Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY

Hollywood —(U.P.)— A bright, young comedian that Hollywood calls "a new George Gobel" will be unveiled on his own television show tonight — but Johnny Carson already is unhappy about that label. "Because Gobel and I are both young and low pressure types, people compare us, but in style and delivery there's no comparison," Carson insisted today. "It really isn't fair." Carson's humor that viewers will see on CBS-TV is best described as brash and clean-cut, according to a preview of the show. Like Gobel, Carson is a mid-westerner with a wife and three children who goes in for relaxed, offbeat humor. Carson's show also has a girl singer and a family skit which he casually walks into, as Gobel has done on many a Saturday night. Not Like Gobel Carson, however, does not behave like the Gobelish homespun "little" man. "One columnist wrote that 'Johnny Carson will be next year's George Gobel.' I wrote back that 'George Gobel will be next year's George Gobel'," grinned Carson. The slender, pug-nosed comedian has his chance to become a big TV star because Red Skelton hurt his back a year ago. Carson had an informal show on the local CBS station and network big-wigs hustled him over on a few hour's notice to replace the ailing Skelton. Johnny dreamed up his act while driving to the studio. After the successful show, the network signed him. "Ever since I've been working on the format for my own show. It's loose and flexible," the new comic explained. "I'm also helping write the show." TV Product Carson thinks he may be the only comedian who's strictly a product of TV. He began his career, fresh from the University of Nebraska, on an Omaha TV station. The Norfolk, Neb., boy also did magic tricks at conventions and fairs. "I've got two strikes against me," he grinned. "I went to college and didn't have to sell newspapers in the Bowery or stand in line to see George M. Cohan. I've led a normal existence." During our interview, at the Brown Derby, the 29-year-old Carson beamed while well-wishers gave him "good luck" greetings for his debut tonight. It was one of those moments in show business before either a star is born or a hopeful defeated. "I'll know a half hour after the program, from the reaction, if I went over," he said. Then he added, "In fact, I'll know when I walk off the stage if I'm in."

Festival Player Finds Companions

Ashland—Richard Jones, one of the featured players in this summer's Oregon Shakespeare Festival, received a pleasant surprise in the second week of rehearsals. Coming to Ashland for the first time from Little Falls, N.Y., the veteran actor-director expected to find himself lonely in a strange country. And he was until someone introduced him to W. Bernard Windt, and he discovered that he had known the festival musical director 30 years ago when they were freshmen together at Ithaca college in New York state. Jones began to feel even more at home when he found that the Rev. Jack Thompson of Trinity Episcopal church was a former classmate and a close friend of his own minister in New York. Jones will play the lead in "Timon of Athens," Bottom in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and Duncan in "Macbeth" in the festival this summer. Dead line for Sunday Classified is at noon Saturday
