California Newspaper Woman Is World Traveler at Age 81

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY United Press Correspondent New York — (U.P.) — A girl as young as she feels, a trim world traveler aged 81 said when she paused here en route to Iceland, Norway, Sweden and points south.

Mrs. Byral Hayes Day surveyed the Manhattan skyscrapers for the first time two days ago, her bright blue eyes sparkling behind her stylish, black-rimmed glasses.

"This is wonderful," she said. "Every day holds something new in life. I've never been here before. Afraid to travel alone at my age? Why should I be? I'm not afraid of anything or anybody."

Mrs. Day sails tomorrow on board the S. S. Caronia on a 40-day cruise. She came here by train from her home in Eureka, Calif., where she owns the town's two newspapers. She made it perfectly clear within an hour after setting a firm foot on her first Manhattan sidewalk that her four-day stopover was not a rest stop.

She came here to go sightseeing. The lively, white-haired lady is the widow of Clarence L. Day, who worked as a newspaperman in Nebraska, Idaho and Southern California before buying the Eureka newspaper. Some years ago she took a freighter around the world and wrote a book called "The Seven Seas at Seventy and Seven."

Until she was 73, she had never been outside the United States.

"Not enough money for it, honey," she confided cheerfully. At 73 she took a freighter down the East Coast of South America and wrote a book called "The Humboldters' Odyssey."

This time Mrs. Day will travel in luxury and leisure, but she is frankly skeptical about both.

"I vowed I wouldn't write a thing on this trip," she said. "But I've already found myself taking notes. And I'm not sure about my ship. It is lovely, I know, but I like freighters. You stop in so many ports and really have time to get off and talk to people. I love people."

Not one to give recipes for aging gracefully, Mrs. Day did reveal that she likes raw carrots, cocktails before dinner and good conversation, though not necessarily in that order.

"I never say to myself I'm 81 years old," she confided. "I'm proud of it, but I just don't think about it. I don't feel a calendar year has anything to do with

Speaker Stresses Individual Liberty At AAUW Session

Los Angeles — (U.P.) — Dr. Janet MacDonald, of Hollins college, Va., told the American Association of University Women today that the study of individual liberties should be the foremost aim of the association's social study program for the next two years.

Dr. MacDonald, a history professor and chairman of the AAUW's social study committee, spoke before delegates at the group's biennial convention here.

She urged the study should emphasize "the origin and significance of the constitutional guarantees of these liberties; the cultivation of alertness to encroachments on them; and an attempt to evaluate propaganda and pressure group activities in the light of their effects on these basic liberties."

Students Named On Honor Roll Of Oregon School

Several valley students at the University of Oregon were included on the university honor roll for the spring term.

They are Miss Alyce Atherton, Jacksonville, a pre-nursing student and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Atherton of Honolulu, Hawaii; Miss Elizabeth Collins, a senior in general social science, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Collins, 2224 South Main street; Richard Johnson, a sophomore in liberal arts, son of the Rev. Perry M. Johnson, 819 West 13th street, and Craig Phillips, a sophomore, also in liberal arts, son of Dr. and Mrs. S. E. Phillips, Big Boulder orchards, Medford.

Dramatics Group Grants Charter

Ashland — Southern Oregon college has been granted a charter for a chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatics fraternity, faculty advisor Dr. Dorothy Stolp said.

Six students are currently qualified for charter membership in the fraternity, Miss Stolp said, with more earning points for membership in summer session drama activities. Those on the original roll include Stafford Thomas, Miss Patsy Roberts, Miss Audrey Russell, Francis Chasm, Bert Jenks, and Jim Womack.

Washington—There are 70 per cent more children under age five in the U.S. than in 1940.
