

Apprentice Training Used by Utilities

California Oregon Power company, one of the 500 electric power companies visited by field representatives from the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Apprenticeship, employs some 31 trainees, according to a recent bureau survey.

Nation wide, 5,600 apprentices and 3,275 other workers are in training.

The survey shows that training activity in the industry is fairly extensive, especially in larger plants, but that much remains to be done to fill the need for skilled workers. Most of the apprentices are training to become linemen. Others are training for jobs as powerhouse and metermen electricians, cable splicers, and allied occupations. The average ratio of apprentices to journeymen linemen is about one to every four.

Copies of a study, "Training Activities of Electric Power Companies," may be obtained from Myron D. Johnston Department of Labor apprenticeship representative, Room 301, Medford post office building.

Area Being Cleared For New Ashland Bank

Ashland — The Decker family home on Second st. here is being torn down by Herbert Seitz, contractor, as one in a series of lot clearing operations to make space for a new U. S. National bank building.

While it was hoped other structures in the area might be removed intact to a new location, unless a way to do so without destroying trees on the property can be found, they too will be razed, according to Archie Fries, manager of the local bank.

About 500,000 Americans are employed in banking jobs.

Washington — (U.P.) — President Eisenhower cancelled his regular Wednesday news conference this week because of the press of preparations for the Big Four conference in Geneva next week.

Gleason Plans To Film 'Honeymooners' With Newfangled Camera Contraption

By JACK GAVER
 United Press Correspondent
 New York—(U.P.)—From somewhere out in the Atlantic—or is it the Pacific or Antarctic?—the master has masterminded, with the result that Jackie Gleason will be right back where he started—at the Adelphi Theater in West 54th st.

The vacationing comedian, who disappeared into some watery waste after his show on June 24 and pulled the ocean in after him, has managed to get word back that the new! new! Gleason program — 30 minutes weekly of "The Honeymooners" sketches for CBS—will be put on film via DuMont's newfangled camera contraption called the "electronicam" system.

The decision to use the DuMont converted legit theater and DuMont's new film recording system ended a month of speculation as to where the possessor of the so-called $11,000,000 contract with Buick was going to film his stuff in this town of acute TV studio space shortage.

Familiar Stuff
 However, the Adelphi Studio is like old home week to Jackie, and the electronicam system, which will get its first big boost with this tie-up, is an attractive one. It was in the Adelphi that Gleason started his rise in TV about five years ago when he was brought in to headline — temporarily—a DuMont program of the period called "Cavalcade of Stars," eventually being taken over by CBS.

DuMont claims that with the electronicam system a show can be filmed for little more than the cost of a live program where-as the usual type of filmed show is much more expensive. The cameras work exactly as though recording a live show, yet a second related lens puts the images on film simultaneously. A director can see immediately what is being recorded instead of having to wait for development of film. The director controls any number of cameras just as he does in a live show. When the shooting is over the film can be edited within a few hours, instead of days as with ordinary methods.

Live Quality
 The Gleason organization sees the process as giving his shows the quality of live-TV, with which he has always been involved until now, because they can be recorded exactly as they have been projected in the past. They will be filmed before audiences, within the normal air time and the actual audience reactions will go right on the sound track without editing. Best of all, it will enable the rapid stockpiling of programs.
