river, overruled objections by the state of Oregon. The land is federally-owned.

Washington — (U.P.) — Rep. Harold O. Lovre (R-S.D.) said today in his weekly letter to constituents: "The dairy cow is about the only kind of automation the labor leaders haven't worried about."

Rain Drenches Nation's Middle

By UNITED PRESS

Rain and murk shrouded the nation from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and eastward to the Appalachians today.

Heavy rains pounded the southland and in Chicago a bus skidded on a rain-slicked street and tipped over, injuring 17 persons.

The heaviest rainfalls reported by the Weather Bureau included 1.48 inches at Hopkinsville, Ky., and nearly an inch at Bowling Green, Ky., and Montgomery, Ala.

Earlier, hail stones three quarters of an inch in diameter battered Flippen, Ark. Quarter-inch hail stones hit Kansas City, Mo., and Joplin, Mo.

Tornado warnings were issued for parts of the Midwest during the night, but were later lifted.

The rain in the north early today was accompanied by thick fog over parts of Northeastern Illinois and Northwest Indiana.

The damp weather was accompanied by slightly cooler weather, but farther west desert areas were having trouble cooling off from yesterday's scorcher. Just before midnight it was still a stifling 95 degrees at Needles, Calif., and 91 at Blythe, Calif.

Heppner Barmaid's Arraignment Pending

Heppner — (U.P.) — No date has been set yet for the arraignment of Anna Perkins Aven, 38, a Heppner barmaid accused of the first degree murder of Portland Attorney Dellmore Lessard.

Mrs. Aven yesterday was granted additional time to secure an attorney at a pre-arraignment hearing. She is being held in Pendleton city jail.

Lessard, a former state senator, was shot Saturday night. He had come to Heppner to talk to the woman about custody of her son. He represented Mrs. Aven's ex-husband.

The first degree murder information was filed by District Attorney Bradley Sancher of Morrow county.
