One witness, Wally Dailey of Portland, saw the boys push the ladder over the parapet and screamed "Look out." The onlookers scattered and Dailey said the ladder "seemed to make a hole right in the middle of them."

Vaccine Theory Said Not Followed

Pittsburgh — (UP) — Dr. Jones E. Salk indicated today his theories had not been followed in the government's handling of the polio vaccine program, but said he believed procedures worked out by himself and other doctors would correct the situation.

In a wire to U. S. Surgeon General Leonard G. Scheele, Salk said large-scale production problems arose because the program "has not taken full cognizance of all the theoretical considerations that apply."

Dr. Salk's comments came after he read Dr. Scheele's lengthy report to President Eisenhower in which the surgeon general said production methods and safe tests worked well in the laboratory but were inadequate in mass production of the Salk vaccine.

The University of Pittsburgh researcher said the production difficulties occurred partly because "the phrasing of the minimum requirements allowed for differing interpretations" and partly because of the "amendments to the requirements."

Douglas Voices Plea For End of Empires

Portland — (UP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas voiced a plea for liquidation of all the remaining colonial empires of the world in a commencement address at Reed College here yesterday.

Douglas said American concepts of democracy and dignity of man would work in any land and should be carried to the East and to Africa.

He scored conditions existing today in French Africa, pointing out that under colonial rule there were separate wage scales for the French, the Jews and the Arabs.

In Maylaya, he said, the British were unable to combat Communism until they removed discrimination against the Chinese in 1952.

"The right to be equal is also the right to be different," he told the graduating seniors.
