

Two Cheney Stud Nines Clash Saturday, Sunday

High Spirit Foreseen in 'Civil War'

Two baseball aggregations, both having the same sponsor and each determined not to be shown up by the other, will aim to outdo each other this week end at the fairgrounds ball yard here.

The "civil war" with anticipated high spirited contention matches the Medford Cheney Studs of the Southern Oregon League with the Washington Studs of the Cascade League in the Puget Sound area. They scrap at 8 p.m. on Saturday and at 2 p.m. on Sunday.

"Play ball" will be the theme and only ceremony may be pregame introduction of players.

The Cheney team from Washington will be made up of young players while the Medford nine will be a combination of young and veteran players. However, the Washingtonians have plenty of experience and solid baseball background despite their youth. Last year the club was Seattle city, Washington state and northwest regional titlist of the American Baseball Congress. Several of the players have received most valuable player or all-star recognition.

A 14-man roster, players and a manager, was announced today for the Washington club. Infielders will include Bob Jacobs from West Seattle high, Dick Minice from Cleveland high of Seattle, and Dick Naish from Seattle university. Both Jacobs and Minice

SHINES FOR WASHINGTON STUDS—Baseball fans will have the opportunity to see a player who has awed spectators of the Puget Sound area with his all-around athletic ability Saturday night and Sunday afternoon when the Washington Cheney Studs are here for their baseball engagement with the Medford Cheney Studs. The raved about athlete is, of course, Luther Carr (above) up from Tacoma's Lincoln high. A crackerjack baseball outfielder, Carr is equally at home on the football field and on the cinder track. His long football runs wowed Tacoma fans and Carr, in addition to being a sprinter, holds the Washington prep broad jump record. Only 18 now, Carr was with the Studs last year and paced them in hitting. His tremendous speed is an asset once he gets on base. Carr is a six-footer who weighs around 180 pounds. —(Richards studio, Tacoma) played in the Seattle-State all-star game last month. Jacobs was named most valuable player and was an all-star ABC player last year at the age of 16. Naish ranked high in the estimation of experts at last year's regional tourney.

Among outfielders are Luther Carr from Lincoln high of Tacoma and Ray Christianson of University of Washington. Both played in the Seattle-State affair, Christianson as a catcher. Carr is the most publicized player on the club because of his all-around athletic ability. He led the Studs in the hitting department last year although just 17.

Pitchers, top men of the Cheney staff, coming will be Monte Geiger, George Kritsonis and Ron Geiger. Geiger, from U of W, was most valuable player in the regional fray last year. Kritsonis is from Seattle U, and Geiger from Lincoln high of Tacoma.

Joe Budnick is skipper of the team. The main contingent is expected to arrive here by plane from Portland about 4 p.m. Saturday. They are to travel from Tacoma by car. One car, with equipment, is to drive all the way to Medford and may have a couple of players in addition to the 13 listed. The team will stay at Pulvers motel. The Medford Studs will have Warren Noyes, Terry Maddox, Derald Wooton and Jim Kelly available for pitching duty this week end. Marv Scherpf is unlikely to see duty. His wrist was bruised by a batted ball against McCloud, Calif., on Wednesday.

Ron Maurer and Howard Morris may share the catching with Jack Cooney at first base, Jack Fassett at second, Ed McCullough at third and Bob Selsor at shortstop. Choices in the outfield may be among Chuck DeAutremont, Bill McLean, Maddox, Wooton and Noyes.

Both teams are sponsored by Cheney Lumber company. Ben Cheney of the firm has said that often, when he gets to see one of his teams play, it loses. He's sure of a winner this time. The young Washingtonians are a strong unit but the competition the Medford Studs have faced this season is considered tougher even than the other team has met.

WASHINGTON STUDS ROSTER:
Joe Budnick (7), manager.
Red Faurot (20), Bob Jacobs (4), Dick Minice (13), Dick Naish (35), George Grant (8), infielders.
Osborn Williams (9), Fred Emerson (17), Luther Carr (19), Ray Christianson (3), outfielders.
Ron Dodge (11), catcher.
Monte Geiger (20), George Kritsonis (37), Ron Geiger (15), pitchers.

RVL Contests This Sunday

Rivalry resumes in the Rogue Valley Baseball League this Sunday after a lay-off over the holiday week end.

The schedule calls for Butte Falls at Eagle Point, Ashland at Glendale and Grants Pass at Camp White.

Glendale will be out to strengthen hold on first place in the standings while the Camp White will aim at ending the dispute concerning their right to sole hold on second position.

Whiters say that before their last meeting with Grants Pass the teams agreed that the fracas would be a league counter. Grants Pass was just bowing into the circuit. A later report from Grants Pass was that the affair had been ruled out as a league fray. Camp White, however, has not been notified of any such action.

IN MEDFORD LINE-UP—Fresh out of Medford high school, where he was a three sports athlete, Ed McCullough, above, is now a mainstay in the infield of the Medford Cheney Studs baseball nine. A pitcher and outfielder for most of his prep diamond career, McCullough has been regular third baseman for the Studs this season. He should be in the line-up this Saturday and Sunday when the Cheney nine is host to its Seattle-Tacoma counterpart, the Washington Studs.

Phil Gillis To Leave for Training Session of Washington Redskins

Phil Gillis, ex-University of Washington football end now living in Medford, will leave by United Air lines this evening for Los Angeles to join the Washington Redskins professional squad.

The Redskins will train at Occidental college for the forthcoming grid season.

Gillis was a varsity footballer at Washington in the 1950, 1951 and 1952 seasons and was a freshman player in 1949. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burpee, 3238 Jacksonville highway, Gillis did his high school playing at Bend.

The flanking man was originally property of the New York Giants. He passed up pro football at first because of injuries. Gillis entered the Army in the winter of 1953 and has seen service with the Signal Corps, including seven months in Japan. Playing service football he caught the eye of Dick Evans, a Redskin coach then in the Navy. It was through Evans that Gillis signed with Washington.

The griddier was discharged in March of this year and has been at U of W for a quarter. Since then he has aimed at getting shape for pro ball. He has a couple of quarters to go to finish his schooling and plans to return to the university after the grid season.

The Burpees have lived here since 1951.

Rivers To Talk To Waltonians

Cole Rivers, Grants Pass, Game Commission fish biologist, will address the Jackson County chapter of the Izaak Walton League on Monday, July 11.

The meeting will be at the Medford Gun club at 8 p.m.

Rivers will give a resume of the Rogue river fishery. Two motion pictures also are on the program.

O'MALLEY SUE
New York—(U.P.)—Brooklyn Dodger President Walter O'Malley was sued for $500,000 today for allegedly slanderous remarks against the surgeon who operated on All-Star catcher Roy Campanella.

Dr. Samuel Shenkman said in his complaint that O'Malley's remarks had caused his practice to suffer. O'Malley, who is an attorney himself, replied with a brief statement in which he called the situation "ridiculous."

SO League Bills Action

While the Medford Cheney Studs draw a Southern Oregon League baseball bye and entertain the Washington Studs in non-loop contention Saturday and Sunday, there still will be full activity in the SOL.

Three series are slated. Coquille will be at Grants Pass, Bandon at Drain and Bend at Roseburg. While Coquille is a heavy favorite against the Elks, Drain is given the nod by dopsters over Bandon. Drain and Coquille are deadlocked for the loop lead.

Games this week end conclude the first half of the regular loop schedule. Bandon has yet to make up a series at Bend.

Tigers Trounce Wildcat Team

Medford Tigers rolled up an 18 to 0 triumph yesterday to blast the Medford Wildcats out of a tie for first place in the Pee Wee southern division of the Southern Oregon Junior Baseball League.

Central Point remained knotted with the Tigers by beating Jacksonville 12 to 5. On another fracas Ashland trimmed Lone Pine 13 to 9.

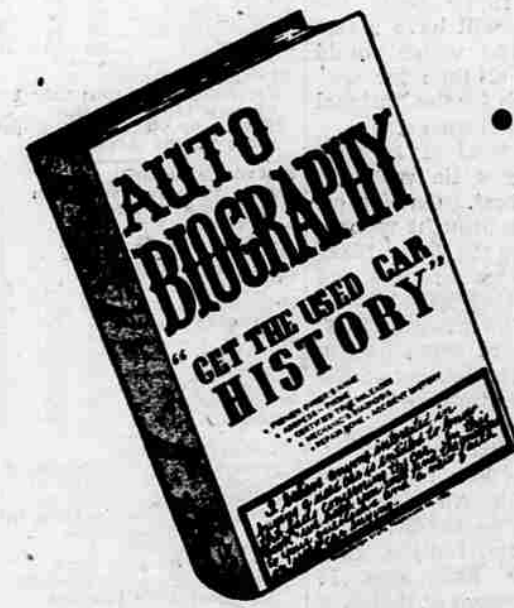

Bob Quinney tossed two-hit ball for the Tigers while Ahnorn had a four-hitter day for Central Point.
