School Curriculum Study Project Set

Salem — (U.P.) — A state-wide curriculum study project extending over two years and ending in a workshop at the University of Oregon in 1956 will involve hundreds of teachers in all parts of Oregon, Superintendent of Public Instruction Rex Putnam said today.

The study, sponsored by the State Department of Education, will indicate whether tentative objectives for education in Oregon developed by the curriculum advisory committee in the past two years are being met.

Putnam said "it will aim to develop an orderly sequence of educational experiences for Oregon youth."

City and county school superintendents have been invited to sponsor study committees in their school systems or areas.

Government Urged To Quit Power Field

St. Louis — (U.P.) — The chairman of the Hoover commission task group on power generation and distribution said today the federal government should withdraw from the field generating electric power.

Jirgal, in a panel discussion by members of the task group before the convention, was especially critical of the operation of the Tennessee Valley Authority and said the rates charged by such agencies should be fixed by the Federal Power commission on the same rate level fixed for private utilities.
