Swaps, Nashua Rematch Talked

Chicago — (U.P.) — Swaps and Nashua may get another chance to prove which is the better horse in a "Kentucky Derby rematch" here late this summer if their owners can agree on a date. Both owners indicated they would like a duel again if a date could be arranged which would not conflict with their present schedules.

Swaps beat Nashua by a length and a half in the Derby, but was not entered in the Preakness, which Nashua won, or in the Belmont Stakes which Nashua is favored to win this week end.

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of Washington Park, said a match race between the nation's outstanding three-year-olds "looks promising" at Washington Park in late August. The race would be for a purse of $75,000, winner take all over the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter on a flat track.

Firemen in Utah Find Chores Varied

Salt Lake City — (U.P.) — Firemen in some Utah communities do many things besides fight fires.

At the mining community of Eureka, the pumper truck was pressed into service recently to carry water to Mammoth, several miles away, after the 17-mile long pipeline bringing water to Mammoth froze. Mammoth is too small to maintain its own fire department.

In Price, the fire wagons roll every time it rains heavily. Their pumps are needed to empty water out of the main

U. S. 50 underpass at the north end of town.

During one flash flood, Chet Mills, Price's only full-time fireman, had to rescue five youngsters who were trapped in a car. The pumping and rescue jobs are listed by Mills as "unusual." On his "usual" list are routine expeditions to get children out of locked bathrooms and pluck stranded cats from treetops.

American Indians used petrol-eum as a medicine.
