

Methodist Church Rites Wed Couple

Spring flowers provided a setting for the wedding of Miss Helen Louise Wolfe and Joseph Ray Williams when they were married June 3 at First Methodist church. The ceremony was read by the Rev. J. T. Dixon at 8 o'clock in the evening. Hawthorn and pink roses arranged with snowball and dogwood blossoms were used for the decorations.

The bride, a 1954 Medford senior high school graduate, is a daughter of Mrs. Hazel Wolfe, 322 Benson street, and the late John Wolfe. The bridegroom, who is employed at Leever Motor company, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Williams of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Lyle White, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Lyle White gave the bride in marriage and serving as best man was Elmer Smoot.

The bride's gown was turquoise blue and she carried a white Bible, a gift from Mrs. Dale Flowers when the bride joined the church. Her flowers were pink roses. The matron-of-honor wore a pink eyelet organ-dress and carried pink rose-buds.

The music was furnished by C. N. White, who sang, and Miss Jean Huffman, organist.

The wedding reception was held in the church rooms. Mrs. David Doren cut the wedding cake and Mrs. Charles Ellis and Mrs. Gordon Shelton poured. Miss Lois Myers had charge of the guest book.

The couple returned Friday from a trip to San Francisco and are living at 1034 1/2 North Central avenue.

The bride has lived in this vicinity her entire life and is a member of an early day family. She has been employed in the accounting department at the Medford laundry.

The bridegroom attended Crater high school.

Industry Describes Washable Leather Coats, Jackets

New York—The tanning industry has just disclosed that washable leather garments for every member of the family will be a reality this fall.

Made of the same type of leather—called LaunderLeather—which goes into washable gloves, the new jackets and coats can be dumped into the machine with the rest of the family wash, it is stated.

Coats, jackets, jumpers and jeans in the new LaunderLeather are already on the production line and by fall Mrs. America will have them hanging on her wash line next to her husband's shirts and the family linen.

There will be no fuss connected with washable LaunderLeather apparel. Hundreds of test washings conducted by the industry's research laboratories and home economists have shown that the leather garments can be laundered with ordinary soap, flakes and detergent in either the tub or the washing machine. All smudges, greases and stains disappear like magic and the leather emerges not only completely color-fast, but without any stiffening, shrinkage or stretching.

In several tests conducted by commercial laundries, ten LaunderLeather jackets, in colors running from bright red to pale yellow, were tossed together into the same machine for twenty successive washings. None of the jackets showed any color-bleeding or loss of the leather's original luster and suppleness.

From a fashion standpoint, the new LaunderLeather clothes will present a wide selection of smart new jackets, coats, separates and slacks with designs to suit the individual taste of any woman. Both the suedes and the capeskins will be available in all the new fall colors including fern green, peacock blue, basque red, persimmon and charcoal.

Also featured will be men's tailored and casual jackets, in beige-to-brown suedes and sturdy capeskins. These will be dacron or nylon lined to facilitate washing.

Of special interest to the average mother will be a generous assortment of children's clothes in the new LaunderLeather. Jackets, jeans and cover-alls will soon be carried by the stores—all made of strong, durable leather made to withstand day-to-day wear and rough-and-tumble play. A sudsing in the tub or a quick cycle in the washing machine will remove all dirt, grime or grease and the leather will look good as new.
