

Medford Physician Named on Arthritis Chapter Committee

Appointment of Dr. Martin L. Vorheis, Medford physician, as a member of the medical and scientific committee of the Oregon chapter, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, has been announced by Gordon E. Wilson, Portland chapter president.

With Dr. R. E. Rinehart, Wheeler, Ore., as chairman, the committee is primarily concerned with the Foundation's program for research, clinical services and professional education against arthritis and rheumatic diseases.

Plans Told

With supervision by physician members of the committee, the chapter plans to conduct arthritis clinics under the auspices of local medical societies, including one in Medford; establish physical therapy centers in hospitals throughout the state; establish mobile home care facilities where local need is determined by medical consultants, and continue research projects at the University of Oregon medical school, Portland, and at the University of Oregon medical school, Portland, and at the chemistry department of the University of Oregon, Eugene.

Foundation reports point out that in addition to the alleviation of human suffering, the chapter's activities prove a definite contribution to the economic welfare of the state in that many persons, previously handicapped by arthritic diseases, have been enabled to return to work because of the professional and lay education, resulting in improved patient care in existing treatment facilities fostered by the chapter.

The Oregon chapter is an agency of the United Medford Crusade.

Son of Gold Hill Couple Earns Degree

Gold Hill—Leroy Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carter, Gold Hill, received his Master's degree in science at the University of Pittsburgh on June 15.

He received his bachelor of science degree at Iowa State college in 1946 while in the Navy V12 program. He is now a Westinghouse aviation design engineer at Lima, O., and is the first mechanical engineer there to receive his master's degree under the Westinghouse and University of Pittsburgh extension plan of night classes over the last five years.

With his wife, daughter and son he plans to spend a vacation beginning July 18 with his parents at their home on the Rogue river.

Navy Divers Find Automobile Parts

Detroit, Ore. — (U.P.)—Navy divers searching for the bodies of John Wallace, 17, and Richard Jennings, 14, in Detroit Lake found only a few spare parts of the car in which they were hurled to death.

The Detroit Youths have been missing since a week ago Saturday night when their car failed to make a curve and plunged 185 feet off the North Santiam highway into the lake behind Detroit Dam.

Diving operations were resumed yesterday.

Final rites were held Saturday at Weddle Mortuary in Stayton for James A. Jennings, 41, and his son, Leo, 16, of Detroit, who lost their lives in the car plunge.

Their bodies were recovered Tuesday. The four were returning from Mill City and a movie when their car missed a curve and plunged into the lake.

Around Hollywood

Hollywood — (U.P.) — A shapely blonde housewife from Florida returned to Hollywood for her first visit in 16 years and declared today: "The actresses here who hang on and keep trying — I don't envy them a bit."

Back in the 30's that blonde was Toby Wing, the Marilyn Monroe of the gridiron. In countless Paramount football pictures, pug-nosed cute Toby rah-rahed while Jack Oakie or Richard Arlen charged down the field for a touchdown.

To fans who have wondered what happened to Mae Bush, Toby Wing and Hadaool, I can report that Toby, at least, quit

PRIZE COOK LETS OTHER WORK GO

Most men who complain about their wives' cooking say that the wife does not know how to cook anything fit to eat and won't even try to learn. Here is a man who has a different story.

(Q) "My wife is one of those creatures known as a 'born cook.' She spends most of her time in the kitchen trying out any and every new recipe she can get her hands on. She doesn't like other housework so the house rarely gets a decent cleaning. My shirts are never washed or ironed until I haven't a clean one left to wear to the office. She spends so much of her time in the kitchen that our children are running wild with no supervision. All this experimenting with food is expensive too. The family lives on a whipped cream diet instead of good, plain, wholesome food. I have made no headway when I have tried to talk to her about this. She claims that I show no appreciation for all she does to try to please us. What would you suggest?"

(A) Since your wife is inflating her ego by her culinary art, you must find a substitute form of ego-inflation for her if you want to get away from the whipped cream diet.

Why not encourage her to take up dress-making for herself and the children to get her out of the kitchen some of the time?

You could get a good argument against the food she gives you by having your doctor prescribe a suitable diet for growing children and for yourself. I am sure no doctor would approve of children living on the type of food you have at home. Then, when your wife prepares food the doctor prescribes, compliment her and tell her how much better you like such food than the fancy food you have been having.

Another suggestion is to budget the food allowance carefully enough that your wife will not be able to afford rich desserts and food that requires expensive ingredients. You could see that she kept within this budget by offering to help her with the weekly shopping. In that way, you could guarantee that you had wholesome food and that there would not be enough money left for food to experiment with.

To give your wife a chance to do the fancy cooking she enjoys, suggest that you want to entertain more and let her serve fancy refreshments to your guests. Then, too, there are always church bazaars for which she can cook to her heart's content. (Copyright 1955, General Features Corp.)

Funeral Services Set for Youthful Hemophilia Victim

Corvallis — (U.P.) — Funeral arrangements were being made here today for Raymond Coopey, 18-year-old victim of hemophilia who died Thursday.

Young Coopey fought all his life against the rare blood disease which produces uncontrollable bleeding and makes even minor injuries near tragedies.

He was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Coopey of Corvallis to die of the condition. A younger brother died several years ago.

Had Broken Leg

Coopey, who had been hospitalized repeatedly because of minor injuries, died Thursday after being hospitalized for four months with a broken leg.

While still in the hospital he was graduated from Corvallis high school. He had been named by his classmates as "the most inspirational student." Many of his studies had been conducted by a telephone intercommunication system between the classroom and his hospital bed.

During his lifetime, young Coopey received an estimated 2000 pints of blood from private donors and the Red Cross. His fellow students at Corvallis high school had raised $1200 to help pay hospital expenses. They also arranged for installation of a small television set in his room.

Oregon Guardsmen Parade for Governor

Astoria — (U.P.)—One thousand Oregon National Guardsmen, members of an anti-aircraft artillery team, were scheduled to parade before Gov. Paul Patterson Saturday at the annual encampment at Camp Clatsop.

Maj. Gen. Thomas E. Rilea, adjutant general of Oregon, was to be on the reviewing stand with Gov. Patterson. Main body of troops were the 237th AAA group. They were reviewed Friday by Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, deputy commander of the Sixth Army.

There are about 80,000 private airplanes in the U. S.

Coos Bay Editor Takes New Post

Coos Bay, Ore. — (U.P.)—Ulla E. Bauers, executive editor of the Coos Bay Times, said today she had submitted her resignation to accept a position as managing editor of another daily newspaper in the Pacific Northwest.

Successor to Bauers had not been announced. He will leave Coos Bay about July 9, he said. He came to Coos Bay from Santa Rosa, Calif., and served first as assistant managing editor. He later became managing editor and then executive editor.

Hollywood — (U.P.) — Movies 16 years ago to marry a famed airline pilot and executive, Dick Merrill. Church Play

Many of her co-workers still are tangled in Hollywood careers and unhappy divorces. But Toby has been living happily in Miami Beach with her husband and son, Ricky, 14.

The closest she ever will get to acting again will be in a church play in Florida this fall.

"I was in a show in New York in 1939 with Clifton Webb, 'You Never Know,' when I met Dick," she said.

"I loved him. To me that was the most important thing in the world, to be happily married and to have my baby. I never returned to Hollywood.

"When you marry somebody important, like my husband, you take the back seat. He's a most outstanding aviator, you know," she smiled in wifely pride.

Cheesecake Queen

Toby still has the blonde hair and pretty smile that made her a Goldwyn Girl in Eddie Cantor's "Kid From Spain." At Paramount, she recalled, "I received more mail than any other star, and we had Marlene Dietrich, Carol Lombard and Claudette Colbert."

She also was a cheesecake queen. Cheesecake photography, she added, hasn't changed a bit.

"Being an actress was a lovely dream, fascinating and wonderful," she said.

"And then to turn around to marry a man like Dick!"

"I teach Sunday school in Florida. Your best Hollywood marriages, I notice, are the ones that have religion."

"I don't care how much fame and money you have, if you don't have a happy marriage.

"Some of these actresses do marry and then don't appreciate what they have. If they'd only take a backseat, and not push their husbands . . ."

"Now I think the story of my husband's career would make a good movie," said the former actress.

"Jimmy Dean would be fine in the part."

Third Auto Salesman Convicted in Portland

Portland — (U.P.)—A municipal court jury here Friday found another automobile salesman guilty of violating the Portland ordinance against selling used cars on Sunday.

Charles Frost, salesman at a Union avenue car lot, was the third salesman found guilty in recent weeks in a series of cases that eventually will test the constitutionality of the no-Sunday-sales rule.

A case against a fourth used car salesman, G. C. Elie, was taken under advisement by Municipal Judge J. J. Quillin.

Vines Lost All of Mail Fraud Loot

Portland — (U.P.)—Morton L. Vines, who has pleaded guilty to four counts of mail fraud here, said Friday he didn't save a nickel from the more than $100,000 he netted over a five-year period by selling fictional sales contracts to a bank and three loan companies.

"It was all lost," the 37-year-old Vines said, "and I didn't have a good time."

He had no alibi, but his attorney Alan Davis, said Vines had been treated off and on by a psychiatrist ever since the end of World War II.

Davis said Vines had a nervous breakdown when he was shipped home from Germany to find his wife dying of leukemia. He spent eight months in Barnes hospital at Vancouver, Wash., and was discharged with a 50 per cent disability.

Cordon Considering Becoming Candidate

Portland — (U.P.)—Former Sen. Guy Cordon said last night he is "seriously considering" becoming a candidate to the Republican national convention in San Francisco next year.

Cordon, who arrived here for what he called a "combination business and pleasure trip," has been engaged in the practice of law in Washington, D. C., since his defeat by Richard Neuberger last fall.

The former senator said he also was confident that President Eisenhower would run for reelection, and would win by an overwhelming vote. He predicted that Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) would be defeated in his bid for reelection.
