Fire Near Sutherlin Fatal to Year-Old-Boy

Sutherlin, Ore. —(U.P.)— Fire that destroyed the four-room frame house of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Williams Friday claimed the life of one-year-old Benton Wilkerson and critically burned his two-year-old brother, Preston, and their grandmother, Mrs. Nellie Williams, 48.

Neighbors rescued the family from the flaming home about 7 a.m. in a remote rural area 15 miles east of here. No fire fighting equipment was available and the house and its contents were destroyed.

The children were living with their grandparents while their mother, Mrs. Mollie Wilkerson, worked near Harrisburg, Ore.

Cause of the fire was not learned immediately.

Dead line Sunday Classified is at noon Saturday. 10 a.m Monday for Monday; other days 5:30 previous day.

Yreka Council Sets Rationing of Water

Yreka, Calif.—(U.P.)—Water rationing went into effect here today after reservoirs supplying city water users reached unusually low levels.

The city council voted to impose penalties, including fines, imprisonment and loss of water service for persons who refuse to comply with the rationing order.

RHEUMATIZ ISN'T FUNNY

A bulletin issued by the Arthritis and Rhematism Foundation a year ago said—

"It should now be recognized that treatment" (of rheumatoid arthritis) "with the various drugs available today" (May, '54) "has not been shown to alter the natural course of the disease in a significant manner."

I (Brady) have a vague conception of the type of joint disability called "rheumatoid arthritis" and sometimes by other names which I'd rather not mention here. (This is still a health column).

Maybe I'm just showing my ignorance, but from all I have been able to learn from the recognized authorities we (the medical profession, I mean) know no more about the nature and treatment of "rheumatoid arthritis" than Dr. Osler and his contemporaries knew 60 years ago.

The Foundation's bulletin further said:

"Aspirin is still the most valuable drug in the treatment of the symptoms of rheumatoid arthritis."

That's tantamount to confirmation of what I have just said.

Aspirin is, in my opinion, the least dangerous dope any one can use to relieve ache or pain, whether due to joint disability or any other complaint. But that's all one can say about it. Aspirin certainly doesn't cure anything, and in my judgment the less of this dope one uses in any circumstance the better. Notice, please, I say aspirin is the least dangerous dope — this does not imply that it is safe enough to use in the careless way some ninny-hammers do, for trifling discomforts.

A reader asks why I persist in saying "rheumatiz" when there is no such word in the dictionary Fifty years ago old grannies said that but not since. Do I think it is funny?

The word is in Webster's — characterized as dialect.

But in the pamphlet Calcium and Rheumatiz — for which send stamped, self-addressed envelope — I try to show that in most cases of chronic joint disability there is a notable absence of the signs of true inflammation — heat, pain, redness and swelling — and hence no reason to call the trouble arthritis (joint inflammation). By nudging, without violence, I try to show also that the concept of chronic rheumatism is absurd, misleading, without substantial basis.

Oh, no, I'm not trying to say that arthritis can't happen. I merely contend that when you complain of lame or painful joint or joints it is ridiculous for a doctor to call your trouble arthritis and let it go at that. That's a snide diagnosis. If you are a gullible customer and the doctor treats your "arthr-itis" ($1.98 way of saying "joint inflammation") with a funny diet, light, heat, the latest miracle medicine which purports to be good for "arthritis" or any other monkey-shines commended by the best advertised "clinic," you may be sure the medical merchant is guessing. On the other hand, real arthritis may be tuberculous, septic (Streptococcic), brucellotic, syphilitic, gonorrheal, pneumococcic — and each of these calls for a specific treatment.

The nature of the trouble in most cases of chronic joint disability, as it seems to me, is physical degeneration of joint tissues. Any real inflammation which may occur in the course of physical degeneration is incidental and in any case cold, dampness, sudden changes, insufficient clothing and all that old hokum bunkem has nothing whatever to do with the trouble.

Doctors and folks are techy about the subject. The reader's protest is typical of many similar protests received from doctors and folks. The very idea that one is degenerating is offensive.

Be that as it may, rheumatiz is the name used to signify physical degeneration of joint tissue. I would never mention it at all if I were not prepared to offer advice which, honestly and intelligently followed, will retard the degeneration process or in some instances reverse the process, into regeneration of joint tissues, and cure of the rheumatiz. For further details be sure to read pieces to follow. Of course, if they are not printed, there's nothing I can do about it.

Portland's Sunday Car Sale Ban Invalid

Portland—(U.P.)—An attempt by the City of Portland to ban the sale of cars on Sundays has been ruled unconstitutional by Circuit Judge Alfred P. Dobson.

The jurist declared "the ordinance is oppressive and discriminatory."

The ruling came on appeal from a municipal court conviction of Car Dealer Joe Dobbins. Car dealers had deliberately courted arrest under the ordinance to test its constitutionality.

Judge Dobson said "there is no elements of policy which control the treatment motor vehicle dealers should receive at the hands of the law which do not apply with equal force to most other retail establishments which may undertake to engage in Sunday sales activities."

City oficials did not reveal whether they would appeal the decision.

Liquor Revenues Distributed in State

Salem —(U.P.)— Apportionment of liquor revenues derived from a tax imposed on manufacturers and importing distributors of malt and other alcoholic beverages has been made to cities and counties of Oregon, according to Secretary of State Earl T. Newbry.

The apportionment, based on the 1950 federal census figures, represents a distribution of $62,607 for the quarter ended June 30, Newbry said.
