90th Birthday Anniversary Observed by Nicholas Kime

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Kime, 511 Palm street, held open house Monday, June 13 at their home in observance of Mr. Kime's 90th birthday anniversary. Many friends and relatives called during the day.

Mr. Kime came to Oregon 82 years ago with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kime. He was born in Montreal, Can., June 13, 1865. The family moved when he was about 18 months old to Indiana where they lived on a ranch and when he was seven they came to Oregon by steamship, first to Portland and the Willamette valley and then to the Rogue valley.

After stopping for a time at Jacksonville they soon moved to a site now on King's highway where "we wintered," Mr. Kime explained. That year his father bought the ranch known as the old Kime ranch in the Griffin creek area, a part of which is the site of the present Griffin Creek school house. This was the family home for many years.

Mr. Kime has been an orchardist the most of his life but in his early years he mined for about 13 years at the China Creek mine out of Happy Camp, Calif. His first ranch was the old Cave camp ranch which had been owned by the Stevens family. His first wife, the former Miss Clara Stevens, died 45 years after their wedding. In 1932 Mr. Kime was married to his present wife, the former Mrs. Kate Plymale Collins, also a member of a pioneer family. They were married in 1932.

At one time Mr. Kime operated the Mary-Mac orchard at the Kings highway - Jacksonville-Phoenix highway junction. His son, Elmer Kime, lives at route 1, box 389, Medford.

Mr. Kime is in good health and though his activities are limited he takes daily walks in his neighborhood.

Girls State Closes At Salem

Salem — (U.P.) — Legislative sessions in House and Senate were a highlight of Girls State yesterday as the delegates wound up their week long session here.

Two girls were to be elected to attend Girls' National in Washington, D. C.

Twelve girls were nominated for the two positions. They were Charlene Tucker, Salem; Peggy Barsby, Junction City; Mary Stevens, Salem; Sylvia Quiring, Hermiston; Joe Anne Belshaw, Mt. Vernon; Betty Arnell, Portland; Josie Gray, Independence; Jean Wood, Corvallis; Carolyn Courter, Grants Pass; Janet Smith, Murphy; Carolyn Parson, Lacombe, and Carole Stone, Gresham.

Sue Higdon of Cottage Grove was president of the Senate and Judy Keller of Salem, Speaker of the House.

The delegates were addressed yesterday by Judge William East of Eugene and Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton.

Announcement of the results of elections included the names of several Medford girls. Miss Elizabeth Betschart of St. Mary's school served as a delegate to her party caucus, as a city councilman and later in the House of Representatives as a page.

It is a policy at the Girls' state for a girl to give up the offices she has received in order to run for higher ones. This was the case of Miss Nancy McKeown and Miss Marilyn Olson, who were elected to the House of Representatives. Miss Jane Bash and Miss Janet Perry were elected to the Senate and had the honor of sitting at Senator Philip Lowry's desk in the Senate.

At the inauguration of the new Girls' State governor the delegates were addressed by Governor Paul Patterson.

A candlelight service in the rotunda of the capitol is one of the important events of the session.

Pineapple and ginger are natural affinities. Enjoy the combined flavors in this delicious topping: Add 1/4 cup of crushed pineapple to 1 cup of cream (whipped) and serve over squares of your favorite gingerbread.

Youthful Editors of Little Newspaper Honored with Farewell Party Sunday

Monica and Gerry Auel, youthful editors of the "Rogue Valley Heights in the Headline," a neighborhood newspaper, were honored at a garden party Sunday afternoon, June 12 at the Harold Cook home, 2235 Roberts road.

The girls are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Auel, 2155 Roberts road, and the party, which was a surprise, was occasioned by the fact that the Auels soon will move to Oregon City.

The little newspaper which the girls first published last September has served as a community service to the Rogue Valley heights area and the neighbors joined in extending their appreciation to the girls. The June edition was their last copy.

They were presented a large scroll shown in the picture and C. C. Hoover, a former resident of the neighborhood, presented each girl a fountain pen with her name engraved, all gifts from the group.

Both girls attended Lone Pine school and also were members of the school newspaper staff.

The paper grew from a subscription list of five in September when it was typewritten, to 35 subscriptions and was mimeographed.

Mrs. Cecil Norris was in charge of the refreshment table and punch was served. Mrs. Cook organized the event and all who attended assisted.

It is the hope of the neighbors that the newspaper will be continued by Gayle Norris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Norris, residents of the same area.
