

'Men Around Eisenhower' May Persuade President To Seek Second Term

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Correspondent

Washington—(U.P.)—M-A-E is common code for "Men Around Eisenhower," upon whom more than any other group depends the President's decision whether to seek a second term. She is a man Adams is chief of the group, most of whom are actually in the White House.

group of advisers closest to President Andrew Jackson. Many of President Harding's troubles could be traced to the men from whom he took too much advice, "The Ohio Gang."

Some presidents pick one top and unofficial minister, as President Coolidge chose merchant Frank W. Stearns of Boston, Mass., and Woodrow Wilson picked Col. E. M. House.

These advisers or groups of advisers usually are more powerful in their influence upon a president than the members of his cabinet or big league politicians.

It will come as bad news to Democrats that the M-A-E are consistently plugging for Mr. Eisenhower to run again.

The President probably has not yet made up his mind. He has told intimates from time to time that he is through—that a second term is out. But it is remarked in Washington that reports of these sometimes annoying disavowals of further political ambition have been less frequent of late.

It was not unusual 12 months or even less back for a highly situated politico to relate in confidence to friends after a White House visit with Mr. Eisenhower had said he would not again seek the presidency.

The M-A-E appear to be partly responsible for the decrease in such remarks. Their enthusiasm for his renomination recently became so great that Mr. Eisenhower requested his top White House aides to cease discussing in public the desirability or likelihood of a second term. But these aides are not discouraged in their eager efforts to make the presidency a more comfortable job.

The staff system of administration which the President brought to the White House from the Army could and, doubtless, does considerably ease the burden of executive responsibility. The M-A-E are responsible for making the staff system work.

The greatest triumph of the second termers, however, popped up only last week when the President took off for his Gettysburg farm in an Oklahoma-built, twin-engine Aero Commander. The M-A-E have worried considerably about the 85 miles of winding and sometimes narrow road over which the President must travel to his country home.

It is a dangerous, two-hour drive. And two hours is too long. The Aero Commander can make it in 30 minutes, sometimes less. Mr. Eisenhower will use his small airplane again this week end after receiving a degree from Pennsylvania State University at State College, Pa., of which his brother, Milton, is president. It is 75 miles from State College to Gettysburg. The airplane will do it in about 15 minutes.

Mr. Eisenhower has said he wants to spend more time on his farm. That is one reason he has hesitated about a second term. The handy, new airplane, makes Gettysburg a suburb of Washington for the President. He now can spend any week night on the farm, breakfast there and be on time for work in Washington.

That little airplane may persuade the President that another term wouldn't be so bad, after all. The M-A-E can take a bow.

Molotov Indicates July 18-21 Acceptable

Paris—(U.P.)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov today indicated to French Premier Edgar Faure that Russia will accept the West's invitation to a top level Big Four meeting in Geneva July 18-21.

Authoritative French sources said Molotov told Faure and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay at a hastily arranged luncheon meeting at the Quai d'Orsay that Russia has no fundamental objections to the dates and place proposed by the West. Molotov will sail tonight on the Queen Elizabeth for the United States and a June 20 meeting at San Francisco with the Big Three Western foreign ministers.

Lack of Concentration Noted in Polio Cases

Washington—(U.P.)—The U. S. Public Health Service said today that so far this year there is little evidence of "any unusually high concentration" of polio cases in any specific local areas. In arriving at this estimate of the polio situation, it took into consideration the population size in the various areas and the usual seasonal occurrence of the disease.

The service said 251 new polio cases were reported in the week ending June 4 as compared with 246 and 241 cases, respectively, for the preceding two weeks. In the corresponding week of last year 224 cases were reported. Total number of cases reported for the calendar year stood at 2540 as compared to 2910 in 1954. For the "disease" year beginning April 1, the total is 1476 as compared to 1357 last year.

The service noted large increases in new cases were reported over last week's report in Texas with 37 to 52 cases, California with 28 to 39, and Florida with 6 to 15.
